In Boston there is to be bitter war between the two league teams, although Magnate Somers has regretted many times that he could not have fixed the schedule otherwise. There is a suspicion that Mr. Somers—a yearling in baseball—has become disgusted with the genus ball player. He sees that even with his finger hard on contract players they are not absolutely safe. "Jimmy" Collins, the phenomenal third baseman of the Hub National league team, came high, but Somers had to have him for manager. Then Stahl, Freeman and Dineen had to be coaxed away from the Soden camp. All of this took lots of money. It cost a lot more to capture "Cy" Young, Eddie Criger—what a battery that pair will make—and one or two others in the list. Parent, the second baseman, Mr. Somers deliberately appropriated from the Providence (R. I.) team when the latter club could have sold him for a large sum. Hugh Duffy, another deserter from the Boston National league team, signed Parent for Somers, it is said. But Mr. Somers has heard that the Boston American Association team in 1890 took in $90,000 and declares that if he does that well this year he will make money in Boston. But he heard wrong. No such a sum was taken in.

To deal in round numbers it is going to cost the National league about $900,000 to run this year. Last year three clubs had a balance on the right side of the ledgers. The American league will expend $600,000—that is not too high—this year. Last year at least two clubs really made money. The "clash" last season was confined to Chicago, where the National league team outdrew the American league team, yet Comiskey made more money than he would have made in St. Paul. This year "war is on," and Gen. Sherman said: "War is hell."

Sure of a Visit.

"As a rule," said a prison warden, "a man is in a despondent mood during his first week's imprisonment. There are exceptions, however, as this incident will show.

"One Saturday, about dinner time, I was suddenly accosted by one of the new arrivals who had served the first week of his sentence.

"'I say,' he remarked, 'has a lady been asking for me at the gate?'

"I told him that if he had been wanted the governor would have sent for him.

"'Oh, very well. Keep cool!' he said. 'This is the first time in ten years I've put in a full week's work, and the old woman is sure to be at the gate for my wages.'

"And with a grin the cheerful one passed on."—London Answers.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Plainfield High School Athletic Association and the Newark Academy team will cross bats at Newark Saturday afternoon.

Although the grounds are in a muddy condition the Plainfield High School baseball team had a two hours' practice game on Martine's common yesterday afternoon. If the weather permits practice will be resumed today in order to get the boys in form for the game with North Plainfield High School tomorrow.

Oscar Crite, the regular pitcher of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, has been forced to relinquish his position on the nine owing to a severely sprained arm. Crite injured his arm in the opening game of the season played with Leal's School. Since then he has been substituting on third base. Armstrong, who has put up a great game lately in the box as Crite's substitute will fill his position for the present at least.

The Whittier School and the Y. M. C. A. nines played a clean game of base ball yesterday afternoon on the Plainfield avenue grounds and as a result the Y. M. C. A. boys lost not the contest but also the much coveted triangle, the athletic emblem of the institution. Despite the muddy condition of the diamond the full nine innings were played and the score at the end stood 11 to 6. Egan and McVoy for the Whittier's and Gavett and Phillips for the Y. M. C. A. were the batteries.

The new uniforms for the St. Mary team arrived Saturday and are considered by baseball enthusiasts to be the most handsome and serviceable suits ever worn in this city. They are of grey material with the name of the club across the shirt in red letters. The stockings are red and blue as are the extra jerseys also. The cap is grey with red trimmings. It was expected the suits would be worn last Saturday for the first but the inclement weather necessitated a postponement of the initial game.

GOLF.

As already stated the weather prevented the opening of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course last Saturday. The opening day has been fixed for next Saturday. In the meantime no one will be allowed to play on the course. It is believed that a few days of clear weather will put the course in the best of condition.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association will be held this week for the purpose of drafting an amendment to the constitution permitting the managers of the various teams to wear the athletic insignia.

BUT JAMES E. MARTINE WOULD ACCEPT IT, IF TENDERED TO HIM.

Interviewed Concerning His Reported Candidacy for the Gubernatorial Nomination of Democrats.

In response to inquiry of a Daily Press reporter, as to his reported candidacy for Governor of New Jersey? Mr. Martine said:

"Yes! Numerous friends in various parts of the State have urged me to to become a candidate. Now while I am in no sense seeking the nomination I would fail to be a true American did I not appreciate the suggested honor. To be Governor of this Commonwealth is a proud distinction. I hold that 'public office should not be too eagerly sought nor too lightly refused.'

"What support do you expect in the convention?" was asked.

"Oh! I have never given that a thought," returned Mr. Martine. "There are scores of capable men in New Jersey who will be pressed for governor. The Democratic party is not poor in material. I shall support with all the earnestness of my nature, the candidate of the Democratic convention, whom ever he may be."

SEASON'S SCHEDULE AT THE PARK GOLF CLUB.

Principal Competitions to Take Place on That Course During the Coming Summer.

PLAY BEGINS SATURDAY.

FIRST PLAY FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP WILL MARK FIRST DAY.

A Scratch Challenge Trophy Will be Played for Every Week After Decoration Day—Holiday Cup on the Holidays.

The coming season will see some exciting play on the links of the Park Golf Club. The members of the golf committee of the club, of which Senator Charles A. Reed is chairman, have already arranged for the principal events of the season's schedule. They will be practically the same as last year with a few additional minor events.

Chief of the trophies offered is the President's cup, which was offered by Charles W. McCutchen last season for the first. This cup must be won for two successive seasons in order to become the permanent property of a member. Last year, Edgar I. Serrell was the winner but business will probably prevent a regular attendance on his part this summer. There is play for that trophy every Saturday afternoon beginning Saturday and up to and including November 2. It is a handicap event, the members making the three best net scores scoring three, two and one point respectively for the cup. The member, who scores the most points during the season, is the next holder of the trophy.

For the scratch men, the competition of most interest is the scratch challenge trophy. A men's special handicap will be played on the afternoon of Decoration Day, and the player making the lowest gross score in that event will become the first holder of the challenge trophy. Play after that will by match play, the members playing every week in order of their challenges. Only those who make a score for eighteen holes not over ten strokes more than the score which last won the cup, will be eligible to challenge.

Another handicap competition of importance will be the play for the Holiday cup. Three preliminary rounds, eighteen holes, medal play, are scheduled for Decoration Day, Independence Day and Labor Day. The members, scoring the four lowest average net scores in at least two out of the three rounds, will qualify for the semi-finals, match play, Election Day. The finals will either be played on the afternoon of that same day or on Thanksgiving Day.

If enough of the young woman of the club are regular players at the course as spring advances, it is probable that a trophy, to be competed for on terms similar to those under which the President's cup is offered, will be put up for them.

It was originally planned to open the course last Saturday, but the heavy rain prevented. Play will now begin Saturday of this week with the first day's play for the President's cup. In connection with this, the handicap ball sweepstakes, arranged for last Saturday, will also take place. The handicaps of the club have been entirely revised and will be announced Saturday.

To Arrange for Bayonne Trip.

At the next meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association, which is to be held Monday, May 6, the committees appointed to make arrangements for attend the Bayonne parade, will give their final report. The manner in which the silver hose carriage is to be taken to Bayonne will then be made known. This meeting will be the last which President Saltzman will attend as he leaves shortly for Europe to remain an indefinite period.

High Scholarship Recognized.

Miss Sarah E. Schuyler, of La Grande avenue, salutatorian of the class of '97, Plainfield High School, has received a very flattering recognition of her high scholarship in her course at Bernard college. She has recently been appointed Latin teacher in the Horace Mann High School. This school is under the control of Columbia University.

New Barn Completed.

Woodhull & Martin's handsome new barn on Washington avenue is completed and the firm has taken possession of it. They not only stable their horses and wagons, but all goods consigned to them are taken there and unpacked before being delivered to the store.

RETURN TO PASTORATE.

Reception Given in Honor of Rev. John McMurray at Monroe Avenue Church.

In honor of his return to the pastorate of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Rev. John McMurray was tendered a pleasant reception by his congregation last evening. Sociability was the feature of the occasion and the large number present spent several hours in conversation and in congratulating Mr. McMurray.

In the way of entertainment Miss Charlotte Aldrich rendered a number of pleasing selections on the piano in her usual excellent manner. The serving of refreshments terminated the evening's enjoyment.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. I. P. Larue, chairman; Mrs. Manefield Smith, Mrs. Stephen Higham, Mrs. Wm. Grannatt, Mrs. Charles Wenzel, Mrs. Jones and Miss M. E. Brower.

SECOND NIGHT OF THE FAIR.

THE PUBLIC STILL TURNS OUT FOR THE EFFORT OF THE GERMANS.

Much Interest Shown in the Contests—Many Visitors Expected at the Fair Tonight.

The success, which crowned the efforts of the committee in charge of the Gesang and Turn Verein fair on the opening night, seemed to be continued at the affair last evening.

Despite the fact that a number of entertainments of various sorts were held in this vicinity last night, there was little appreciable decrease in the size of the crowd attending the fair. As on Monday evening Prof. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra furnished the music for the dancers, who occupied the floor continuously throughout the evening.

Spirited rivalry was exhibited by the contestants for the several prizes offered. The friends of each candidate used their endeavors to help as best they could by increasing the contributions. The refreshment table was well patronized, as was also the bowling alleys.

At one end of the hall a large blackboard was raised for the purpose of recording the vote cast for the most popular member of the society. The winner in this contest will receive a gold headed cane.

This evening the N'deutcher Turner Bund, Arbeiter, Hebrew and Gut Heil Societies, of Paterson, and the Turn Verein, of Passaic, are expected to attend. The programme promises to be of special interest.

NEW DYNAMO.

Now Being Installed at Power House of Local Electric Light Company.

The new dynamo recently purchased by the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company is being installed at the electric light station. The work is in charge of Cornelius E. Siminson.

The machine was made by the Ball-Wood Engine Compauy, of Elizabeth, and has all the Westinghouse Company's patent attachments. It is known as the vertical cross compound engine.

As soon as the dynamo is in running order it will perform the work of all the other engines used in the lighting service.

Plans for the Inn.

In the event of the Mountain Park Inn being acquired by the New York and Philadelphia capitalists represented by S. D. Drake, the hostelry will be made one of the best equipped in the State. The conveniences will be modern in every way and nothing will be left undone which might add to its popularity. The latter is an assured fact when it is known that J. H. Staats, of the Kensington, will assume charge. In order to make the inn more easy of access, a bus will make hourly trips from the trolley terminus during the entire season.

Put Teachings Into Practice.

There will be an interesting meeting of the Girl's Friendly Society of Grace P. E. church, Monday evening, April 29, at which time the members will put into practice the lectures on "first aid to the injured" which were recently given to them at the hospital. There is still one lecture to be given to close the series. The young women have exhibited a marked interest in the lectures and they will be a source of much help to them.

New Topic Cards Issued.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church has issued new topic cards, which will be given out at the meeting Friday evening. It is expected that President Drake will announce his committees at that time.

Somewhat Premature.

The last issue of Fire and Water, a weekly journal published in New York, contains an item to the effect that "Plainfield, N. J., will build a municipal water works."

TRYING TO RELEASE SEES FROM QUARANTINE.

HOUSE IS NOW GUARDED.

CRANFORD BOARD OF HEALTH IS FIRM ON THE SUBJECT.

Treasurer of the Church Claims That Members are Being Persecuted—Entrance to See Residence Denied to Others of That Belief.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, April 24—A determined effort has been made to secure the withdrawal of the quarantine from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. See, the Holly street Christian Science healers, who visited the home of Mr. and Mrs LeRoy J Ellis, of Fanwood, whose daughter, Ida, recently died of diphtheria. Benjamin F. Bailey, treasurer of the Christian Science church, of this place, appeared before the Board of Health yesterday and demanded the withdrawal of the quarantine. He insisted that Mr. and Mrs. See are being persecuted, and he made a threat to institute legal proceedings if his wish was not granted. Dr. MacConnell, president of the Board of Health, refused to grant the request until next Sunday evening.

Mrs. A. C Plum, of Casino avenue, one of the members of the Christian Science church, attempted to enter the See home yesterday. She was held up and was obliged to converse with the prisoners from a distance. All day yesterday members of the church tried to find Secretary Crane, of the Board of Health, and persuade him to remove the quarantine, but he could not be found. Dr. McConnell examines the healers and their children daily. The See family say they are willing to abide by the law, but hope to see it eventually brought to conform with science and health. There was some talk last evening of removing the healers to the detention hospital if they attempt to escape from their home.

The operation was very successful, and it is believed that when he is discharged he will be permanently cured. Mr. Maxson, of this city, was present at the operation.

Heard From the Bride.

Miss Alice Higgins, of West Front street, received a letter from Mrs. Charles Warde, yesterday, saying that she and her husband were to arrive at San Francisco last Monday afternoon. Mrs. Warde was formerly Miss Edith Hulburt, of West Front street. She wrote that they had enjoyed the trip very much.

RANKS ARE THINNING OUT.

THE MEMBERSHIP OF VETERANS IS SLOWLY DECREASING.

Members of Winfield Scott Post Recalled Reminescences of Former Days in the Post.

The meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held last evening took the form of a memorial meeting, the members relating reminescences of the history of the post since organization.

Past Commander James Atwood, of Trenton, was present, and made an address in which he reviewed the list of deceased comrades. It appears that since the post was organized forty-seven comrades have passed away, seven dying during the past year. Mr. Atwood related many personal incidents in connection with the lives of the dead comrades and told how faithfully they had worked for the cause of the Grand Army.

Nearly every one of the veterans present made a few remarks on the subject, and every one seemed to realize that the members are rapidly falling away from the ranks. Among those who spoke were Commander Berg, Past Commanders W. C. Smith, I. L. McVoy, M. C Dobbins, C. B. Stephens and Comrades V. W. Nash and Albert Perry. The character of the meeting was appropriate, in view of the approaching observance of Memorial Day.

Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS MET.

Held Conference With Chairmen of Association Committees Regarding Y. M. C. A. Work.

The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. and the chairmen of the various committees connected with the association met last evening for the purpose of conferring in regard to the work to be mapped out for the ensuing year. The discussion which followed was very profitable for all concerned, many helpful suggestions being made.

Previous to the conference, the directors and chairmen were tendered a supper by the president, Stephen Cahoone. The women in charge were Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, Mrs. Roger F. Murray, assisted by J. W. Gavett, chairman of the social work committee. The beautiful floral display was from the conservatory of C. W. McCutchen.

JUNIOR EXHIBITION.

Boys of The Y. M. C. A. Showed Their Ability in The Gymnasium.

The spring gymnastic exhibition of the junior department of the Y M.C.A. was held yesterday afternoon. A large number of spectators were present. The boys gave a meritorious exhibition of the work accomplished during the year and by means of gymnastic moves showed the manner in which they are physically developed.

At the conclusion of the exercises, medals were given to Everitt Sherwin, for class championship, and to Edmund Templin for class attendance. Luther Shepperd, Everritt Sherwin, Albert Aalholm, Irwin Leland and Francis Anderson were awarded the official association button for excellency in athletic events.

PASTOR'S ANNIVERSARY.

Congregation of Calvary Baptist Church Will Celebrate That Event.

The congregation of Calvary Baptist church will celebrate the third anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. Scott Wallace by appropriate exercises, commencing this evening and continuing tomorrow and Friday evening. Speaking, music and refreshments are the features of the programme arranged.

The pastors of the churches in Plainfield and vicinity are invited to attend. Prof. Wm. Johnson, leader of the choir, will conduct the musical exercises. BURGLARS WORK WITH SUCCESS IN DUNELLEN.

Entered General Store of Postmaster Dealaman—Escaped With $200 Worth of Booty.

NO ONE HEARD THEM.

CLERK FOUND WINDOW SMASHED WHEN HE WENT TO WORK.

Included in the Booty Were Fifty Umbrellas, Quantity of Cigars and Neckwear—Two Previous Attempts to Rob Store.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, April 24—After several ineffectual attempts, burglars succeeded last night in entering the general store of Postmaster Adam Dealaman and getting away with goods valued at about $200. The robbery was not discovered until Mr. Dealaman's clerks opened the store this morning.

Railroad Detective Wm. Dougherty was immediately notified and, after making an investigation, declared the work was evidently that of a gang of tramps from Bayonne and Elizabeth, who have been infesting the neighborhood of the Greenbrook tanks for the last week. The authorities in all towns along the Jersey Central Railroad have been given a description of the stolen goods and will apprehend anyone found trying to dispose of them. Among the articles taken were fifty umbrellas, a large quantity of cigars and a few dozen neckties.

Entrance was effected by smashing the glass in a front window. In this way a burglar alarm system, connecting the store with Mr. Dealaman's house directly in the rear, was not disturbed. The burglars made their exit the same way.

In two previous attempts to rob the store, Mr. Dealaman was awakened by the alarm, and both times exchanged shots with the burglars. In shooting at a man who he detected working at a rear door one night last September, Mr. Dealaman narrowly escaped with his life. A bullet from the burglar's pistol passed directly over his head and buried itself in the wall of his room. A second bullet struck the side of the house but a few feet from him.

The next morning two men were captured by Constable Polhemus at Lincoln, who it was thought were implicated in the attempt to rob Dealaman's store and also several other places the same night. They gave their names as James Ryan, James Murray of Philadelphia. They were tried at New Brunswick a few weeks ago and were sentenced by Judge Strong to two years in State prison.

Special Train for Firemen.

In connection with the contemplated trip to be taken to Bayonne by the Warren Engine Company May 15, there has been a proposition advanced to run a special train in order to accommodate a number of firemen from Somerville and other points up the road, who are desirous of taking the trip.

Home From Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly, who were married in Grace M. E. church, Wednesday evening, April 17, have returned from their bridal trip. They were the guests of the bride's parents yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their home in New Market.

Rains Injured Foundation.

The recent heavy rains played havoc with the work of constructing a foundation for the new glove factory on Washington avenue, a portion of the foundation being washed away. The work is now well underway and no further trouble is expected.

Repairing Roadbed.

Borough Street Commissioner Emmons had a gang of men at work yesterday repairing the Lincoln place roadbed at the intersection of Duer and Grove streets. Fine crushed stone was used with good effect at these points.

In Justice Mattison's Court.

A summons has been issued by Justice Mattison in a case on contract brought by George Butscher assignee of Theo. Zeller against John Brucher, Jr. The writ is returnable Monday afternoon.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Charlotte M. Beekman to Samuel T. Saums, of Clinton avenue. The wedding to take place in June.

Communion Service.

The Communion service at the Crescent Avenue church will be observed Sunday, May 5, instead of next Sunday.

CONSUL DISCHARGED.

Up In The Borough Court Again On The Charge of Disorderly Conduct.

Recorder Doud at the borough court last evening gave a hearing to John Consul, an Italian, for whom a warrant had been issued charging him with disorderly conduct in the fruit store of James Yaumzza, on Somerset street.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., appeared for the prisoner and contended that inasmuch as the alleged conduct had occurred on private property and that no complaint had been entered, there was no case against his client.

This view was accepted by the Recorder, who discharged the prisoner. Consul was before the court last week on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and was discharged. For the same offense, James Yaumzza, the alleged proprietor, was fined $10.

PICTURED WORK IN AFRICA.

MISS MAIR SPOKE AT MISSIONARY LEAGUE TEA.

Given by Women of Trinity Reformed Church at Home of Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Yesterday Afternoon.

The members of the Missionary League of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church and their friends spent a profitable afternoon yesterday at the home of Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., 59 Jackson avenue. It was the second tea of the season, given by the League, and while the inclement weather detained many, a goodly number came between the hours of 3:30 and 5:30 o'clock.

Miss Rachel Mair, a returned missionary from Africa, was present and told her listeners the condition of the uncivilized African, and how wonderfully God had blessed the work of the mission of which she is the superintendent. The first year the school numbered four, now there are thirty, all believers in Christ. They are eager and quick to learn to read, write, sew and cook. Miss Mair impressed all with her earnestness in the Master's work, which was evidenced by the many questions asked her concerning her life among the Africans.

After Miss Mair's talk, an invitation was given to adjourn to the dining room, which was made attractive by a pleasing decoration with flowers, red being the prevailing color, and a table from which light refreshments were served. Mrs. Salmon C. Baker and Mrs. O. W. Dunham poured tea, while Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle, Mrs. Elias H. Bird, Mrs. T. R. VanZandt and Mrs. Edward J. Cooley served refreshments.

TROLLEY EXTENSION.

Getting Ready to Advance the Johnson Syndicate Trolley Line.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 24.—Contractor Michael Hurley will commence constructing the extension of the Trenton, Lawrenceville and Princeton this week. On the ground ready for use are six car loads of ties, two car loads of rails and twelve miles of copper wire, which is four times larger in diameter than the ordinary wire. Search is being made in the northern part of the city for an available site for the passenger station.

Want Red Lights.

Some complaints have been made in the borough because lights have not been placed at night on Somerset street near the points where the gutters have been torn up. There are some ugly pitfalls at present on the east side of the street between Manning avenue and Vine street. The suggestion has been made that much danger can be avoided by placing a few red lights in that section.

Ugly Spot for Pedestrians.

Much annoyance has been caused to pedestrians by an ugly spot in the side walk on the east side of Liberty street between Fourth and Fifth streets. A few years ago the flagging was removed from this point in order to repair a driveway and it has never been replaced. The result has been that many have taken bad falls and travellers in general have suffered much inconvenience.

Association Doing Well.

There was a meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association Monday evening at which time $6,200 in loans in the forty-ninth series were confirmed. This association is prospering and doing an increasing business constantly.

ELLIS LAD IS DEAD; ANOTHER CHILD ILL.

Fears Also Entertained That the Four Year Old Son Is Developing the Dread Disease.

ANXIETY IN HOUSEHOLD.

DIPHTHERIA LEFT WILLIAM ELLIS BEFORE HE DIED.

No More Christian Science in the Ellis Family—Best of Medical Treatment is Now Being Given—Mrs. Ellis' Mother There.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 24.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy J. Ellis, of Forest avenue, is again afflicted. William Ellis, their son, who has been critically ill with diphtheria, died last night at 10:50 o'clock. Dorothy, the daughter who is ill with the same disease, is not so well today and there is much anxiety concerning her. James, the baby boy, a year and a half old, developed diphtheretic symptoms this morning. The condition of the other son, LeRoy, four years old, is not normal today and fears are entertained that he may develop the disease. It is, indeed, a sad household, and the bereaved family have the deepest feelings of sympathy of a host of friends.

During the past few days William was not so well and he seemed to be gradually getting weaker. Yesterday the diphtheria left him entirely and the physicians who have been in attendance give the cause of death as paralysis of the heart and stomach. He was taken ill Thursday, April 11, and almost from the start he had medical attendance including the use of anti-toxine.

The funeral services of William will be held tomorrow morning at Hillside Cemetery. Rev. E. M. Rodman will officiate. Mrs. F. C. Maury, mother of Mrs. Ellis, who lives at Nashville, Tenn., has arrived at the Ellis home and she will probably accompany the remains of the children to Nashville where they will be buried. If it is possible arrangements will be made to have Mrs. Ellis go south at the same time. The remains will be placed in hermetically sealed caskets and Undertaker George Cole, of Plainfield, is making arrangements to ship the caskets south.

All Christian Science has been laid aside and has given place to the best of medical treatment. No efforts are being spared to save the other children and to fight the dread disease that has taken such a strong hold on the family. Mrs. Ellis has been untiring in her efforts and she has scarcely been able to obtain rest neither day or night for a number of days past. Fears are entertained that her strength may fail completely so severe has been the tax on her energy. Mr. Ellis is doing all that is possible and with the assistance of others it is hoped that they may soon get out of their trouble.

ABOUT THE MEETING.

Will be for Those Who Signed Cards During the Recent Evangelistic Meeting.

The service to be given in the First Baptist church Sunday evening, under the leadership of F. H. Jacobs, will not be a union service in the usual sense of the term, but for the assembling of the eight or nine hundred persons, who during the recent evangelistic movement, signed cards declaring their intentions of living a better life. It is thought a similar meeting, held once a month under competent leaders, will be the means of keeping the redeemed ones more steadfast. It is to be hoped the ministers of the city will act in unison in the matter and assist in their continuance. There is no committee in charge of Sunday evening's meeting, it being a kind of spontaneous affair.

Permit for Big Building.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane today granted the necessary permit for the erection of Smalley Brothers three-story brick building on North avenue. The plans were drawn by Frederick L. Lancaster. John Kirch will do the carpentry work and William C. Smith will construct the masonry.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Thomas Jefferson as "Rip Van Winkle" is announced with great pleasure by Manager Meza Edwards to appear at Music Hall tomorrow night. It has been supposed for years that when Joseph Jefferson retired from the stage, which he was forced to do last season on account of illness, that there was no one to succeed him, and that perforce the old play must be put away. But the success of his son, Thomas, last season, is but another proof that no man is indispensable, no man whose place cannot be filled. Thomas Jefferson as "Rip" proved to be a capable, painstaking actor and one that would soon follow in his illustrious father's footsteps. He gives to the part of "Rip" the same delicate touch that has made it so famous by his father. His accent, gestures, intonation and stage business are all the exact copy of the original and he could not have had a better example to follow. Thomas Jefferson may not be first, but he is certainly in "the very first line" as an interpreter of "Rip Van Winkle."

* * * * *

The big London, New York and Chicago production of "Quo Vadis" under the management of F. C. Whitney and Edwin Knowles," will be the closing attraction at Music Hall, Thursday, May 2. As is well known to most people, "Quo Vadis" is a dramatization of Henryk Sienkiewicz' wonderful narrative of the time of Nero. All of the resources of the theatre will be employed to make the production worthy of the book which it proposes to bring visually before the public.

* * * * *

The story of the south, the songs of the south, the scenery of the south, all incorporated in Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's immortal drama "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the attraction "par excellence" that will be offered for "Mique" Muldowney's benefit April 30. The version now running at the Academy of Music, New York, will be seen, and clothed in scenic splendor and a dazzling array of musical, vocal, instrumental and terpsichorean features.

He Kept His Leg.

Twelve years ago J. W. Sullivan, of Hartford, Conn., scratched his leg with a rusty wire. Inflammation and blood poisoning set in. Then the best doctors urged amputation, "but," he writes, "I used one bottle of Electric Bitters and 1½ boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg was sound and well as ever." For Eruptions, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Sores and all blood disorders Electric Bitters has no rival on earth. Try them. L. W. Randolph will guarantee satisfaction or refund money. Only 50 cents.

Mrs. Amos Gray, of Elmwood place, has been detained at home for several days by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Boice, of New Brunswick, have been visiting Plainfield relatives for a short time.

Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, who has been detained at home by illness, has recovered.

Lewis DeCamp, of West Front street, who has been quite ill for two weeks past, is now much improved and hopes to be out soon

—Those famous little pills, DeWitt's Little Early Risers will remove all impurities from your system, cleanse your bowels, make them regular. L. W Randolph.

LOOMIS GOING ABROAD.

Venezuelan Minister Ill—Government Has Confidence In His Actions.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Francis B. Loomis, United States minister to Venezuela, has arrived in Washington. He called upon Secretary Hay at the state department during the day. Mr. Loomis elaborated the statements contained in his reports as to his relations with the Venezuelan government and the political conditions of the country. The general tenor of his statement was that there has been no appreciable change in Venezuela since his last interview with President Castro, when the wishes of the United States government respecting the issues between the two countries were set out.

One result of Secretary Hay's talk with Minister Loomis was to confirm him in his understanding that the minister has done nothing to warrant a withdrawal of the confidence of the state department. On the contrary, it is said, the minister has made it clear that at every point in his negotiations with the Venezuelan government he has faithfully and accurately followed the instructions laid down by the state department, which is consequently responsible for everything that has occurred as a result of the minister's actions. The Venezuelan government, it appears, manifests no hostility against this country, and the resentful feeling has found no expression outside of private and unofficial quarters. There is no intimation that any official attention has been paid to the interviews attributed to Mr. Loomis, and it is understood that the Venezuelan authorities are quite content to let the matter pass with the denials given by the minister.

The minister is in ill health, and Mrs. Loomis also is far from robust, and they will go to Europe to recuperate at Carlsbad. During his absence he will have ample opportunity to make his plans. Meanwhile the United States legation at Caracas will remain in charge of Mr. Russell, the secretary of the legation, who will act as charge.

Jersey Central Settlement.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The Central Railroad of New Jersey has agreed with the representatives of the trainmen on its lines on a new wage scale for the men. This agreement includes baggagemen, brakemen, switchmen, drillers, flagmen and others employed in the yards as well as those on the road. By the new scale head baggagemen on the Philadelphia run will receive $2.20 and their assistants $2.10 a day. Philadelphia brakemen will receive $2 and $1.80. On freight trains the flagmen will receive $1.85 and the brakemen $1.83 per hundred miles. On the Jersey City and Mauch Chunk division flagmen will receive $1.95 and brakemen $1.90 per hundred miles. On the local division the wages are to be the same as those on the Mauch Chunk runs.

Southern Crops Damaged.

CHARLESTON, April 24.—The cold wave apparently has not affected the cotton crop in Greenville, Spartanburg and other counties of the Piedmont because what seed had been planted was not yet up, but disastrous results are reported from some sections of the low country. In Hampton county, which is very near the coast, vegetables, fruit, corn and especially cotton have been seriously damaged, if not destroyed. Many farmers are now plowing up their cotton, some replanting with cotton and others sowing food crops. Cotton seed is scarce.

Magee's Executors Will Not Pay.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—The executors of the estate of the late C. L. Magee have determined that the claim of Dr. Walter C. Browning for the sum of $190,000 for professional services during the illness of the senator will have to go to the orphans' court of Allegheny county and be passed upon by that body before the bill is settled. H. S. A. Stewart, one of the executors of the estate, said that the bill was beyond reason and that the people who had charge of the estate would have to contest it in order to vindicate themselves.

Mormon Missionaries.

BOSTON, April 24.—Twenty-eight missionaries of the Mormon church militant took ship today on the New England for Liverpool, where instructions are waiting for them and whence they will scatter to their posts of duty. Some will stay in England, some will go to Scandinavia, but by far the greater part of them will be stationed in Germany. Most of the party came from Salt Lake City in charge of Elder Roscoe E. Grover.

Found Guilty of Insurance Fraud.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Dr. Richard Jahr, Undertaker Necker and Thomas J. Kelly of Union Hill, N. J., charged in the Hudson county court with conspiring to defraud the Colonial Life Insurance company by insuring the life of Anthony Whiston when he was dying, were found guilty at Jersey City. The case had occupied 11 trial days. The men were remanded.

Half a Month of Fog.

NANTUCKET, Mass., April 24.—The foggy weather and high easterly winds which have prevailed here for the past 15 days continue, the fog being very dense. A large fleet of coasters caught in the sound during the northeast gale of the 15th are still riding at anchor near Handkerchief lightship. All are short of provisions.

LIU'S TROOPS RETIRE

Scouts Find No Gathering of Chinese In Kalgan District.

ALLIES REACH SHANSI UNOPPOSED.

Germany's Attitude In China Not Correctly Reported—Imperial Edict Promulgated Favoring Reform.

BERLIN, April 24.—The German war office has received the following advices from Count von Waldersee, dated Peking, April 23:

"Patrols sent out for the Kalgan district found no gathering of Chinese troops there. Li Hung Chang informs me that General Liu's troops retired into the province of Shansi last Wednesday.

"The execution of the murderer of Captain Bartsch of the Second German infantry will take place at the scene of the crime."

In a second dispatch Count von Waldersee says:

"The columns under General Bailloud and General Kettler have arrived at the great wall, the boundary of the province of Shansi, without opposition."

With reference to the assertion cabled from the United States that Germany has adopted an uncompromising attitude in the matter of Chinese indemnity the National Zeitung says: "It should be borne in mind that Germany's whole bearing hitherto shows how much she desires to re-establish order in China as soon as possible."

A Reform Decree.

SHANGHAI, April 24.—An imperial decree has been issued appointing a board consisting of Prince Ching and Prince Li Hung Chang, the Chinese plenipotentiaries; Yung Lu, Kun Kang, Wang Wen Shao and Lu Chuan Lin, with Lui Kun Yi and Chang Chi Tung as coadjutors, to inquire fully into the question of reforms, to select those most feasible and important for the safety and welfare of the empire and report the matter to the emperor, who, after returning to Peking and obtaining the approval of the dowager empress to the suggested reforms, will issue rescripts in accordance therewith. Another decree orders Yu Yin Lin to resign the governorship of the province of Kwangsi and that Li Ching Si, treasurer of Yunnan province, be appointed to succeed him.

Red Cross For Heroines.

PEKING, April 24.—Sir Ernest Satow, British minister to China, has formally presented the Red Cross to Miss Saville and Miss Chapin, American missionaries, for their conspicuous services during the siege of the legations last summer.

A Country Without a Public Debt.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—On Sept. 21 next, the anniversary of the king's birthday, the government of Siam will begin the issue of paper currency, says Consul General King in a communication to the state department from Bangkok, Siam. The notes will be 5, 10, 20, 100 and 1,000 ticals, and by a royal decree will be declared legal tender throughout that country except at the office of the issue. The value of a tical in the United States coin is about 29.4 cents. The new currency, says the consul general, will be of great assistance to trade in that country, as there is much confusion and loss under the prevailing system. The consul general says that Siam has no public debt and that the treasury balance of that country is about 12,000,000 ticals at home and £350,000 in Europe.

General Wood Arrives.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Major General Leonard Wood, governor general of Cuba, and Mrs. Wood were passengers on the Ward line steamer Morro Castle, which arrived last evening from Havana. General Wood will go direct to Washington. His mission in Washington is said to be in connection with the committee from the Cuban constitutional convention. General Wood will present the committee to President McKinley before the president starts on his western tour. The committee will lay before the president the desires of the convention regarding the future relations between Cuba and the United States.

O'Connor Appointed Bishop.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Archbishop Corrigan has received a cable message from Rome confirming the rumor of the appointment of the Very Rev. John J. O'Connor to succeed the late Bishop Wigger as bishop of Newark. The cablegram, which was sent by the Very Rev. Mgr. Doane of Newark, at present on a visit to Rome, also contained the announcement that the Very Rev. William H. O'Connell, at present rector of the American college at Rome, had been appointed by his holiness to become bishop of Portland, Me.

National League Games.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Two games of baseball were played under National league auspices yesterday. Rain and wet grounds prevented other games scheduled. At St. Louis Pittsburg lost to the home team by the following score:

St. Louis	2	0	0	0	0	0	5	3	*—	10
Pittsburg	0	2	1	0	0	1	0	0	0—	4

At Philadelphia Boston went down before the Quakers. The score:

Boston	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	1	0—	3

Negroes Emigrate.

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 24.—One hundred negroes left this city yesterday for the coal mines of West Virginia. Within the past year several hundred miners have been induced to leave. On account of the emigration of a large number of negroes and the removal of others from the country districts to the towns farm labor in this section is very scarce. This has caused some farmers to prepare for only half a crop this year.

The Red Hat Due Saturday.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Count Stanislaus Colacichi, the noble guard from the Vatican who is bringing the red hat to Cardinal Martinelli, is due to arrive in New York next Saturday and will reach here in time to present his credentials on Sunday. The Rev. Dr. Rooker, secretary to the apostolic delegate, will go to New York to meet the bearer of the red hat on his arrival.

The New Apostolic Delegate.

ROME, April 24.—It is understood here that Mgr. Francois Tarnassi, the present internuncio at The Hague, has been selected as apostolic delegate to the United States.

SANTIAGO IS EXCITED

Republicans Charged With Preventing Registration.

HUNDREDS DENIED THEIR RIGHTS.

General Whitside Orders a Thorough Investigation and Is Bitterly Assailed For Military Interference With Civil Affairs.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 24.—Intense partisan excitement has been aroused here by an alleged attempt of the Republican party to exclude members of the National party from the registration places. It is asserted that hundreds of voters were refused registration certificates on various pretexts and that the registration boards gave preference to Republicans over Nationalists who were ahead of them in the line.

The principal cause of protest rises from the qualification requiring a voter to be able to read and write, the tests being made without regard to age. Many fairly educated applicants were refused certificates because they had misspelled certain words.

Ten men in one precinct declare that they were refused the privilege of registering because they were unable to present birth certificates showing their exact ages, although there could be no question that they were old enough.

General Whitside has given orders to the commander of the rural guards to visit the registration offices and to investigate these charges. The city authorities object to this, declaring that it amounts to military interference, and they protest vigorously. At one registration office the police refused to admit Major Shelley, commander of the rural guards; but, as he was acting under General Whitside's orders, he disregarded the police, entered the office and received the complaints of the minority of the board. The other members left the office, but returned later.

The Republican press bitterly attacks the action of the military governor, asserting that it is an interference and that the military are in alliance with the Nationalists.

Late in the afternoon the leaders on both sides conferred with General Whitside, and he assured them of his absolute impartiality, insisting that they should display equal fairness.

The June election is regarded as very important because of its probable influence upon the future election of delegates to the constitutional convention.

Postmaster Harrison Out.

HAVANA, April 24.—Postmaster Harrison has resigned, and Carlos Hernandez, a Cuban, has been appointed his successor. Senor Hernandez will assume charge next month. Mr. Harrison will re-enter the service of the United States.

An Army of 76,000 Men.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—It has been determined to increase the regular army to approximately 76,000 men and to leave it at that number unless conditions in the Philippines should make more troops necessary. The president and Secretary Root have reached this conclusion, and the details will be worked out by the secretary and General Miles. The number of officers appointed will be as originally contemplated. The artillery corps will be increased to its full strength of 18,000 men. Some time ago it was announced that the companies of cavalry would contain 65 instead of 85 enlisted men, and it is expected the infantry companies also will be reduced to bring the total to the figure agreed upon. It has not yet been determined what proportion of the troops shall be stationed in the Philippines, although it is known that a large force will be needed there for some time.

Oil Better Than Politics.

AUSTIN, April 24.—Former Governor James S. Hogg, who purchased a small tract of oil land south of Beaumont about ten days ago for $75,000, had an offer of $700,000 cash for the property. He declined the offer. Mr. Hogg is now rated as a millionaire. He has had phenomenal success in the new oilfields and is at the head of several of the biggest enterprises on foot there. In addition to his holdings near Beaumont he owns a large tract of land near the mouth of the Brazos for which he paid $244,000 a few days ago. This tract is also oil land, and it has increased in value more than 25 per cent since Mr. Hogg purchased it. The big ex-governor says he is out of politics for good.

Women Publicly Whipped.

SUFFOLK, Va., April 24.—As a result of a crusade begun by the city authorities against disreputable women two of them, Carrie Halmer and Lavinia White, yesterday morning received 20 stripes from a whip wielded by the chief of police, John W. Ames, in the city hall. The women trembled with pain as the officer laid on the whip with all his strength, but they did not cry out. A curious crowd looked on at the unusual proceedings. After the cowhiding was over the officials ordered the women to leave town at once, with the warning that each would get 50 stripes upon her back if she ever came back.

Monument to Perry In Japan.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The navy department has received a letter from Rear Admiral Remey, in command of the Asiatic station, making known his purpose to be present at the ceremony attending the erection of a monument to Commodore Perry at Kuribama, Japan, on July 14. The ceremony has something of an international aspect and is indicative of the kindly sentiment existing between Japan and the United States.

Coal Mine Abandoned.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 24.—Big mountain slope No. 2, employing 350 men and boys, has been permanently abandoned by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company because the expense of mining the coal has become too great.

Cunarder's Big Load.

LONDON, April 24.—The Cunard liner Saxonia, Captain Pritchard, which sailed from Liverpool yesterday for Boston, took 2,260 passengers, which is believed to be the largest number ever taken for Boston from Liverpool.

NEW YORK, April 24.—An arrival on the steamer Zeeland from Antwerp was the Rev. William G. Emanuel of Havana, who has just returned from founding a colony of Cuban negroes in Liberia.

A VILLAGE SINKING.

Inhabitants of Mayfield, Pa., In a State of Terror.

PITTSTON, Pa., April 24.—The mining village of Mayfield, north of this city, is sinking into the earth, and terror fills the helpless inhabitants. These crowd the streets, and they will fall into their mines with their homes.

Already many buildings have been destroyed. The Greek Catholic church, one of the largest buildings of the village, is ruined.

Fire has broken out, and the Hubjak building has been burned. It is feared that the continued settling of the ground will spread the flames.

The mines which underlie the village are owned by the Hillside Coal and Iron company, and two entire veins have caved.

The settling began, according to news which reaches this city, at an early hour yesterday morning, when the inhabitants were asleep. Houses rocked and trembled, and the people fled for their lives.

The cave in caused the roadbed of the Delaware and Hudson railroad to sink, and the rails are twisted out of shape. In the Russian school there was a panic. The interior walls of the schoolrooms rocked, and the plaster fell from the walls.

No fatalities have been reported. The town is a Russian mining settlement.

The citizens declare that pillars in the mines have been "robbed" of their deposits in violation of the state law.

All fires in the town have been put out as far as possible, and the people are living in the streets.

Water mains have burst, and the water supply has been cut off.

Suspected of Murdering His Children

CHARTRES, France, April 24.—Suspicion in the brutal murder of five children, aged respectively 14, 11, 7, 5 and 4 years, which occurred here at a farm in the neighborhood, now falls upon the father of the murdered children. It is suggested that the father murdered his children in a fit of drunken madness, as he spent the evening in drinking and as no trace of the alleged tramps has been found. It is a strange fact that while the children were killed with a hammer or bludgeon their father was only stabbed, and his wounds were slight. The knife with which these wounds were made belongs to the house, and a blood stained jacket belonging to Briere, the father of the murdered children, was discovered in the courtyard hidden under some straw. Briere was confronted with the corpses of his children late in the afternoon, and he was afterward arrested.

Dying Man's Queer Request.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 24.—Marcus A. Miller, educator, inventor and the author during his lifetime of several widely read political brochures, who has just died here, made an unusual request during his last hours. It was that the works of Colonel Robert Ingersoll be burned at his grave in Floral Park cemetery this afternoon under the direction of the Rev. Samuel Dunham immediately following the committal service. This act is designed by Mr. Miller to be an explicit public declaration of his absolute repudiation of Ingersoll's teachings and an open avowal of his renewed faith in Jesus Christ as his only hope of heaven.

Sealer Returns With Heavy Cargo.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 24.—The sealing steamer Terra Nova, the largest of the sealing fleet, returned from the icefloes last evening with 42,000 seals, the heaviest cargo for many years. She was frozen in the ice for two weeks, quite unable to escape. She reports that the steamer Virginia Lake has been similarly imprisoned for a month and is not yet clear of the ice.

Constitutional Convention Favored.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 24.—Chairman J. V. Smith of the Democratic campaign committee announces that Alabama has gone for constitutional convention in yesterday's election by a large majority. The vote was light throughout the state. On account of the large number of names on the ballot the count is proceeding slowly.

Chicago's Police Chief Resigns.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Chief of Police Joseph Kipley handed in his resignation last evening to Mayor Harrison. For some time it has been evident from statements made by the mayor that he did not intend to reappoint Chief Kipley, and as the appointment is to be announced next Monday the chief decided to take matters into his own hands.

ROBBERS STILL AT LARGE.

Express Company Says the Train Bandits Secured Little.

MEMPHIS, April 24.—Detectives have been at work at the scene of the daring train robbery on the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad near Iron Mountain crossing, Ark., Monday night, but no arrests have been made. It is stated by an official of the Wells-Fargo Express company that the bandits secured less than $300.

It is suspected that the men who perpetrated the robbery were in Memphis Monday night. A short time before the west bound train over the Kansas City road left at 8:30 o'clock Monday night two men approached the ticket window and asked for tickets to Bridge Junction. The ticket agent declined to sell them tickets to that point, stating that it was against the rules and that no trains stopped there. The men insisted on buying tickets, both appearing nervously anxious to get off on the outgoing Kansas City train. They stated that tickets were wanted for several persons.

The supposition is that the robbery was planned to take place at Bridge Junction and the robbers were the men who wanted tickets to that point Monday night, their purpose being to go to Bridge Junction on the Kansas City train and wait for the coming of the Choctaw express which reaches Bridge Junction about 12:03 a. m.

Ohio River Still High.

CINCINNATI, April 24.—While the Ohio river is reported as falling from Pittsburg to the mouth of the Big Kanawha, almost 300 miles, there is still much distress from that point to Cincinnati, about 200 miles. While alarming inquiries come from Ironton, Portsmouth, Huntington, Catlettsburg and intermediate points the weather bureau says the outlook is really encouraging and that the beginning of the end has come. Both passenger and freight trains on all the steam railways are arriving and departing as usual, although most of them are using suburban depots. On the west side the Coleraine avenue bridge was washed away yesterday. On the east side the Brackett Bridge company, which is constructing the new waterworks, suffered a heavy loss by its false woodwork being swept away. In the flooded districts in the southern, eastern and western parts of the city yesterday the trimmers of the street electric lights made their rounds in boats instead of wagons and had no trouble in reaching the lamps. The Cincinnati ball park, located in the Mill Creek valley, on the west side, is under water.

New Tax Law For Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., April 24.—The senate has passed the Chandler taxation bill by a vote of 20 to 8. This bill was passed by the house a week ago, and then it provided for the taxation of railroad, telegraph, telephone and express companies according to the ad valorem system instead of on their earnings, as they are taxed at present. As the senate passed the bill it provides for the taxation of railroad property only and was further amended so that a separate commission instead of the state tax commission shall assess the railroad property. The bill as passed by the house was to take the place of the railroad taxation measure passed by the legislature during Governor Pingree's regime and which was declared unconstitutional by the supreme court.

Woman on Trial For Murder.

NEW HAVEN, April 24.—Accused of the murder of her husband by poison intended for her paramour, Ann Maria Rathbun, a woman of middle age and the mother of four children, was yesterday placed on trial before Judge Elmer in the superior criminal court. A gathering of several hundred people, many of them women, filled the courtroom when the case was opened. The poisoning occurred on Dec. 20 last, when Rathbun and Hart were made violently sick by coffee from the latter's dinner pail, which it is alleged was filled by Mrs. Rathbun the night before. Hart was at first held in connection with the case, but was later released, after confessions of intimacy with Mrs. Rathbun, which led to his recent conviction. He was an interested spectator in court.

Coal Company Won.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 24.—The strike at the Prospect mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal company has ended in a victory for the company. The 1,200 employees went on a strike early last week because a jig tender in the breaker was discharged. The jig tender was ordered by the foreman to do some oiling. He refused, claiming he was not employed to do such work. Two other employees were then requested to do the work, but they, too, refused. They were also suspended. A committee of employees waited on the company officials with a view of bringing about a settlement, but the superintendent, Mr. Lathrop, said that under no circumstances would he take the discharged men and boys back, as their conduct was arbitrary and uncalled for.

A Millionaire's Will.

BALTIMORE, April 24.—The will of the late B. F. Newcomer, the millionaire financier of this city, who died March 30, has been filed for probate. The estate is valued at over $3,000,000. Relatives and friends are liberally provided for, and some of the principal public gifts are as follows: Home For Orphans and Friendless Children, Hagerstown, Md., $25,000; Maryland School For the Blind, $10,000, and Baltimore Association For Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, $10,000.

Bradley's Slayer Acquitted.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 24.—Attorney W. O. Nichols, who last Friday shot and killed Owen Bradley, a well known race horse owner and trainer, was acquitted on examining trial. Armed, Bradley searched the city six hours for Nichols. A woman over whom the trouble arose secretly warned Nichols by note. He was prepared and secured the first shot when the men finally met.

Italian Premier to Arbitrate.

GENOA, April 24.—The premier, Signor Zanardelli, has telegraphed the strikers here that he would arbitrate their differences with their employers if both sides agreed. Upon receipt of this communication the shipowners also wired Signor Zanardelli asking him to arbitrate the matter. The dock laborers at Genoa decided upon a general strike April 14.

LONDON, April 24.—A dispatch to The Daily Express from Rosario, Argentina, says that a cyclone has swept over Paraguay, destroying one town.

THE SESSION ENDED

New York Legislature Completes Its Work.

TAX RATE LOWEST SINCE 1855.

It Is Fixed at 1.20 Mills—In 1900 the Rate Was 1.96 Mills—North River Bridge Bill Passed.

ALBANY, April 24.—At 12:43 yesterday the senate adjourned sine die, the clock having been stopped at 11:59 a. m. The adjournment of the senate was taken while the assembly bill enabling ex-Assemblyman Edward C. Brennan and Assemblyman Rierdon to take the state law examination was being discussed. The senators who opposed the bill insisted on the lieutenant governor declaring the senate adjourned, so as to prevent the bill passing the senate.

The closing day of the assembly was in marked contrast to the last days in the lower house that have marked it for a number of years past. The chamber was not in gala attire, neither were there any presents on exhibition. The leaders of the assembly had wisely concluded to put an end to the giving of presents. There was no band in attendance, and at 10:07 o'clock, when Speaker Nixon's gavel fell, it marked the beginning of a legislative day of business. The calendar contained 17 bills, eight of them amending the revised charter of New York city. The calendar was taken up at once.

When the calendar was cleared, Mr. Frisbie, in behalf of the minority, extended thanks to Speaker Nixon for his fair and considerate treatment of the minority throughout the session. It was adopted by a viva voce vote loud enough to shake the roof of the capitol.

The legislature passed the annual tax levy bill fixing the rate for the fiscal year commencing Oct. 1 next at 1.20 mills. This is the lowest tax rate since 1855, and it will raise $6,806,699. The tax rate of 1.96 mills for the present year raised nearly $11,000,000.

The assembly again discussed the Raines bill to permit the New York and New Jersey Bridge company to build a terminal on West street, New York city. Mr. Bedell favored it and explained the intent and purpose of the proposed enabling act. Messrs. Harburger, Bell, L. W. Smith, Morgan, Davis, Everett and Duross opposed the measure.

The bill was put on its final passage and passed by a vote of 95 to 46. As it was passed by the senate Monday it now goes to the governor.

The bill permits the New York and New Jersey Bridge company to connect with its proposed bridge over the North river an elevated structure on West street between Fifty-ninth street and the Battery. It provides that the company must begin work before May 24 next and spend at least $250,000 in such work during the ensuing year. It permits the company to make connections by other structures, tunnels and viaducts with the approaches to the proposed New York and New Jersey bridge.

Foretold His Dying Day.

ROCHESTER, April 24.—Alva Hand of Wirth, Allegany county, is dead at his home. During life he was very superstitious. He predicted his death to the hour, having his coffin and tombstone in waiting. Several weeks ago Mr. Hand had a dream in which Death came to him and told him he must prepare to die. The next morning he began to prepare himself for the end, and after visiting a number of friends and saying goodby he ordered a tombstone and coffin from the village undertaker. The tombstone, fully engraved, giving April 20 as the date of death, was erected in the family plot at Dimick cemetery, while the coffin was delivered at his home. Hand died of paralysis late Saturday night, and his funeral took place as he had arranged yesterday. He was 80 years of age and had been for years one of the leading Allegany county farmers.

Vanderlip's Mission Abroad.

BERLIN, April 24.—It is ascertained here in financial circles that the mission of Mr. Frank Vanderlip, former assistant secretary of the United States treasury, who arrived in St. Petersburg early last week in the interest of improved business relations between the United States and Russia, has much wider bearings and involves a general study of the European financial situation, with special reference to the management of the foreign business of the National City bank of New York. It is also understood that while in St. Petersburg Mr. Vanderlip will confer with M. Adolf Rothstein, the well known Russian banker, and will feel the financial pulse with a view to floating a Russian loan in New York. He is expected to arrive in Berlin next week.

Governor Allen's Report.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The first annual report on the affairs of the island of Porto Rico, of which he is the executive, was presented to Secretary Hay yesterday by Governor Allen. It contains many interesting chapters and covers a wide range of subjects. A large portion of the report deals with the formation and operation of the civil government of Porto Rico and shows the status to which it has developed. Generally speaking, it claims the island to be in a prosperous condition.

Died on the Train.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 24.—Mrs. Margaret McDonald of Elizabeth, N. J., on her way to San Francisco to visit her son who is in business there, died on the St. Louis express last night soon after the train left Harrisburg. Her body was brought on to this city.

Excise Prosecutions.

OSWEGO, N. Y., April 24.—John Mullin, William E. Burke, Tifft Clarke and several others have been indicted by the grand jury for excise violations committed in Fulton, a no license town. Other indictments have been made against gamblers throughout the county.

Launching of the Biddle.

BATH, Me., April 24.—The torpedo boat Biddle, now building at the Bath Iron works, will be launched May 18. She will be christened by Miss Emily Butler Biddle of Philadelphia, a descendant of Captain Nicholas Biddle, for whom the boat is named.

Melbourne's Population.

MELBOURNE, April 24.—The census of Melbourne shows a population of 493,956, which is an increase of only 2,153 since the census of 1891.

Mr. Martine for Governor.

Although the time for choosing the gubernatorial candidates of the two leading political parties of New Jersey is still months away, two of Plainfield's citizens have already figured quite prominently as possibilities, one on the Republican ticket and one on the Democratic ticket. A month ago, the name of State Senator Charles A. Reed was discussed as the possible man to head the Republican ticket in the coming campaign. Only a very decisive denial from Senator Reed finally killed the rumor. Now the name of James E. Martine, more familiarly known as the "Farmer Orator," is given prominence as a possibility for the Democratic candidate for governor.

If the Democrats of New Jersey do tender their candidacy for the highest office in the State to our fellow-citizen, James E. Martine, it will be a great honor to Plainfield. There are few more enthusiastic and wholehearted Democrats in this or any other State than Mr. Martine. He has worked long and earnestly for the advancement of Democracy and while he has differed with some people concerning certain mooted questions, no one has doubted his allegiance to that cause.

Mr. Martine has never sought office and will not on this occasion. He has hosts of friends through the State, however, who would be glad to see him chosen as the gubernatorial candidate. Whether or not, however, they are sufficiently in force to carry his name before the State is a question. No one need expect to see Mr. Martine make any effort to win the nomination. If it comes his way, he will not decline it. If it should be that Mr. Martine is so honored, the Democrats of New Jersey will have a candidate whose honesty and integrity cannot be questioned and who will use every honorable means to lead his party to victory.

The union of the State and municipal elections in Plainfield, which has been brought about by the passage of the Anti-Spring Election law, will necessitate a revision of the rules governing the Republican primaries in this city. At present, the rules are unusually complicated and provide for a different manner of holding the primaries preceding the two elections. The scheme of enrollment, which was used for the first time last fall, did not find general favor in the Republican ranks and it is probable that some change will be made in it before the time for holding primaries comes round again.

The Court of Errors and Appeals has made public its reasons for its decision as to the constitutionality of the Anti-Spring Election act. Those who have the advantage of a legal education are able to get some idea of why the act is constitutional, but the bulk of the people are content to know that the highest court in the State has decided in favor of the law. Whether or not the people are pleased with the effects of the law will be better told next November.

The editor of The Madison Eagle, who so strongly defended the success of the Madison water works and electric light plant, is Fred S. Bardon. Mr. Bardon is one of the rising young men of that place and has worked hard to achieve his present position in that community. In addition to being editor of the weekly newspaper there, he is cashier of the national bank located in that place.

There will be no more wholesale dumping of waste paper into Green brook from the Madison avenue-Duer street bridge. When the circumstances were explained to the men who had done so, they readily agreed to give up the practice. They explained that they thought that it would do no harm as long as the water in the brook was high and the current strong.

Much interest has already been shown in the serial story which The Daily Press is now publishing. Those who did not secure the opening chapters, will do well to call at the Daily Press office at once as only a few copies of the Press for the first two days of the week now remain. The first installment of the story was published Monday.

The lateness of the spring this year has had its effect on the merchants of this as well as other cities. People are not inclined to buy unless they know of some special attraction The only way they can be informed is by judicious advertising.

Middlesex county is up in arms against the Somerset and Middlesex Traction Company. What is the matter with the local and county officials who allow such a state of affairs to come to pass?

As the weather interfered with the plans for last week, the local golf clubs will not open the spring season until Saturday of this week. The events which were scheduled to be held last Saturday were postponed a week.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

The vote polled in the various Congressional districts of this State last fall will give our Democratic friends somewhat of an idea of the contract they will have on hand next fall when they start in to elect a Governor. To be forewarned is said to be forarmed. Here is what they will run up against:

	Rep.	Dem.
First district	24.019	13.111
Second district	33.526	13, 85
Third district	22,898	17,174
Fourth district	22,186	16,180
Fifth district	23,850	18,678
Sixth district	27,588	22,744
Seventh district	23,867	13,534
Eighth district	21,505	12,221
Ninth district	18,519	16,017
Tenth district	1 ,822	22,210

On the face of the returns it looks like a pretty big proposition, but voters, like the courts, sometimes reverse themselves.—Trenton Times.

To Senator Kean belongs the credit of starting out to prove the vast possibilities that lie hidden in the broad expanse of Hackensack River meadow land. While others have been theorizing, forming companies and producing tempting reclamation plans on paper, Senator Kean has quietly purchased a large slice of this meadow land on Newark Bay north of Elizabeth, and his returns promise to be large.

He has filled in a large area with soil taken from the rapid transit tunnel in New York, and he is to frame this filled in section with wharves and docks. His next step is to secure from the War Department permission to build piers out to the channel in Newark Bay.

If the prospects are not entirely deceptive there is going to be a great future for this filled in section, and Bayonne and Greenville, which lie opposite this improved area, will be sure to reap benefits.

Some are even indulging in predictions about a coming bridge to connect Bayonne with Senator Kean's new meadow city.—Jersey City Journal.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

At a wedding in this vicinity not many days ago a young man had planned to follow the bridal couple to the station in a carriage and to advertise their wedding as much as possible. He had carefully hitched his horse in front of the house in which the ceremony was being held and only awaited the departure of the bride and groom. Finally they left and the young man then made haste to follow, but his desire was rudely balked. On the front seat of his carriage lay a large nut which had been removed from one of the axle wheels of the vehicle. By the time he had set matters aright the bridal couple were riding in the railroad car some miles from Plainfield.

"What is the name, please?" asked the man.

"Mrs. Goddard," replied the major.

The clerk consulted a big book of entries with penciled remarks opposite the names.

"You were to come right up, Maj. Goddard," he said. "But your wife said that perhaps it would be better for you to send up your card."

"YOUR WIFE SAID IT WOULD BE BETTER FOR YOU TO SEND UP YOUR CARD."

Goddard fumbled in his pockets; he had forgotten his cardcase.

"I have no card," he said, "but I will write one."

The clerk gave him a blank card and a pen.

The major's hands were cold and numb, and the pen slipped from his fingers and fell. The clerk gave it to him again.

"I shall go up without that formality," the major said, drawing himself up as if on parade. "What is the number of her apartment?"

"Fifty-six, at the top of the first flight—second door to the left."

The major decided to walk rather than to take the elevator, and he hastened to the stairway indicated by the clerk. He found that his wife had secured one of the best suites of rooms the hotel afforded. She met him at the door and received him in a most splendidly appointed private parlor. It was cozy, too; a lamp with porcelain green-lined shade stood on a center table surrounded by books, late papers and magazines not far from a cheerful grate fire.

"Come in, Rowland, and don't scold me," she said, throwing her shapely arms round his neck. "I know you must have been frightened when you missed me."

He found himself all of a tremble, and his voice refused to come to him readily. He could only press her to him convulsively as he moved towards the sofa and drew her down by his side. Despite her warmth of greeting he was unable to conquer the fears which had laid such a firm hold on him during his lonely ride.

"Why did you do this, Jeanne?" he managed to say, presently.

"Don't scold me," she repeated, but there was a certain reserve in her tone which made him feel that her words had only a perfunctory significance. Something seemed to whisper that he was on the eve of battle, but the war spirit was dead within him; he had the feeling of being conquered.

"Why did you have me meet you here?" he demanded.

"To prove your love for me, Rowland," she replied, and the smile which accompanied her words was the coldest he had ever seen on her face, and yet if but for its remote kinship to former smiles of hers he adored it.

"You never doubted my love, Jeanne; that is a certainty."

"Then I have had you come that we may agree on a plan of action," she said. She nestled nearer to him and took one of his cold hands and pressed it.

"I missed the money, too, Jeanne?"

"Oh, did you? Well, I may as well confess that this meeting is an afterthought, and I do think, if you care for me, that you ought to appreciate that."

"You intended, then, to desert me?"

"Yes, that was the intention forced on me."

"Forced on you?"

"Yes, I cannot go on at Lyndhurst as it is. You knew when I became your wife that I could not remain stationary—not progress. When I married you it was clearly understood that I was to be able to gratify certain desires that I frankly confessed had always had a firm hold on me. Well, your recent speculations have reduced us to Lyndhurst and a trivial income."

"But it will be secure," he rejoined, desperately.

"Oh, I don't doubt its security, Rowland, dear, but it is hardly more than these two hands and my brain used to earn. Oh, you can see what I mean! I am simply an ambitious woman. I want things. I want power, and I am going to get my desires through you, dear husband, or we must part company. I love you as much as any woman could love a man, but my ambition is at least half of me, and it will drag me away from you if you don't come to my assistance."

"Jeanne, you know I would do anything in my power to gratify you. I know I have violated part of our matrimonial contract, but I could not help things taking such an unexpected turn."

She stroked his hand caressingly and raised it to her warm, red lips.

"Listen to me," she began, laying her head on his broad shoulder. "I want to tell you something you do not know, then I shall propose a plan. You remember that Dr. Fleming, the famous English expert on heart troubles, came to see Blanche a month ago—the day before he returned to London."

"Yes, I remember that," said the major, wonderingly.

"Well, perhaps it was because he thought I looked as if I could keep a secret—and some one ought to know the truth—that he made an important disclosure to me. He was deeply concerned after he had examined Blanche and sent for me to meet him in the library. He then told me, and his face was actually pale, for he seemed to like her, that she had the most fatal case of 'aortic aneurism' he called it—an acute disease of the heart—that he had ever met with in all his experience."

"My God, you can't be serious!" exclaimed the major. "She looks so well—and yet, I remember, she is taking his medicines."

"Dr. Fleming explained that to all outward appearances she would be, even to the end, as healthy looking as a perfectly sound person. He says she cannot possibly live longer than two years, and that it is most likely that she will drop off sooner—at any moment. The least excitement or unusual exertion may kill her instantly."

"Does Blanche know of her condition?" asked the major, almost forgetting his own troubles in his vast sympathy for his ward.

"No; oh, no! Dr. Fleming said that the knowledge of it would only prey on her mind and hasten the end. He was afraid to tell you; he said men were apt to show so much concern over matters of that kind that patients would suspect the truth. I promised him faithfully not to hint it to a soul, so you must never mention it or let her suspect you are anxious about her."

"Can nothing be done?"

"Absolutely nothing; the medicine she is taking is just what she needs, and he even advised me not to have her consult any other doctor. I presume, considering the fact that he is such a great authority, his wishes, even on that score, ought to be respected."

"I presume so," responded the major; "but isn't it awful?" Then he came back to his own affairs almost with a start. He frowned and sat silently looking at the fire. It was as if he were wondering what connection this disclosure could have with his wife's strange flight. He gently expressed this idea to her presently.

"After I left you to-day I got to thinking about it," was her answer, and her fingers tightened on his. "Blanche has, as you know, about three millions in her own name."

"I know that," answered the major.

"When she drops off suddenly all that money will go legally to people she never saw, an aunt and cousins for whom she doesn't care a pin."

"That is the truth, Jeanne, but—"

"Please do not interrupt me, dear," pursued his wife, and she began stroking his hand again. "You told me that since you had taken charge of her affairs Blanche's money has more than doubled."

"Yes, I happened to invest it better than I did my own capital."

There was silence in the room for a moment. The muffled strains of the orchestra below stole up to their ears. The handsome woman had never thrown so much power of enchantment into her beautiful, long-lashed eyes as at this moment. She held his gaze as a reptile might that of its wondering, bewildered victim.

"Dear husband," she said, sweetly. "John Briscoe loved you as few men love their friends. Do you know that he would rather have you enjoy that money after his daughter's death than those people?"

"I don't know; I never thought about it, Jeanne."

"Well, I know he would want you to have it, and have it you must."

"I declare you mystify me."

"I have something else to say. Blanche was in love with you when I first met you. I knew it from the accounts you gave me of your visits to her. I used to think you were a fool not to have seen it. She loved you so much that—"

"O, how absurd!"

This is what a Brooklyn man—a painter—has to say concerning Ripans Tabules: "For over a year I had been greatly troubled with sick headache and such a nauseating taste in my mouth, arising from bad stomach and indigestion. I tried several kinds of remedies but found no relief. About four months ago I was doing some work in a friend's house and he asked me if I ever had taken any Ripans Tabules; he praised them so much that I thought I would try them. In the evening, when I went home, I stopped at the drug store and got a vial of Ripans Tabules and before going to bed I took two. In the morning when I woke up my head felt much clearer than it had for some time and then I took them according to directions one after every meal for about two months—and then I found that I was thoroughly cured of my complaints. I feel like a different man altogether now, and can not praise Ripans Tabules too much."
WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. COLLARS.

They Are Higher Than Ever and Much Trimmed.

Plain tulle cravats forming a chou in front have been abandoned. The part which goes about the neck is still of tulle, but a wired lace butterfly is placed at each side, or a tuft of anemones or poppies is used, repeating the the trimming of the hat. Collars are as high as they can be worn, as tall in front as at the back and much trimmed with round or pointed tabs of plaited lace. Often a cravat of mousseline de soie or silk is added to the front.

Gowns of two colors are becoming more and more in evidence. The one illustrated is of blue and beige. The skirt of pastel cloth has a wide band of beige cloth inserted at the height of the knees, with lines of stitching above and below it. The tight bodice of blue cloth has a plain front, with lines of stitching and gold buttons, but at the back is a sort of corselet of cloth stitched at the edges and forming a postilion basque. This corselet is fastened to the side of the bodice by two gold buttons. The turned over collar is faced with beige cloth, and the plain, tight sleeves are stitched at the wrist and ornamented with gold buttons. The hat of blue beige mixed straw is trimmed with yellow flowers. JUDIC CHOLLET.

VEILS.

There Are Many Varieties to Be Found.

Fine white net with black chenille dots is always in favor and is one of the most becoming veils made. There is a new sort of double weave now shown, white tulle beneath and black net with black dots over this. It is so well done that the lining is almost imperceptible, while at the same time it has a most beneficial effect upon a poor complexion. Veils of black chantilly covered with running designs are seen and are worn in such a way as to leave the chin uncovered.

The cut depicts a gown of flax blue cloth. The skirt has a straight tunic, and both edges are cut in square tabs, which are bordered with white galloon. The stretched bodice has a narrow collar and revers cut in square tabs bordered with white galloon. The high collar is of plaited white silk. The tight sleeves have bands of white galloon at the wrist. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Get Ready For the Place Above You.

The greatest requisite for advancement is to be fitted for the place above you. Many a young man has failed of promotion because he was not fitted for the opening when it came and had not tried to see how much good he could do for his employer, but how little.—Success.

By the committee to settle with the county collector

Elizabeth, N. J., March 29, 1901.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen—Your commitee to settle with the county collector respectfully report that they have examined his books, showing his receipts and disbursements, together with his vouchers, bonds and coupons paid and bank book, and we find the same agree and are correct in every particular

His total receipts from the beginning of the present fiscal year to date are $519,818.53; total disbursements, $506 003 99; leaving a balance in bank of $13,814 54. Signed

Respectfully submitted

Henry Krouse, Benjamin King, Jacob Brucklacher, Committee.

Freeholder Wahl moved that the report be received and adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

By the county road committee:

April 4, 1901.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen — The committee on county roads, to whom was referred the matter of the condition of the road bed on Orchard street, between Morris avenue and Westfield avenue, in the city of Elizabeth, would respectfully report that they have taken up the matter, and at a meeting called for that purpose have met with the acting Mayor of the city of Elizabeth and various members of the city council, and Col. E. W. Hine, representing the Street Railway Company, and upon investigation, and after a thorough discussion of the matter, we ascertain that the Street Railway Company, whose tracks are laid through said street, have failed to comply with the terms of their contract with this board respecting the macadamizing between the tracks and between the rails and on either side, as specified in said contract. We would report, however, that the explanation and reason given by said company for noncompliance is that it was occasioned by reason of the several changes made in the ownership of the said railway, and that the present owners of said road, however, express a willingness and readiness to forthwith, as soon as the weather will permit, proceed to macadamize the portion of the road required by them to be macadamized, in accordance with the terms of the original contract with this board.

Your committee would therefore further report that it is the sense of this committee, and they would hereby recommend that this board proceed to macadamize said street from Morris avenue to Westfield avenue from curb to curb with six inches of cracked stone upon condition that the railway company enter into an agreement with this board to bear their proportion of the expense thereof in accordance with the terms of the contract of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company with this board.

Benjamin King, Jacob Brucklacher, Henry Krouse, W. H. Swain, E K. Adams, committee.

Freeholder McCandless moved that the report be received and the recommendation therein contained adopted, which was duly seconded.

Freeholder Robison inquired as to the probable cost of macadamizing Orchard street, also whether the county was obliged to do the work, and also if it was not within the power of the city of Elizabeth to have obtained from the railway company the concessions the said city now asked at the hands of the county.

Freeholder King replied that the probable cost of the work to Union county would be from $2 200 to $2 500

County Attorney Codington said that the matter of most concern to the county was as to where the money to pay for the work was to come from. The county had a right to repair streets which had been adopted as county roads The county should compel the railway company to fulfill its agreement and should then put the balance of said Orchard street in a safe condition for public travel; he further said that the city of Elizabeth had jurisdiction over Orchard street, and could have exacted conditions at the time the railway was laid in said street.

Freeholder Farrell thought that the city of Elizabeth had made a mistake; in Rahway the railway company had made certain agreements with the Common Council before laying its tracks, and before coming to this board

Freeholders Brucklacher and Gerstung maintained that the city of Elizabeth was not responsible in the premises.

The county had granted the franchise, and was at least morally responsible to put Orchard street in good condition.

After some further discussion Freeholder Robison moved to amend that the report be referred back to the committee for further consideration, which was so ordered by the following vote, viz:

Ayes—Director Hubbard and Freeholders Adams, Cady, Ehrlich, Farrell, Robison, Scudder, Wahl and Woodruff—9.

Nays — Freeholders Brucklacher, Gerstung, Krouse, King, McCandless and Swain—6.

Absent—Freeholders Miller, Bonnel and Westphal—3.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Swain:

Resolved, That the bill of John Duffy amounting to one hundred and fifty ($150) for drainage on Morris avenue county road in Summit, N. J., be paid when approved by the committee.

Freeholder Wahl moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was adopted, receiving fourteen ayes, Freeholder Brucklacher not voting—1

Absent—Freeholders Bonnel, Miller and Westphal—3

By Freeholder Cady:

Resolved, That the Essex and Union Water Company be granted permission to run water pipes along the county road from Summit to New Providence under the supervision of the county road inspector.

Freeholder Swain moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Wahl:

Resolved, That a committee of three (3) be appointed with power to investigate the advisability of building a brick arch girder on Mountain avenue, in New Providence borough, not to exceed $200 in cost.

Freeholder Farrell moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

The director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Wahl, Robison and Swain.

By Freeholder Wahl:

Whereas, The road known as Springfield avenue, leading from South street, New Providence, to Townley's bridge, has been completed under the act known as the state road act; and

Whereas, It is desirable that the building of said road should be extended from Townley's bridge to the bridge crossing the Passaic river at Millington, as was tacitly understood would be done by Morris county so soon as this county had completed the portion of said road lying in Union county; therefore be it

Resolved, That State Road Commissioner H. I. Budd be urged to use his best endeavors to cause the building of that portion of said road from Townley's bridge to the Passaic river bridge at Millington during the year 1901, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Hon. H I Budd.

On motion of Freeholder King the foregoing preamble and resolution were adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder McCandless:

Resolved, That a committee of five (5) be appointed to examine Westfield avenue bridge at Elizabeth and report on the advisability of repairing the same.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director appointed as the said committee Freeholders McCandless King, Ehrlich, Krouse and Gerstung.

By Freeholder Adams:

Resolved, That the lunacy bill for quarter ending May 15, 1901, amounting to $10,417 30, be paid when properly audited.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

On motion of Freeholder Brucklacher the board then took a recess of ten (10) minutes.

Roll call after recess showed all members present except Freeholders Bonnel, Miller and Westphal—3

Freeholder Cady moved that the vote by which the report of the county road committee relative to Orchard street, etc, be referred back to said committee for further consideration, be reconsidered, which was so ordered

Freeholder Brucklacher presented the following amendment to the said report of the county road committee, viz: "And that said work be done only so fast and at such time as the funds of the county available for such purpose will warrant."

Freeholder Brucklacher then moved that the report of the county road committee, together with the foregoing amendment, be adopted as the whole, which was so ordered by the following vote, viz:

Ayes—Director Hubbard and Freeholders Adams, Brucklacher, Cady, Ehrlich, Farrell, Gerstung, Krouse, King, McCandless, Scudder, Swain, Wahl and Woodruff—14.

Nays—Freeholder Robison—1.

Absent—Freeholders Bonnell, Miller and Westphal—3.

On permission being granted Capt. A. Atkins, of Roselle, addressed the board. He said in part that the removal of buildings on Westfield and North avenues, made necessary by the widening of the avenue for boulevard purposes, had left said avenues in a most deplorable condition, and it did not appear that any steps were being taken to remedy matters. He urged that the county take early action, in order that the said avenue may be put in safe condition for public use and travel, and that property owners along said avenue may be enabled to beautify their lawns and yards.

By Freeholder Farrell:

Resolved, That the county road committee proceed to take the necessary steps to place Westfield avenue, from Bayard street to the Cranford township line, in proper and safe condition for public travel.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

Chain of Collars.

A wholesale city house making collars has adopted a novel plan to increase sales on its goods. These manufacturers have retail agencies in first and second-class cities throughout the United States, through which their brands are marketed. The consumer pays $1.50 for one dozen collars in a box, and 35 cents additional for an "exchange ticket." The customer returns the dozen collars soiled with the ticket to any dealer who acts as agent for the producers, and gets a dozen new collars of any style desired, in exchange, by the payment of 35 cents on every dozen. If the original box is not returned five cents extra is charged the purchaser. The firm relaunders the collars and puts them in regular stock again and again, until wear shows.—N. Y. Herald.

Creey Soup.

Scrape some nice red carrots and boil them in well flavored broth till tender enough to press through a sieve. Mix enough broth with this puree to make it rather thinner than the soup should be when finished. In a small saucepan dissolve an ounce of butter, stir into it an ounce of flour, when blended add half a pint to the soup; stir till it is well boiled; then use it for thickening the soup, which also should be hot. Stir together till it boils up; add pepper and salt if required. Should any fat be on the surface draw the pan to the side of the fire, let it cool a little, tilt the pan toward you and skim it off. Serve with bread that has been dried in the oven till light brown and cut into small dice.—Washington Star.

Indian Hospitality.

How to stop the Indians of the South Dakota reservations from eating each other's food is an amusing but perplexing problem with which the Indian bureau is now dealing. It is an unwritten law of Indian hospitality that a guest may stay as long as he likes, and that as long as the guest remains the host must provide the food. It has become the custom among the Sioux, who have a feast with their two-weeks' ration as soon as they receive it from the government, to go to the more provident Indians and live on them until all their food is gone.—Indianapolis News.

Story of a Coffin.

A poor widow in Koethen has been put in a quandary by a generous donor. He used to be a coffin manufacturer, and when he broke up his business he made her a present of a beautiful coffin. It was delivered, but the neighbors of the widow in the tenement house object to its presence. Now she will have to move, and she is short of funds. Nobody wants to buy the coffin, as the coffin manufacturer spoiled the market when he sold his goods at auction. The donor refuses to take his gift back.—Wiener Tageblatt.

Very Unlike a Groom.

"I guess I'm losing my sizing-up faculty," remarked the hotel clerk. "Why, I would have sworn that that chap, who just registered 'J. P. Tracy and wife,' was on his wedding trip."

"And he wasn't, eh?" asked a bystander.

"I should say he wasn't," replied the clerk. "Why, when I asked him confidentially if he'd like the bridal-chamber, he said: 'Sure!' and seemed tickled to death."—Puck.

PLAY IDOL AT HOME.

How a Beautiful Dream of Stageland Was Shattered Forever.

Matinee Girl Who Lived in the Opposite Flat Knew All About the Hero and Disillusioned Her Enthusiastic Companion.

The fashionable Broadway theater in question was filled to the doors with an expectant, daintily perfumed, and femininely enthusiastic Saturday matinee audience, says the New York Times. It was a very modern play. The heroine, gowned in a modish importation from Rue de la Paix, reclined languidly on a Louis Quinze settee. She had just come out fairly victorious in an animated psychological discussion with the rather attractive "villain" on the subject of Platonic love. Then the hero entered, and, deftly throwing his cape, opera hat and cane to a bespangled footman, started slightly but gracefully and bit his lips as he beheld the heroine.

There was a rustle caused by the unlimbering and focusing of a great battery of opera glasses. Then there was a silence undisturbed by even the crackle of a bonbon box as the matinee audience worshiped at the shrine of one of its idols.

"Ah, but isn't he just divine?" sighed the girl in seat No. 34 M.

"Oh, yes, I suppose so," replied she in seat No. 36 M., in a tone of irreverence that caused her companion to regard her with horror.

On their way home after the performance this singular young woman explained her unheard-of apathy at the shrine of the matinee idol.

"He lives," she said, sadly, "with his family, in the flat across the hall from us."

"With his family?" exclaimed the other in tones of horror. "Oh, no. Anything but that."

"Yes," continued the disillusioned one, "he's a very nice and pleasant sort of man, and they have a very pleasant, peaceful home life, except that their youngest child—they have four—is about the noiseist brat I ever heard. It seems to have the colic or something almost every night, and it must be awful tiresome for that poor man after

FREE TRIP TO NEWARK.

There Were 425 Plainfielders Who Took Advantage of The Chance to go to Newark.

Undaunted by the threatening aspect of the weather, nearly 500 Plainfield people, or to be more exact 425, availed themselves of the opportunity to visit Newark today by means of the Newark merchants free excursion. This number is far below the average of the several previous excursions given under the same auspices, but it is a known fact that fall trips are far more popular with the women than those of the spring. The crowd this morning contained a generous sprinkling of men.

At Somerville, which always furnishes the largest number of excursionists, over 800 tickets were sold. Bound Brook furnished 250 persons while large numbers attended from the other towns along the road. The return will be made at 5:30 this evening.

WANT NINE HOUR LAW.

Local Branch of International Association of Machinists Will Try to Enforce it Here.

The International Association of Machinists held a very important meeting last evening when plans were nearly completed for enforcing the nine hour law with full pay. The association now numbers nearly 125 and there are fifty applications now waiting to be acted upon. The idea is to force union labor upon all the bosses in the local machine shops, but it is understood that there is some opposition on the part of a few bosses.

The association has planned to have the new order of things go into effect May 1, and if the bosses do not comply with them before May 20 more stringent measures will be adopted to bring them to time. At present all the bosses have not openly declared their position in the matter, but it is generally believed that when the time comes an amicable settlement will be made by all parties concerned.

There was a large and beautiful display of floral tributes from relatives and friends, including many set pieces. The remains of Mr. Middledith were taken to Baltimore this morning and the interment took place in the family plot in Lowden cemetery, that city, this afternoon.

EXPLAINED HIS PLAN TO BUILD DOCKS IN NEWARK BAY.

Is Reclaiming Newark Salt Meadows and Wants to Continue Wharves Out to Channel.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, April 24—United States Senator John Kean was given a hearing before the Army and Navy Harbor board yesterday, on his project to build docks out to deep water in Newark bay, and to reclaim a large tract of salt meadow.

The conference took place in the government building. Col. Gillespie presided and there was a full attendance of members of the board.

Others in attendance were P. Sandford Ross, John S. Kehoe, president of the Lester Company, S. A. Miller, Austin MacGregor, William O. Platt, and other Newark men, also ex Senator Wetmore, Col. Van Buskirk, of Bergen Point, and others interested in the Newark bay and Passaic and Hackensack river improvements.

Senator Kean has received from the New Jersey riparian commissioner the right to build docks along the bay water front. His application to the war and navy department is to extend these wharves out to the bay's channel. His application was read, and Senator Kean was then invited to speak.

Senator Kean then made a very interesting address, showing the importance of his project, not only to Elizabeth, but to Newark and vicinity. He went over the entire history of attempted salt meadow reclamation, and gave strong argument to show that his scheme was the most practical.

After several had spoken in endorsement of Senator Kean's application the board asked for any who had objections, but there was no one present to object.

The members of the board thanked Senator Kean for his statement, and promised to give the application immediate consideration. The general expression seemed favorable to the granting of the privilege Senator Kean asks.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1901. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

WILL GRADUATE FROM CHURCH THIS YEAR.

Commencement Exercises of Schools Will Not be Held in Music Hall.

IF IT CLOSES ON MAY 4.

CHURCHES ARE ONLY OTHER AVAILABLE PLACES.

City Exercises Will Probably be Held in Either First Baptist or Crescent Avenue Church—Will Hold as Many People.

Now that there seems little chance that Music Hall will continue its career after the first of next month, the school authorities of both city and borough are presented with a problem which will have to be solved before the spring term ends. It has been customary of late to hold the commencement exercises of both city and borough High Schools in Music Hall. It will now probably be necessary to find some other place.

In the days before Music Hall was built, it was customary for the graduation exercises at the Plainfield High School to be held in one of the local churches. Exercises were held in the First M. E., the Park Avenue Baptist and the First Baptist churches. While the Plainfield Board of Education has taken no formal action in the matter as yet, it is probable that the class of 1901 of the Plainfield High School will graduate from one of the local churches, probably either the First Baptist or the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church as they are the largest. The First Baptist church will accommodate nearly eleven hundred people, while either the Y. M. C. A. Hall or the Casino cannot seat over five hundred people at most. The Crescent Avenue church will hold nearly a thousand.

For many years, the graduation exercises of the North Plainfield public schools were held in Warren chapel. One year, the Y. M. C. A. hall was utilized. For the last two years, the commencement has been held in Music Hall. The borough schools will probably return to Warren chapel as of old or else secure the use of one of the large city churches.

The holding of the commencement exercises in a church will not materially interfere with the character of the usual commencement day exercises. As Music Hall will seat but 900, the change in place will not reduce the size of the audience. It will, however, be more difficult to arrange the reserved seats than before.

A FINE BUILDING.

Something About the Structure Which Smalley Brothers Are Now Building.

According to the plans of the Smalley Brothers' building on North avenue, the structure will be very commodious.

The building will be three stories in height and will be constructed of brick. Indiana limestone and light brick will be used in the front of the building Two store rooms, separated by a hall way ten feet wide, will occupy the space of the first floor Each of these rooms will be eighteen feet in front and seventy-five feet in depth. The second story will be used for offices. Twelve good-sized rooms have been planned for this floor. On the third floor will be five offices with a lodge room in the rear to which is attached an ante chamber. The lodge room will be 40 x50 feet.

It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by September 1. The cost of erection is estimated at $18,000.

THE NEW COUNTY BUILDING.

BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS HAS ANNOUNCED THE REQUIREMENTS.

There Will Be a Prize Contest For Plans For the County Building at Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 25—For some years past the necessity of erecting a new county building, which would be more in keeping with the needs of the county, has been generally conceded. Not until lately, however, has any definite action been taken.

The Board of Freeholders has just issued a pamphlet containing a general outline of the proposed new building and also instructions to architects desiring to compete in a prize contest for plans. In this pamphlet are detailed instructions as to the general plan and requirements of the structure as well as the desired maximum cost.

The drawings submitted must be received at the office of the county collector in Elizabeth not before June 20 and not later than July 1. For the best plan and design received $500 is offered; for the second best plan $300, and for the third best $200. A building committee appointed in accordance with the State law will pass upon the relative merit of the designs submitted and will announce the final award before July 10. Constituting this committee are J. Frank Hubbard, of Plainfield; John Farrell, of Rahway, and Jacob Bruclacher, of this city.

The required specifications named are first of all that proper facilities be provided for the convenient transaction of business and that sufficient floor space be properly distributed for this purpose. The building must be entirely fireproof. Brick and stone is to be the constructive material, and granite is named as outside facing.

The building will consist of three stories and attic, with basement under the entire building.

GATHERING OF LOCAL EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS.

Interesting Reports Presented at Annual Meeting of Equal Suffrage League.

WAS HELD YESTERDAY.

MRS. MADELINE DURAR WAS ELECTED RECORDING SECRETARY.

Report of Suffrage Fair Held in New York—Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Has Completed History of Woman's Suffrage Movement in Jersey.

The annual meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, was held yesterday morning at the home of the vice president, Mrs. Isaac L Miller, of Watchung avenue. The president, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, presided. A public meeting, with a lecture, had been planned for, but owing to the illness of Mrs. Hall's son, and to some other causes it was decided to defer this until autumn, when, it is hoped that Rev. Amory Bradford, of Montclair, will address the league and its guests.

Mrs. Madeleine Durar, of Netherwood, was elected recording secretary in place of Mrs. J Everett Kimball, whose resignation was accepted with regret. The other officers will remain the same during the ensuing year, as they are elected bi-ennially. Mrs. Samuel Huntington is treasurer, and Mrs. W. L. Patton, corresponding secretary.

The report from the Suffrage fair held in New York, this winter, showed that the New Jersey booth had netted $625, of the $8,000 received. Mrs. Madeleine Durar had contributed many boxes of essenic ointment to the fair, more than $10 being received from this source. She had also given her services throughout the fair.

A report from the State Suffrage meeting held in Orange, April 16, was read, suggesting a summer meeting at some popular sea-side resort. The delegates, who will represent New Jersey at the national convention to be held in Minneapolis, the first week in June, are Mrs. Mimola Graham Saxton, state president, of Orange; Mrs. George M. Jeffrey, of South Orange; Miss Susan W. Lipppincott, president of Moorestown League; Dr. M. D. Hurrey, of East Orange; Miss Mary Willits, of Trenton, and Miss Bertha Browning, of West Orange; alternates, Miss J. H. Morris, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall and Mrs. George M. Vail.

Miss Carrie Chapman Catt, national president, gave an interesting lecture at the Orange meeting. A reception followed, attended by many prominent women, the occasion being one of much interest.

The Plainfield League will make an effort to increase its membership, as Mrs. Catt is anxious that all local societies shall double the number of their members. A donation of $5 from a member unable to be present was a pleasant feature of the meeting.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall stated that she had completed and sent to Mrs. Ida N. Harper, for publication, the history of the woman suffrage movement in New Jersey since the year, 1884. David Prescott Hall contributed a digest of the State laws relating to women. Mrs. Harper expressed herself as much pleased with the work of both Mr. and Mrs. Hall, and hoped that the statement of the laws might be published as a leaflet.

The subject of a political study class to be formed next autumn, was discussed at the meeting and favorably considered.

MUNIFICENT GIFT FOR MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

J. Howard Wright Has Offered to Build Complete Operating Pavilion For New Hospital.

HE WILL DONATE $10,000.

HOSPITAL WILL THEN HAVE EQUIPMENT EQUAL TO ANY IN STATE.

Announcement of the Gift Just Made Public By Board of Governors—Given in Memory of His Two Grandsons.

Announcement has just been made by the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital that J. Howard Wright, of New York city, has offered to furnish the necessary funds required for the erection of a complete operating pavilion in connection with the proposed new hospital.

The building is intended as a memorial to Mr. Wright's two grandsons, Howard Wright Corlies and Parker Wright Mason. No pains will be spared to make the operating section of the new hospital thoroughly modern in all details and in keeping with the latest ideas for surgical work. Mr. Wright has authorized the Board of Governors to expend $10,000 for the attainment of the object of his gift. With this sum at its disposal the board believes that it will be able to build an operating department which will compare favorably with any in the State.

The main room of the pavilion, as planned, will be devoted to surgical operating purposes and in conjunction with it there will be such other rooms as are generally found among the appointments of a first-class modern hospital. These will include a sterilizing room and an etherizing room, as well as what is known as a recovering room. Another convenient adjunct will be a room for the X ray instrument. Together the rooms contained in the pavilion in question will form an essentially up-to date department of surgery and will answer all the requirements of a busy hospital.

The Board of Governors feel that Mr. Wright's benefaction is a timely and generous act. With this gift in hand it is believed that others will be more readily prompted to assist in the work of building the proposed hospital plant for which there is great need.

MRS. ELLIS AND SON WENT TO NEW YORK.

Permission Was First Granted By Boards of Health of Fanwood and New York.

PATIENTS ARE IMPROVING.

MRS. ELLIS HAS GONE TO THE HOME OF AN OLD FRIEND.

Her Three-Year-Old Son, Who Accompanied He , Does Not Seem to Have Dread Disease—Funeral of William This Morning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 25.—There is very little change in the condition of affairs at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy J. Ellis, on Forest avenue, where there is an epidemic of diphtheria. Dorothy, the daughter, seems a trifle better this morning, and James, the year and-a-half-old son, who developed the disease yesterday, also seems to be a little better. Anti-toxine treatment was administered yesterday by Dr. Smith, of Westfield.

Through the permission of the Boards of Health of this place and New York. Mrs Ellis was taken to New York yesterday afternoon and is now stopping at the home of Mrs. Lillie H. Norton, at 165 West Fifty-eighth street. Mrs. Norton has known Mrs. Ellis since childhood. Mrs. Norton came to the Ellis home yesterday and accompanied Mrs. Ellis and her three-year-old son, LeRoy, to her home in New York. This morning a telephone message was received from New York stating that Mrs. Ellis is doing well and her son does not seem to have diphtheria.

Before Mrs. Ellis and her son left the house they were thoroughly fumigated making their trip to New York a perfectly safe one. "I am going away for the good of the family," said Mrs. Ellis, in parting, to Dr. Westcott.

This morning a short service was held at Hillside Cemetery, Plainfield, over the remains of William, the son who died Tuesday night. Rev. E. M. Bodman officiated. Mr. Ellis was present at the service.

BICYCLIST WEDDED.

Well-Known Young Man From Westfield Was Married Quietly in Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 25—Charles G. Embleton, the well-know bicycle rider, and Miss Anna Searles Kelly, both of this place, were quietly married at Elizabeth Sunday evening at the rectory of Trinity Episcopal church by Rev. John R. Atkinson. The young people had been visiting a mutual friend during the day, and while joking, decided to get married. They were accompanied by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Stewort Todd.

After the ceremony a telegram was sent to Mrs. Embleton's parents announcing the marriage and asking the parental blessing. Although greatly surprised, for Mr. Kelly was unaware that the young people were more than friends, he readily forgave the young people for running away and getting married. They will reside in Westfield.

STORM KEPT MANY AWAY.

THIRD EVENING OF THE FAIR OF THE GESANG AND TURN VEREIN.

A Good Programme of Attractions is Promised at the Fair This Evening.

The third evening of the Gesang and Surn Verein week's fair in Sangerbund Hall was not as successful as the committee on arrangements had expected it to be. The small attendance at the affair last evening was attributed solely to the stormy weather, which detained many from attending who otherwise would have largely augmented the number present.

The small crowd, which braved the storm and patronized the fair, spent a pleasant evening in dancing and lending help in the contests for prizes. Prof. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra again furnished music for the waltzers, who seemed to thoroughly enjoy the pastime. Although the visiting delegations from Paterson and Passaic did not make an appearance last evening, the committee has given assurance that tonight the public will be repaid for its disappointment by the presence of representatives of the Turn Vereins of Elizabethport, Brooklyn and Stirling who promise to give some interesting exhibitions in turning and boxing.

ANNUAL REPORTS AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Resume of Work Done in the Different Departments of the Church.

MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

THAT CHURCH NOW HAS A MEMBERSHIP OF 876.

Systematic Beneficiences Amounted to $2,052.71—Reports From the Two Chapels—Reports of Various Societies.

The annual meeting of the First Baptist church was held in the Sunday-school room last evening and, despite the inclement weather, there was an excellent attendance of members. Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor, presided, and O. B. Leonard, church clerk, officiated in his capacity.

Dr. J. B. Probasco, as treasurer of the deacons' fund, reported a balance of $285.03 for last year. The receipts during the year were $571.26. The expenditures were $295 96. This together with $130 as interest from a fund leaves a total balance of $405 30.

Miss Florence Marsh reported for the Ladies' Aid Society. At last report there was a balance of $34 01. The receipts for the year were $112 45, leaving a balance of $28.28. O. B. Leonard reported for the systematic beneficiences. The balance a year ago was $5.35. There was raised during the year $2,052 71 and the present balance is $9 21. Mr. Leonard also reported concerning the Baptist Home for the Aged at Roseville. There are now twenty-eight persons at the Home, including two from the First Baptist church, who are in excellent health. The financial condition of the Home was never better. The receipts for the year amounted to $6 661.90 and the expenditures about the same.

Frank Jones, treasurer of the Sunday-school, reported a balance of $406 99 at last report. The receipts during the year were $1,245.07, and the present balance is $241.16. Mr. Leonard submitted a report for the secretary of the Sunday-school. This showed that fifty scholars had experienced a change of heart and joined the church during the year. The total membership of the school at present is 433.

Superintendent L. W. Randolph, of the East Third Street chapel, submitted a report showing the spiritual and financial condition to be excellent. There was raised during the year nearly $400. Mr. Randolph reported an average attendance at the evening meetings of 50, and 80 for the Sunday-school. There are 150 members in the Sunday school. He suggested the establishment of a fund to meet current expenses.

Superintendent M. C Dobbins, of the Mt. Olive Baptist Sunday-school, reported a membership of 140 and nine teachers. There have been two deaths during the year. The balance in the treasury at last report was $16 87. The receipts during the year were $81 18 and the disbursements $63.81, leaving a balance of $17 37. There was acknowledged donations from the home school for Christmas supplies and hymn books.

Miss Ida Yerkes reported for the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society showing the receipts during the year to be $522 64 and a balance of 35 cents. The money has been expended wisely for foreign mission interests. Miss Yerkes reported that the Woman's Home Missionary Society had raised during the year $493.47, all of which had been expended. The Young Ladies' Missionary Society raised $143, of which $96 was given to foreign missions and $47 to home missions. The Temple Builders' Society reported a contribution of $100 to their work in the Yerkes' chapel in India. At this time H. E. Needham and M. C. Dobbins audited the books of the treasurer and reported them correct.

Clerk Leonard presented a letter to be sent to the East New Jersey Baptist Association meeting to be held soon in the Peddie Memorial church at Newark. This showed the membership to be a year ago 838. There was added 74 and the decrease was 36, leaving the present membership 876. During the year nine members have died. On a motion offered by Mr. Leonard the sum of $10 was appropriated for minutes of the association meeting. This concluded the business, and after the singing of a hymn the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Yerkes.

—A large ice crushing machine has been installed in Campbell's confectionery store on West Front street.

LINCOLN'S BODY REMOVED.

Remains of Martyr President in the Rebuilt Monument.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 25.—Unostentatiously and without ceremony the remains of Abraham Lincoln and the other members of his family which have been entombed in the National Lincoln monument were yesterday replaced in the crypt of the monument. They have since March 10, 1900, when the work of rebuilding the monument at a cost to the state of Illinois of $100,000 was commenced, been reposing in a temporary stone vault near the monument.

The ceremony of returning the remains to the monument was witnessed by Governor Yates and other state officials, the members of the Lincoln Monument association, which had charge of the monument until it was turned over to the state four years ago; the surviving members of the Lincoln guard of honor, Judge Humphrey of the United States district court and other federal officials, Mayor Phillips and other city officials and probably 200 citizens who had heard of the intended removal. It was intended to have kept the ceremony a secret, except among the state, federal and city officials, the Lincoln Monument association and a few others.

The temporary vault was so thoroughly cemented that it was four hours after the work of the removal commenced that the remains of the former president, which were the last to be removed, were finally placed in the marble sarcophagus in the crypt in the monument, where they were sealed up and where they will probably remain through all time. The casket was not opened, as had been expected, nor was even the leaden casket exposed to view, being covered by a cedar casket. The remains which now rest in the tomb in the monument are those of President and Mrs. Lincoln, their sons, Willie, Thomas (Tad) and Eddie, and Abraham, son of their oldest son, Robert T. Lincoln.

The Hunt For Train Robbers.

MEMPHIS, April 25.—The officials directing the pursuit of the bandits who held up the passenger train on the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad Monday night concur in the opinion that the gang will be captured soon. General Superintendent Harris of the Choctaw says the bottoms on either side of the railroad for miles are overflowed, and even with the aid of skiffs the men could not get far away. They of necessity must follow the railroads, and this renders their capture sooner or later a certainty in his opinion. Two men tallying with the description of the robbers have been seen in White river bottom, this side of Devalls bluff.

A Wonderful Man.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Professor Algie R. Crook, the bachelor member of the faculty of Northwestern university, surprised the students during a heart to heart talk in the laboratory on Tuesday by saying that the frivolities of the world had not tempted him. "I have never uttered a profane word," said Professor Crook, "never have smoked, chewed tobacco, drank intoxicants nor hugged or kissed a woman." The confession brought blushes to the cheeks of the young women of the class, while the young men looked and wondered. "That is true," added the professor. "Well," spoke up a student, "you don't know what you've missed, professor."

Governor's Hands Full.

ALBANY, April 25.—The legislature left about 250 bills for the governor's consideration during the "30 day" period. Of that number 66 have already been delivered to the governor, of which 16 are in the hands of the attorney general for examination. The assembly has 108 bills to send to the governor, of which 73 are in the hands of mayors. There are 70 senate bills, including 36 in the hands of mayors, to be submitted to the governor. There will be no "30 day" bill list issued this year at the executive chamber, as it is the intention of the governor to dispose of a majority of the bills at once.

Camels For Buffalo.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A dozen camels arrived on the steamship Pocahontas. The quadrupeds were part of a consignment from Tunis, Algeria, of "artists" and animals for the Pan-American exposition. With them came Sheik Mohammed Ali, chief of the torture dancers of the tribe of Aissa, from the desert. The chief performs the torture dance by sticking swords and knives into his body while his tribal followers dance to the Algerian music.

Three Battleships Return.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Three of the big battleships of the north Atlantic squadron, the Kearsarge, the Alabama and the Massachusetts, arrived yesterday from Kingston, Jamaica. They are under command of Rear Admiral Farquhar and have been cruising in southern waters since December. There are 1,500 officers and men aboard the white hulled trio, and there is not one case of sickness among the hardy bluejackets and marines.

President Cramp Is Skeptical.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—In speaking of the reported shipbuilding combination Charles H. Cramp, president of the William Cramp & Sons' Ship and Engine Building company, said that his company was in no way interested in any such combine. He said the scheme looked well on paper, but that it would not work in practice.

BOLOMEN GIVE IT UP

Two Thousand From Northern Luzon Surrender.

IMPORTANT DOCUMENTS SECURED.

Membership Rolls of Secret Society Show an Extensive Organization—Taft Commission Leaves Samar.

MANILA, April 25.—One hundred and fifteen insurgent officers and 2,157 bolomen surrendered to the Americans at Marvacan on April 22. They also presented rolls of membership which showed that the secret organization known as the Katipunan society existed in all barrios.

The Philippine commission left the island of Samar without organizing civil government. There are said to be 600 insurgents, with rifles, still out there. Seven companies of the First infantry and one light battery are garrisoning 7 of the 40 towns. The commission met representatives of the seven towns, who asked that the Americans garrison the remaining 33. The commission promised to ask for an increased military force on its return to Manila.

The insurgents fired from the hills into Catbalogan Tuesday before the arrival of the commission at that place. The firing caused no damage, and troops went out yesterday morning to disperse the rebels.

Signal Corps Work Successful.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—General Greely's latest reports of signal corps operations in the Philippines are of a most encouraging character. Line cutting, which formerly was of almost daily occurrence, has nearly stopped on the islands of Bohol, Cebu, Negros and Panay. Interference with lines is confined almost entirely to the island of Leyte and the Camarines in southern Luzon. The health of the corps is most extraordinary. At the end of February only seven men were sick out of a total of 543. The extreme healthfulness of the command is attributed in part to the excellent and wholesome quality of the ration, the variety of the work and the intelligence of the men. Telegraphic work continues to increase, and nearly 11,000 military messages are handled daily, probably averaging more than 100 words to a message.

Mosquito Fleet at Cavite.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—A cablegram received at the navy department announces the arrival of the mosquito fleet at Cavite, Philippine Islands. The four vessels of this little fleet will be utilized in patrolling the coasts of Luzon and the lower islands of the Philippine group.

Attempt at Infanticide Confessed.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Francesca Spinello, who is in jail at White Plains, N. Y., with Givio Buttacavalla, her uncle, the two having been arrested after an alleged attempt to bury a baby while it was yet alive, has made a confession to Mrs. Jarvis, the jail matron. The girl said her uncle was the father of the child which she had borne. She said further that her uncle came to her home in New York and told her to take the baby and come with him for a walk. He took her to Hastings and when the ravine was reached wanted to kill the baby with his hatchet, but she prevented him doing this and begged that it be not harmed in that manner. He finally relented, and the baby was buried.

A Plow Trust Now.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Representatives of a score of plow manufacturing concerns, who have been in session here to effect a combination of their interests, adjourned after formally agreeing to form one company to control the market in the United States. A committee was appointed to perfect plans. Twenty plants, chiefly in Illinois, will be in the combine, and the capitalization probably will be $50,000,000.

The Strike Abandoned.

CLEVELAND, April 25.—The tug firemen and linemen employed by the Great Lakes Towing company who went on strike several days ago for an advance of $5 per month in wages have returned to work at the old rate. The men declined to discuss the subject further than to say that their grievances had been referred to the grand grievance committee of their organization for adjustment.

A Tannery Combine.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—An effort is being made to consolidate all of the tanneries in Allegheny county, with a capital of about $10,000,000. Nine companies, it is said, have already agreed to enter the combine, and options have been secured on several others. New York capital is back of the proposed company, and if the local plan is a success a national organization will likely be formed.

Launching at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, April 25.—The steel steamship Mauch Chunk was successfully launched at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the yards of the Buffalo Drydock company in this harbor. The new boat was built for the Lehigh Valley Transportation company and is a sister ship of the Wilkesbarre, launched in December.

Rain Causes Much Damage.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 25.—Continued rains are causing much damage in the Catskills. At Pine Hill the damage aggregates $25,000. The residence of Chancellor McCracken of the New York university was badly damaged. The Fleischmann baseball field was damaged to the extent of $1,000.

Reject Strikers' Demands.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., April 25.—The manufacturers of Watertown have agreed to reject the demands of the machinists for a nine hour day at the wages paid for ten hours, and a strike of 500 men and the forcing out of employment of 1,000 more is probable.

Genoa Dock Strike Off.

GENOA, April 25.—The striking dock laborers of the Navigation company have accepted Premier Zanardelli's decision as arbitrator in the matter of their differences with their employer. The strike has been declared off.

Guns and Ammunition Found.

TIEN-TSIN, April 25.—The British have discovered 19 Krupp field guns, with a quantity of ammunition, buried in the vicinity of Shan-hai-kwan.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; fresh northerly winds.

STORIES WERE FAKES

Consul Holloway Denies Wild Tales About Russia.

NO DANGER OF A REVOLUTION.

American Papers Print a Greater Amount of Misinformation About the Czar's Realm Than All Other Countries Combined.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 25.—The editor of The Journal is in receipt of a letter from Colonel W. R. Holloway, United States consul general at St. Petersburg, dated April 9, in which these statements are made:

"I have just finished reading the editorial in your issue of March 24 entitled, 'Revolutionary Signs In Russia.' I am convinced that the American papers print a greater amount of misinformation about Russia than all the other countries of the world put together. The stories recently telegraphed the American papers concerning the alleged riots in St. Petersburg are largely fakes and while they are published under St. Petersburg date lines were not sent by the agent of the American Associated Press at this place, but were made up of sensational reports that reached Berlin, Vienna and London.

"The statement that the Cossack cavalry charged on the masses of men and women and cut and slashed them right and left was manufactured out of whole cloth. Nothing like it occurred. My office is on the Nevsky near the center of the largest part of the crowd, and I was standing on the front steps of the Kasan cathedral when the alleged charge was reported to have occurred. The sidewalks on both sides of the street were for four squares crowded with people attracted by curiosity, and all the Cossacks—who did not even have their swords, as they usually do—did was to keep the people moving to prevent their blocking the same. I never saw a better natured crowd, and while there were many students moving about I did not see or hear of one creating the slightest disturbance.

"The stories to the effect that the emperor's offices and living rooms are lined with boiler iron and that he is hourly in fear of assassination are rot. The emperor and empress drive about as usual, unattended by a single guard or footman, as is their habit.

"St. Petersburg is as quiet and orderly a city as either Washington or Indianapolis, and, while I have no means of knowing how many nihilists there are in this city, I do not believe they are as numerous as they are in Chicago. There is nothing like as much lawlessness here as there is in that city nor as many murders as there are in Indianapolis. The police seem to be advised of disloyal movements and prepared for any emergency that is likely to occur. No well informed person here seems to have the slightest fear of any serious trouble with either the students or the nihilists."

Rare Books at Fancy Prices.

BOSTON, April 25.—At Libbies' yesterday in selling the French library the first of the Grolier club vellum books brought $1,600, the top price for a single volume. It was catalogued as "A Decree of Star Chamber Concerning Printing, Made July 11, 1637; Reprinted For the Grolier Club From the First Edition, 1637, New York, 1884." Charles Scribners' Sons, the purchasers, also took several other vellum copies of the Grolier books at record prices—namely, the "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," for $1,100; Matthew's "Modern Bookbinding," $900; Charles Reade's "Peg Woffington," $480; De Vinne's "Christopher Plantin," $375, and the "Philobiblion" of Richard de Bury, $825. A vellum copy of the "Grolier Catalogue of Books From the Libraries of Celebrated Bibliophiles" went for $650. It is understood that they secured these for a customer who gave the orders to buy without respect to price. Seventy of the Grolier publications, including 26 catalogues of the club exhibitions at $2 each, brought $7,259.

Madman Shoots Four.

PORTLAND, Me., April 25.—In a fit of temporary insanity George Brainard of Boston, foreman of a crew of electricians at work in the New England telephone central office, fatally shot Chief Electrician I. Henry Farnham of Wellesley, Mass., and dangerously wounded Earl M. Buxton of Springfield, James Wadsworth of Malden, Mass., and Elmer Lane of Mechanic Falls, Me. Brainard also shot at Deputy Marshal Frith, who arrested him, but the bullet merely grazed Frith's throat.

American Swindlers In Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, April 25.—Frank Fuller and Thomas Smith, Americans, have both been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for having made false contracts here with Jamaican laborers to work in Cuba. A police investigation showed that a large swindle had been perpetrated, Fuller and Smith exacting passage money from each laborer with whom they made contracts. Smith is also held on a charge of forgery.

Want the Naval Constructor.

NEW YORK, April 25.—It is reported at the navy yard that Rear Admiral Bowles, chief of the bureau of construction and repair at Washington, has been offered a place as the chief executive officer of a new shipyard combination that is to be organized in the near future. At the yard no one would discuss the matter. It was reported that Rear Admiral Bowles would receive a salary of $50,000.

A Tragedy In Court.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Policeman William Messenger was shot and mortally wounded in Justice Prindiville's court at the Harrison street police station yesterday by D. R. Nelson, a prisoner at the bar. Nelson was in turn made a target for revolvers in the hands of a score of other policemen present and fell with five bullets in him. Both men were taken to the hospital in a dying condition.

Boy Tramps Heading For Buffalo.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 25.—Ten ragged boy tramps about 14 years of age who lodged in the city jail here Tuesday night were ordered out of town. They claimed to be on their way to the Pan-American exposition. The police confiscated a lot of dime novel literature found in their possession.

A Pittsburg Blaze.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Fire broke out in Barker, Williams & Co.'s large furniture store and warehouse on Park avenue, near Ninth street, last night and caused a loss of $75,000.

OHIO STILL RISING.

Much Anxiety Along the River—A Great Deal of Damage Done.

CINCINNATI, April 25.—At 6 o'clock last night the stage of the Ohio here was 57.5 feet, but the rate of rising was reduced from one inch an hour to almost one-half inch an hour. The stage at 6 o'clock was 7.5 feet above the danger line. Although the rate of rising is gradually decreasing, the flood here will exceed the predicted limit of 58 feet. Estimates on the rise that is in sight up the river indicate that the Ohio will not become stationary until this afternoon, when it is not expected to exceed 58.5 feet, or 8.5 feet above the danger line.

Business men and manufacturers in the bottoms will suffer more than was expected, and many more families will be driven out of their homes along the Ohio to the south and along Mill Creek valley on the west and along the Little Miami on the east side than were anticipated in the earlier preparations.

On the Kentucky side the interruption to mills, factories and business is not so great, but in proportion to the population many more have been driven from their homes than on the Ohio side.

In the Taylor bottoms between Newport and Bellevue, Ky., the water is up to the tree tops, and the street car lines are compelled to transfer their passengers for Bellevue and Dayton, Ky. The latter place is generally inundated, and owing to a swell in the Licking river it is estimated that about a square mile of Newport is inundated.

Central City, an adjacent town, is under water. The schoolhouses, railroad stations, freighthouses and even the jail are utilized for the homeless. Guyandotte is entirely cut off from the outside world, with every street flooded. At Ironton, O., the stage was 58.5 feet at 6 o'clock, with an increase in the rate of rising and the rain pouring down. More than 100 families had to move from West Ironton yesterday. All merchants on Center street, the main business street in the city, have had to move. Merchants elsewhere have moved their goods from basements and first floors. At Hanging Rock, near here, the water has reached the second stories of some residences, and the same situation prevails at Coal Grove. Railroad traffic has been suspended, and a coal famine exists in nearly all the smaller towns.

Families Driven From Home.

SHARON, Pa., April 25.—The Shenango river is rising at the rate of half an inch an hour and has reached a higher stage than at any time since 1893. Great alarm is felt in the southern parts of the city, where houses are under three feet of water. Many families left their homes yesterday in boats, and several of the manufacturing firms closed down on account of the mills being flooded. The Erie and Pittsburg track between West Middlesex and Nashua are submerged, and passenger trains are running through 18 inches of water, steam being kept up with wood fires piled high in the furnace of the engines. The Sharon Eagle office is under water and the publication of the paper suspended until the water recedes. The damage between Greenville and Newcastle will be heavy.

The Mahoning River Rampant.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 25.—As a result of the flood in the Mahoning river all the lower parts of the city are under water, and firemen and policemen are taking families from the inundated districts in boats. Many industrial establishments are flooded, and several blast furnaces have been compelled to suspend operations. The water has now reached the mark of 1878, when the worst flood known on the Mahoning river occurred. A further rise of 18 inches will cover the floors of the waterworks.

Floods Close Steel Mills.

WARREN, O., April 25.—Furnaces at the United States Steel company's rolling mill and a large flour mill have been partly inundated by high waters from the Mahoning river and compelled to shut down. Many families are being taken out of their homes in boats.

The ceremony was witnessed by 300 master Masons, including Grand Master Charles W. Mead of the grand lodge of this state and his entire staff, who did the work of the degree. Visiting brethren were also present from Connecticut, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

Fire In Ship's Cargo.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 25.—Fire was discovered in the cargo of the Spanish steamship Alicia of the Sierra line, loading here with cotton and general cargo for Liverpool. There are about 1,800 bales of cotton in her cargo. The cotton has been flooded and the hatches battened. The extent of the damage is not yet known.

ENGLISH CABINET TROUBLES.

Serious Discussion Over the Tax Budget Rumored.

LONDON, April 25.—The date of Lord Salisbury's return to London from the Riviera is still problematical, and the rumors of cabinet trouble over the tax budget are assuming greater consistency in the lobbies of parliament. According to The Daily Mail, the framing of the budget revealed considerable dissension. Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, wanted the whole cost of the war raised on the credit of the South African colonies and had schemes of his own for providing the interest on the loan and an increase of normal expenditure.

To these schemes, however, with the exception of the coal duty, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach turned a deaf ear, and on being pressed he offered to resign. Mr. Chamberlain, according to The Daily Mail, favored the resignation, but Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour strongly opposed it.

Now it is said that, although at first Sir Michael Hicks-Beach did not advocate a coal tax, he declines to drop it, thinking his reputation would suffer now that he is committed to it. He has, however, agreed to give careful consideration to the alternative proposal to substitute an ad valorem duty on a basis of 8 pence or 9 pence on inferior coal, rising to 18 pence on the best Welsh coal.

BRESCI IS INSANE.

Slayer of King Humbert In Deplorable Plight.

ROME, April 25.—Gaetano Bresci, the slayer of King Humbert, has gone insane. He will shortly be removed from his cell to the prison for the criminal insane. For several weeks his jailers have noticed that Bresci was rapidly giving way under the solitary confinement to which he was condemned, and the news that he has at last collapsed mentally and that his physical condition is pitiable will occasion no surprise.

In fact, when Bresci was convicted of the murder of the king and life imprisonment was decreed his fate it was known he would become mad sooner or later.

No prisoner condemned to solitary confinement in an Italian prison has ever retained his reason for more than five years.

Silk Operators Accept Terms.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 25.—By a vote of 324 to nothing the weavers of the Sauquoit Silk mill have voted to accept Superintendent Davis' offer and return to work. The terms are an increase in wages of from 8 to 12 per cent, a Saturday half holiday in the summer and a few other minor concessions. The offer is practically the same as was made by Superintendent Davis three days before the strike began three months ago. The Sauquoit mill is the largest in the United States. "Mother" Jones, who is engineering the girls' campaign, declared that the strike is practically over and that all of the 4,000 strikers will be back at work next week.

Long Search Is Fruitless.

LAKEVILLE, Conn., April 25.—Two hundred and thirty-five pounds of 35 per cent dynamite were exploded in several charges in the lake here yesterday in a final effort to recover the body of Otis Sawyer of Montclair, N. J., but without apparent result. Captain Everett, the diver who has had the search in charge, says, however, that he would not expect the body to come to the surface immediately in case it were dislodged by the explosion. A vault has been prepared here for the temporary reception of young Sawyer's body in case of its recovery.

Japan's Claims on China.

YOKOHAMA, April 25.—The claims that Japan will make upon China for indemnities amount to £4,750,000. Advices received here from Seoul are to the effect that the Japanese minister there has had an audience with the emperor of Korea. Upon this occasion the minister made a moderate and courteous statement in reference to the Korean loan of 5,000,000 yen from France.

Fatal Elevator Accident.

UTICA, N. Y., April 25.—Henry C. Faber, aged 67, the head of a trunk manufacturing company, died yesterday afternoon from injuries received on Monday by having his head caught in the elevator at his factory. Just a year ago his son was similarly injured by the same elevator.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 25.—Virgil P. McMaster of Nineveh, N. Y., has been arrested on a warrant charging him with misappropriating $23,000 of the funds of the estate of Jane Bush, late of the town of Colesville. McMaster was one of the executors of the estate.

Fire In Danville, Va.

ROME, April 25.—A slight earthquake was felt here and in southern Italy yesterday afternoon.

THE CUBANS ON HAND

Delegates Reach Washington to Consult President.

GOVERNOR WOOD ALSO ARRIVES.

A Long Conference With Secretary Root—Islanders Desire a Remission of Duty on Sugar—Other Concessions Desired.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The commission from the Cuban constitutional convention arrived in Washington yesterday morning. The commission is composed of Domingo Mendez Capote, president; Rafael Portuondo, Diego Tamayo, Pedro Gonzalez Llorente, Pedro E. Betancourt and Pedro M. Entenza. The last named is the interpreter for the commission. The party also included M. M. Coronado, editor and proprietor of La Discusion, and Senor Starling of El Mundo. They were met at the depot by Assistant Secretary of State Hill, Assistant Secretary of War Sanger and Captains Overton and Sawtelle of the army, who escorted them to their hotel.

General Wood, governor of Cuba, also arrived. The commission came from Havana by way of Tampa and General Wood from New York. The latter called at the war department at an early hour and went into immediate consultation with the secretary of war in regard to the situation in Cuba. The officers here are ignorant of the feeling against General Wood in Havana, but they approve fully of his actions and are determined to support him in his policy.

General Wood reached the war department shortly after 9 o'clock and after a brief talk with Adjutant General Corbin was shown into Secretary Root's office, where a conference respecting Cuban affairs was held. Senator Platt of Connecticut, chairman of the committee charged with the care of Cuban affairs, was present, as also were Assistant Secretary Sanger and Admiral Bradford, chief of the bureau of equipment, navy department. The latter's presence was desired, as the location of coaling stations in Cuba is to be made upon his recommendation.

It is gathered that, next to the subjects of coaling stations and the right of the United States to intervene in Cuba in the interests of peace and order, the Cubans attach most importance to the subject of sugar duties. The commission is trying to secure a remission of the United States duty on Cuban sugar. It is suggested that if this cannot be done at once then the duty may be removed gradually by reducing it a certain percentage each year until the sugar is duty free.

The president cannot grant this request, as it involves a change in the tariff laws, and therefore application must be had to congress. This may take the shape of direct joint legislation by the two houses or it can be accomplished by the negotiation of a reciprocity treaty. The Cubans, it is believed, prefer the latter form.

Tobacco, too, is another subject which the secretary of war will be obliged to discuss with the commissioners, and on that point he wanted advice. The Cubans are extremely desirous of securing a considerable abatement in favor of their own tobacco of the extremely high tariff imposed by the Dingley act upon all imported tobaccos.

Glass Pavement In Paris.

PARIS, April 25.—The municipality is experimenting with glass paving material. A section of Rue du Havre has been laid with it as a test. It is pure glass subjected to a process called devitrification. The result is a hard, smooth, opaque, nonporous substance which does not retain damp or odors. It possesses remarkable resistance. The inventors say that it combines the solidity of granite with the smoothness of asphalt. It is not affected by heat or cold. It, however, is expensive, costing from 9 to 12 francs per square meter. Another drawback is its extreme resonance.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

DAYTON, O., April 25.—The south bound Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton limited, due at this point at 6:20 o'clock, was badly wrecked nine miles north of Dayton, near Johnson's station, last evening. The accident was due to spreading rails which let the engine down, and it turned a header. Behind it the baggage car and smoker up ended and fell into the ditch. Engineer Patrick Dooley of Lima was killed, as was also Fireman Raymond McElery of Lima. The injured were brought to this city and taken to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Hatchet Women In Jail.

WICHITA, Kan., April 25.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, Mrs. Lucy Wilhite, Mrs. Julia Evans and Mrs. Lydia Muntz appeared before Judge Dale yesterday in the district court and failed to give bond. They were taken to the county jail and will remain there until a bond for $500 each is approved or until their trial at the May term of court for "joint smashing."

Postoffice Looted.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 25.—The postoffice at Ludlowville has been robbed. The safe was blown open with dynamite, and the thieves obtained about $400 in cash and stamps. Postmaster Wood has notified the sheriff of the robbery, but has little hope of apprehending the burglars, as there is no clew to work upon.

Suicide on Wedding Day.

ST. LOUIS, April 25.—William D. Bender committed suicide at noon yesterday while a carriage was waiting at the door to take him to his wedding. He was found a few minutes later by the friends who went to his room to summon him.

Mr. Murphy's Chances.

The feeling of the press of the State, without regard to party, seems to be that United States Senator Sewell's remarks concerning the candidacy of Franklin Murphy as the gubernatorial choice of the Republican party dispell any doubts which may have existed that he will be nominated. There was no doubt but that over a year ago, there was a very strong feeling in favor of Mr. Murphy. The Senator had not expressed himself on the subject then. Now his opinion comes apparently after careful and deliberative thought.

As the leader of the Republican party in New Jersey Senator Sewell's remarks are listened to with much interest. But even in his position Senator Sewell cannot afford to advocate any man who is not well looked upon through the State. It is his judgment in such affairs that has given him the prominent place in party councils which he now occupies. So his statement that he believes that Mr. Murphy's nomination will be for the best interests of the party can be understood to come after the Republican leader has carefully looked over the field and examined the support which is behind Mr. Murphy's candidacy.

There was only one provision attached to Senator Sewell's advocacy and that was that he should have the support of his county, Essex. It has been said by some that Essex county was not entirely enthusiastic over Mr. Murphy, but the general opinion of those who ought to know seems to be that there will be no objections coming from his home county.

The successful burglary of Postmaster Dealaman's store at Dunellen is only another evidence that the borough of Dunellen is in need of proper police protection. It is a subject which Dunellen's newly organized Board of Trade can agitate to the great advantage of every householder and property owner in that community. If the great army of tramps who swarm through the State discover that they may rob and steal with impunity, the borough of Dunellen will be the Mecca for them and burglaries and other crimnal acts will follow each other in rapid succession. Police protection costs something but nobody will object to a tax which will give better protection to their lives and property.

The West End gymnasium, which is to be opened to the public May 1, will be a wonderful addition to that section of the city. It will open a way for many young men and boys, who are hard at work all day, to enjoy healthful physical exercise in the evening. The gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. has worked toward that same end but its capacity is limited and the new gymnasium, which will be under the charge of the Young Men's Association of Hope chapel, will find a large field in which to work.

East Orange is considering the question of municipal ownership of its water plant. The Council of that city is seriously considering tho advisability of purchasing the plant and pipes of the Orange Water Company, and, with that end in view, an expert is carefully examining the plant in the interests of that city to appraise its value.

While it seemed for a while as if a strike on the Jersey Central Railroad was inevitable, the troubles have been satisfactorily settled, and now the peace of mind of the many thousand residents along the line of the Central is no longer ruffled by the disquieting rumors of impending trouble on the railroad.

Plainfield's boys, who are members of the State National Guard, have finally received their uniforms. While the company is not ready to take part as a unit in the field day at Trenton tomorrow, all the officers, both commissioned and non-commissioned, will be there to witness the drill.

Reports of small injuries, caused by the recent rains, are now being heard in this vicinity. New Jersey has been, however, remarkably fortunate in escaping from the general disaster which has spread through so many states in the track of the recent storm.

The Johnson syndicate is apparently losing no time to bring about a fulfillment of its promise to connect Philadelphia and New York by a trolley line. Every day brings new details of the work which is steadily being advanced.

There are some interesting competitions in view for the members of the Park Golf Club.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

A milkman was fined $50 and costs in Plainfield the other day for selling watered milk. If that had happened in Hoboken it would not have seemed so strange, but Plainfield, a rural district where James E. Martine, the flamboyant "Farmer Orator," has his farm and cultivates cows and oratory, it seems almost incredible. No wonder the State secured the services of Senator Reed to prosecute the offender, and it is a wonder that he was allowed to escape alive. The idea! Watered milk in a dairy district. No doubt every cow in Plainfield is chewing the rag.—Jersey City Journal.

* * * * *

The free silver element of the New Jersey Democracy is not to be left without a distinctive Gubernatorial candidate. Farmer-Orator James E Martine, of Union, has entered the lists and announced his purpose of breaking a lance with the other champions. This adds a very interesting complication to the Democratic situation. Mr. Martine's strength is an unknown quantity, but if steadfast devotion counts for anything, he should find a host of supporters in the old Fourth district and in South Jersey, as well as in his own county of Union. It begins to look as though there might be a lot of ginger in the fight for the Democratic nomination. All of which indicates that there is a very hopeful feeling in the Democratic party.—Newark News.

* * * * *

Hon. James E. Martine is announced as a possible candidate for governor of this State on the Democratic ticket. If continued, zealous faithfulness to the interests of the Democratic party constitutes any claim to the nomination for governor at the hands of that party, then Hon. James E. Martine has an undoubted right to aspire to the nomination. But we doubt if the party will give him what he so richly deserves. They have never done so yet. Whenever they had a chance of winning, the Democrats would give the nomination to anybody but Mr. Martine. When there was absolutely no possibility of winning they would chuck a nomination at him and try to make him believe that he was the party's only salvation. This has been the party's treatment of him with scarcely an exception, but he has nevertheless remained faithful, always doing his utmost for his party's success. It may be set down as an incontrovertible fact, that if the New Jersey Democrats think they can win in the Gubernatorial election, Mr. Martine will not get within shooting distance of the nomination. If they feel that they cannot win, they may, possibly, give it to Mr. Martine. Watch the proceedings. See if this is not a correct prediction. Mr. Martine deserves better at the hands of his party, but this is exactly in the line of their treatment of him in times past.—Elizabeth Journal.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, April 24—It is the opinion of the authorities investigating the Dealaman robbery that the work was that of outside talent, assisted by some one familiar with the store and its surroundings. The fact that the doors were not opened to make an exit or none of the windows raised, shows the burglars were aware of the system of alarms which protects the store. Accompanied by Chief Kiely and Detective McCarthy, of Plainfield, Mr. Dealaman visited the Greenbrook tanks yesterday and learned from several tramps who were hanging about that two men, carrying a number of packages, had boarded a freight train early yesterday morning. Beyond this no trace of the thieves has been discovered.

Fifteen Canadians, who are to be employed at the Dunellen Brick Works, arrived in the borough Tuesday and proceeded to celebrate the completion of the journey by imbibing intoxicating stimulants. Before evening, a number of them became oblivious of their surroundings and wandered into the yards and on the porches of several residences on Dunellen avenue, frightening the women occupants. The manager of the works was notified and succeeded in getting the inebriated men to the boarding place allotted them. He has promised a repitition of the offense will result in the discharge of the guilty ones.

The majority of the boroughites, who attended the Newark free excursion yesterday, arrived home in the evening thoroughly drenched. They had failed to provide themselves with proper protection from the rain and in the course of their travels about Newark secured a goodly share of the deluge. Altogether 81 tickets were sold at the local station.

Three hogs belonging to Lawrence Beedy, of Greenbrook, were recently found dead in the pen, having been poisoned during the night. The work was evidently that of tramps who hold some fancied wrong against Mr. Beedy.

Mrs. Emma Baldwin, who was taken suddenly ill last week, still continues to improve slowly and her complete recovery is now looked for.

John Herbert, Jr., of Jersey City, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Herbert, of Dunellen avenue.

Mrs. John Wherly, of Somerville, has been visiting her parents, Mayor and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer.

David Cavalier removed yesterday from Depot avenue to North avenue opposite Lincoln.

Fred Touzeau, of Schenck's grocery store, is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. Annie Abbott was the guest of Westfield relatives yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 25—The Lehigh Valley Railroad has placed heavier rails on the east bound track from Jersey City to Bound Brook and from Neshanic to Easton. It is the expectation of the company to complete the stretch between Bound Brook and Neshanic within a short time.

Landlord M. W. Casterline, of the Hotel Nelson, upon his retirement from business, will take up his residence at Potter's Crossing, where the Casterline homestead is situated.

The continued rain of the past few days has caused the water in the pond to become very high. There is a possibility of New Market having a second great flood.

Mrs. A. G. Nelson went to Caldwell yesterday to make a brief visit with Miss Mabel Lefler, who is attending the Mt. St. Dominica Academy at that place.

Twelve New Market people attended the Newark merchants free excursion yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, April 25—The reading given by Charles B. Loomis in the public hall at the library last evening was thoroughly enjoyed, although the weather detained many from being present. Mr. Loomis gave a varied programme of excellence and received many encores. There was a large sale of tickets for the entertainment and the profits will be quite satisfactory.

Mrs. Louise Hogan, who has been living at Fanwood for several months past, will soon return to New York. Mrs. Hogan is the editor of the children's page in the New York Tribune. She located at Fanwood where she could look after her work quietly and not be troubled unnecessarily.

The remains of Mrs Ephraim Drake, whose death occurred in Plainfield last Sunday, were interred in the Baptist Cemetery yesterday. Mrs. Drake was originally a member of the Baptist church at this place and was very well known by the older residents.

Unless there is a change in the weather the game of baseball scheduled for this afternoon between the local team and the Westfield team will be postponed to a future time.

Miss Seber, a teacher in the public school, is detained at her home by illness. Her place is being filled by Miss Florence Nicholl.

The Epworth League Literary Society will hold the regular meetiug this evening in the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiemser have taken up their residence in Louis Morrell's cottage on the commons.

M. J. Lyons, of Front street, moved today to the cottage owned by Dr. Coles on Prospect avenue.

Miss Minnie Hosinger is entertaining company from New York for a few days.

Miss Elsie Hull, of Front street, has accepted a position in Plainfield.

MR. JACOBS' MEETING

Plans Being Made for Large Service at First Baptist Church Sunday Night.

All members of the large choir, which so greatly aided the singing during the recent evangelistic services, are requested to be present at the meeting to be conducted in the First Baptist church Sunday evening. Seats will be provided them on the platform. All persons owning copies of Christian Hymns, No. 1, will confer a favor by bringing them. Preparations are being made for a large attendance, and under Mr. Jacobs' leadership there is no doubt but what the meeting will be equally as successful as any of those conducted during February and March.

TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY.

A tribute to the memory of little William Johnston Ellis, of Fanwood;

God in His wisdom has taken from our borough one of its most promising little ones. The memory of his bright happy face and extremely gentle and winning manner will linger long in the hearts of his loving friends, both old and young, with whom he was a favorite. In the sorrow-stricken home the little brothers and sisters were almost constant companions, and his care and thoughtfulness for younger sister and brothers was most marked.

All will miss him and the dear little Ida, who has just gone before, but none so much as the doubly bereaved household, who have the deepest sympathy of the entire neighborhood.

Ticket Agents to Pan-American.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company has invited its ticket agents to participate in a trip to the Pan-American Exposition grounds at Buffalo. The itinerary which covers Saturday and Sunday, maps out what promises to be an enjoyable trip. AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

A few remarks concerning Thomas Jefferson who appears at Music Hall tonight in his father's famous play of "Rip VanWinkle," theatre folks, of course, know all about him, but the general public have only a hazy idea that Mr. Jefferson has any children. True they have read of C. B. Jefferson, who was formerly associated with Klaw & Erlanger, and that he is a good business man, and that there were other sons, grand-sons, and nephews of the venerable comedian who travelled with him, but the information is meagre and contradictory. Thomas is the one who acts, and he always has time for a smile and a chat. He realizes the value of his father's creation of "Rip," and he is not going to let it get out of the family if he can avoid it. When he found that he had to play the part of "Rip," illness having compelled his father to retire for short interval, he was in a blue funk. If it had been suggested to him to run away he would have possibly done it. He was terribly scared There is a great deal at stake in his word and he has been very successful. His father said to him about playing the part: "Tom, act it as nearly like I do as you can, but if you find a line or bit of business that you can't copy me in with ease, do it your own way. My way may be better or worse, but the best way for a man to act is the way that his inner consciousness dictates." In a letter to his son, Tom, the wise old comedian says: "Remember ability and early success are of but little use without honest, earnest and conscientious endeavor. Actors who merely play for their own amusement regardless of the public duty have but a short reign." So it would appear that Joseph Jefferson has a pretty clear idea of the duties an actor owes to the public as well as to himself.

"Uncle Toms Cabin," which is now running with enormous success at the Academy of Music, New York, will be given in its grand entirety for "Mique" Muldowney's benefit, Tuesday matinee and night, April 30. The identical version now playing at the Academy with its grand environments of superb scenery, a great cast and host of auxiliaries will be seen and in addition a number of talented local celebrities have volunteered for the event. "Mique" is popular with the patrons of Music Hall and a bumper benefit is assured.

In the great Whitney production of "Quo Vadis," which is to be at Music Hall, Thursday, May 2, Julian Edwards' music is made a feature of the play and is interesting in itself. The imperial march and the hymns for the Christians are full of beauty, while the bacchanalian dance and song are full of life and color. The scenery is, perhaps, as elaborate and handsome as any ever seen here. The setting for the last act is particularly massive and gorgeous, giving one an idea of the vastness of the arena wherein so many martyrs suffered for their faith. The religious element in the Sienkiewicz' romance has been preserved by Stanislaus Stange in his dramatization, but there is nothing in the play to offend. The religious theme is handled with delicacy and reverence.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A private dump on Arlington avenue, near Arlington place, has caused considerable annoyance to the residents in that vicinity of late. Loose scraps of paper have been allowed to accumulate, and it is said that every east wind scatters the papers along Stelle avenue, Ninth street and Randolph road, while a west wind blows the waste over Park avenue.

"That when you brought me home as your wife she swooned away. One of the maids told me about it. She pretended to be confined to her room with a headache, but in reality she spent the two days in tears. She keeps a diary; it has a lock and key, but one day I found it open and read her heart. She not only loves you, but she has worshiped you since she was 15 years old. You have thought she was happy at Lyndhurst. The truth is she has not had one contented moment there. She dislikes me and imagines me unworthy of you, and that has only irritated her passion."

"Jeanne," said the major, "I can hardly believe all this, but even if it were true, what has it to do with this awful breach between you and me?"

"You must have her money or I shall never be content as long as I live." The speaker paused as if to let her statement settle into his disturbed consciousness, then she ended: "You must have it, or I cannot live with you any longer."

"You mean—" he was unable to proceed.

"I mean that you and I, Rowland, without harming the girl in the slightest, can, after her death, live the rest of our lives on that money, over half of which you have fairly earned by your business care and judgment."

"I don't see how we can do it," Goddard said, after he had endeavored to fathom her meaning.

"She has only two years to live at the very longest, dear. It would mean a temporary separation between you and me, but in the end we could make up for it. My plan is this: She loves you and would marry you within a week after my death if you asked her. I shall go abroad at once, and while I am away absolute proof of my death shall be brought to you and the authorities in America. Soon after this you must marry Blanche and get possession of her fortune. Then when she dies I shall manage to show that my death was a mistake and shall come back to you."

"My God, Jeanne! don't—don't ask this of me!"

"Darling, it would be the easiest thing in the world to accomplish, and then just think of all the after years of happiness which we shall spend together."

"I can't do it, Jeanne—I simply am not made that way!"

"Have you considered that you and I part, then, to-night?"

"You can't mean that?" he cried.

"Absolutely. I shall not go back to Lyndhurst unless you fully agree to my proposal. Even then it will only be for a week while I am allaying suspicion and preparing for my voyage."

"Jeanne, I simply cannot do this," groaned Goddard; "I simply cannot do it!"

The woman rose and stood before him at her full height. She had never looked so queenly—her influence over him had never been so great. She strode back and forth across the room with all the grace and beauty which had enthralled his senses a year before.

Suddenly she stepped up to him and laid a hand upon his shoulder which commanded him like the touch of a hypnotist upon a good subject.

"You know, Rowland, that another rich man wanted to make me his wife when I consented to marry you?"

He remembered that she had told him something of the kind just before the wedding, and how that fact had hastened his marriage. He nodded.

"I remember."

"He has not married," said Mrs. Goddard, in a tone of deep significance; "and still he wants me, and I could easily secure a divorce from you on the ground that you failed to comply with your agreement in regard to certain money and property which was to be settled upon me."

"Would you treat me that way?" he asked, and she saw him blindly yielding.

"I'd have to. I cannot be a poor woman any longer: you understood that when you married me, dear man. It is you who are failing to keep promises. Now, if you will say yes I will kiss you and you may stay here to-night. If not we must actually part company." She bent down over him; her eyes seemed to glow with flames kindled by the highest satanic art.

"Two years without you?" he gasped.

"She may not live a month."

He was as white as a dead man.

"But how could you come back from—from death and—and satisfy public opinion?"

"The easiest thing in the world. Leave that to me."

She saw his fears and good impulses returning, and to drive them away she sat down by him and put both her arms round his neck.

"Say yes, dear Rowland," she whispered, "and then you may kiss me."

He made no answer other than to push her head back passionately, and then gazing into her eyes an instant he kissed her on the mouth and drew her to him.

CHAPTER IV.

The Goddards breakfasted together the next morning in a private room downstairs. The meal passed in silence, which was broken only now and then by a cheerful remark on the part of Mrs. Goddard. He was sallow and depressed, as if he had passed a wretched night; she was flushed with triumph and the prospect of winning in a great game. Now that his word had been tacitly given he had the cowed air of most men of refined instincts who have sold themselves to the devil. His handsome face was stamped, too, with the lines of regret for his downward plunge, and keener regrets that he was in such a short time to be separated from her. He was unable to look her plot squarely in the face, else he might have had the courage to introduce certain white-winged objections which had flocked around him in the dead hours of the night when all the city seemed asleep. Mrs. Goddard ate heartily; he bolted his food. She said the coffee and rolls—those dainty crisp things no larger than a giant's thumb—were alone worth the inconvenience of spending a night in the city. When they had finished she told him she desired that he should go at once to Lyndhurst and inform Blanche that she would remain that morning in town to attend to some shopping, and that she would be home in time for luncheon.

"I hope," she added, "that you have no business to attend to at the office."

He had none, and it gave his heart a wrench to think that her shopping had to do with her preparations for her voyage.

"There is something else," she went on. "Did anyone at Lyndhurst know that I took so much money when I left?"

The major looked confused as he confessed: "Blanche happened to be with me when—when I went to the safe, and, naturally, I suppose I showed astonishment when I missed the—"

"Oh, it makes no difference," broke in Mrs. Goddard. "I can easily explain it, and my going abroad. I shall say it is only for a short run over and back. From the other side I can easily make excuses for a prolonged stay."

He left her in one of the drawing-rooms and hastened to get a cab to convey him to the station in time for a train to Lyndhurst. Good intentions and a clear moral outlook must naturally tend towards lightness of spirits, for Maj. Goddard, possessing just the reverse, felt as if his bones had turned to lead as he journeyed homeward. It is a wonder that his fiercely contending emotions did not tear his reason from its seat.

As to his wife, she was, as she had always been, diametrically his opposite. She took one or two turns in the corridors, where a considerable number of people were seated or promenading, and drew in deep breaths of something like thorough satisfaction. She seemed unconscious and yet keenly aware of the glances of loitering men of fashion who nudged one another and made admiring comments as she passed. She went through the revolving glass doors into the court, and as she smoothed on her dainty gloves she looked for a cab. When she had chosen the best looking four-wheeler a porter in uniform called it for her.

"No. 30 West Twentieth street," she said carelessly to the porter, who repeated it to the cabman as he closed the door.

The house before which the conveyance presently halted was a rather old-time, four-storied brown stone front, the steps of which were crumbling and broken, and before which stood those badges of an uncleanly neighborhood, an ash can and a garbage barrel.

Mrs. Goddard alighted, dismissed the cab and went up to the unswept stoop and stood on the worn india-rubber mat. She rang. An Irish maid answered the summons.

"Is Mrs. Nolan in?" asked the caller.

"Yes, madam; will you walk into the parlor?"

Mrs. Goddard gave the girl a card and followed her into a stuffy drawing-room on the left. Between the windows of this room there was a tall pierglass belonging to the style of half a century ago and a concomitant high and crudely decorated ceiling. There was a folding bed in the room and a washstand hidden behind a Japanese screen, which indicated that the apartment, in emergencies, was used as a bedroom. The place had the air and the odor of a second-class boarding house, but the sign in the window told the street that it was only an apartment house furnishing drawing-room privileges.

PARK AVE. AND RAILROAD

The secretary and treasurer of a manufacturing concern in Audubon, N. J., became pretty well alarmed by rapidly losing twenty-five pounds of healthy weight. "About two years ago," he says, "I began to have trouble with my stomach. I consulted our family physician. He said my stomach was only a little out of order. He gave me some medicine. In about two weeks I was just as bad again. He then said I was troubled with indigestion. I was under his course of treatment about 15 months and steadily grew worse until I had almost continuous pain in my head. I lost my appetite. My weight dropped from 168 down to 143 pounds. I became weak and so nervous still that I was unable to leave the house for a couple of days at a time. I saw the advertisements of Ripans Tabules in the papers, and some of the cases came close to mine, so I said to the doctor one day last July that I thought of trying Ripans Tabules. He looked at me and said: 'I don't think they will do you any harm, and let me know how you feel in a couple of weeks.' I must say that after taking the Tabules for three weeks I was a new man and at this writing my weight is 159 pounds, and I dropped the physician's race unt about $50. My indigestion, as the doctor called it, has entirely left me, and I am gaining in flesh and strength every day. I will take great pleasure in the opportunity to certify to any one similarly affected the efficiency of Ripans Tabules."

WANTED—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

FLOWERS.

Both Artificial and Natural Blossoms Are Worn.

A little cluster of flowers is worn in the buttonhole of the tailor made bodice or in the belt of the calling or walking gown. These flowers may be artificial. Most often orchids, with maidenhair fern, are chosen.

For evening wear the flowers are placed at the upper part of the bodice, near the shoulder or at the wrist. In the latter case the stems must be long, so that the flowers are lifted toward the bust.

Sometimes choux of ribbon are used on the bodice instead of a cluster of flowers. A picture is given of a wrapper of white crepe de chine in the Louis Quinze style. It hangs perfectly straight, being gathered to a square necked yoke and having a box plait down the middle of the front. The decolletage is surrounded by a double bertha of white mousseline de soie, and across the front is a scarf of water green silk, with two long ends at the left side and a bow at the right side fastened by a jeweled buckle. The sleeves are plaited as far as the elbow, below which they fall loose in a long point. This has a second frill of mousseline de soie inside it.

SHIRT WAIST.

no veil whatever is admissible. Application veils of a russet tone are new. The design is so complicated as to almost conceal the face, unless, as is sometimes the case, it is worn with the heavy border uppermost at the brim of the hat.

Speaking of hats, they are large, but flat. The decoration is massed, and there are no aigrets, high bows or sprays. Clusters of flowers, rolls of silk, gauze or lace and plumes laid horizontally are the preferred decorations.

The shirt waist illustrated is of white taffeta and is laid in box plaits in front, the back being plain. At the top of each plait is a strap of blue satin with lines of tiny gold buttons at each side of it. A strip of blue silk with lines of gold buttons passes down the shoulder seam also, and the collar is trimmed to match, as are the cuffs of the full sleeves. The blue belt is fastened by a gold buckle.

HARKEN YE.

To the Voice of Plainfield People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the nervousness, the restlessness that come from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one Plainfield citizen says:

Mrs. R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset street, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pains across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be continually changing about. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney trouble, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store, and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

"RING AROUND a rosy." Business is going in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want oysters, everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want beef. The sleeping spring appetites seem to have awakened and we are glad of it.

Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand, and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—goods right, prices right, treatment right.

Men Who Are Helping to Make the History of the World

W. W. Astor.

William Waldorf Astor, the man without a country, has discovered a new branch to his family tree that has given him new social aspirations, and which may cause him to transfer his residence from London, where he has tried unsuccessfully to break into the exclusive social set dominated by royalty and the nobility, to Paris.

John Jacob Astor the first, the great-grandfather of the present head of the Astor family, was troubled but little by such a thing as a family tree. Instead of investigating the history of his ancestors he devoted his time to the building up of a great fortune, and succeeded. The second John Jacob added to the fortune left by his father, and when he died his sons were among the wealthiest men in the world. With an abundance of money the third generation developed social aspirations of a high order. William Waldorf's were so high that nothing in this country could satisfy them, and, though this government had gratified his political aspirations to the extent of sending him as minister to Italy in 1882, he did not believe that his talents were sufficiently appreciated at home, and shortly after the death of his father, in 1890, he removed to England, where he has on various occasions been snubbed unmercifully by the royalty and nobility with which he wishes to associate.

For more than 20 years William Waldorf Astor has given close attention to the cultivation of a family tree. He is said to have traced his ancestry back through countless generations until he found that he was descended from the ancient Spanish dons, and that the blood of the cavaliers flowed in his veins. But he has found that in England the blood of the Spanish dons would not be allowed to mingle with that of the English nobility, and that the standing of his claimed ancestry would not open sealed doors. Recently he sprouted another branch of his family tree, and now finds that instead of being Spanish dons his ancestors were French dukes, who became Protestants at the time of the Huguenots. On the strength of this new discovery of his it is said he will make an effort to become a part of the Paris colony of discarded royalty that furnish republican France with much of its amusement.

Two Heroes Rewarded.

Calvin Titus.

Two young men who have distinguished themselves by acts of bravery in the military and naval service of this country have recently been honored by the president.

Osborne Warren Deignan, who guided the Merrimac into the mouth of Santiago harbor when the attempt was made to bottle up the fleet of Admiral Cervera, has been promoted to be a gunner's mate in the navy, a position worthy the ambition of any American boy; and Calvin Titus, who was the first of the foreign soldiers to scale the walls of Peking, and by whose hand the stars and stripes was planted on that wall ahead of the flag of any other of the allied armies, has been given an appointment to West Point. Both are Iowa boys.

Of the two acts it is hard to say which was the bravest. Deignan was one of a company that faced death together, but of all that company none but the brave commander of the doomed vessel occupied such an exposed position, for they stood side by side at the wheel, at which every Spanish shell was directed, and it is probable that neither expected to ever escape with their lives. For this act Deignan would in all probability have been sent to Annapolis had he not have been past the age limit for naval cadets. As it is, a way is now opened for him to advance to the rank of an officer from the ranks.

Titus acted practically alone in his daring, and in the face of a murderous fire. By his daring he made possible the entrance of the allies into Peking at a time when every moment was valuable. His reward is none too great for the act of bravery he performed. His home is in Vinton, Ia., and he is but 20 years of age.

After the South Pole.

Duke of Abruzzi.

An attempt is to be made to find the south pole by the man who has come nearest reaching the north pole, the duke of Abruzzi. He will sail for antarctic waters sometime during the coming summer in an expedition fitted out by the king of Italy, the Italian government and a number of Italian scientific societies which are interested in his explorations, and while he hardly expects to reach the southernmost point of the earth he does hope to come nearer doing so than anyone else ever has done.

Behind this young man, of whom the world heard so much a year ago when he returned from his explorations in arctic waters, there is some interesting personal history. He is described as a quiet, unassuming young man of 38 years; fond of solitude, but eager for adventures of a thrilling nature, which he has searched for in all parts of the world, and yet he was born amidst all the tumult that attends half a dozen Spanish revolutions.

He is a grandson of Victor Emmanuel I., king of Italy, and a cousin of the present king of Italy. At the time of his birth his father was the reigning king of Spain with the title of Amadeus I., who was elected sovereign of Spain to succeed Queen Isabella II. His reign was but short and tumultuous, and was remarkable for the number of revolutions against his authority, instigated by the Carlists, by the adherents of Prince Alfonso, son of Isabella, and by the republicans. It was in the midst of these that the duke of Abruzzi was born in Madrid January 29, 1873. A month after his birth his father resigned the Spanish throne, to be followed by the short-lived Spanish republic, and with his queen and family returned to Italy, where he died in 1890.

The duke of Abruzzi was a third son and was educated for the Italian navy, in which he now holds the rank of lieutenant. His first achievement that brought his name prominently before the world was the ascension of Mount Elias in Alaska in 1897.

A Self-Made Man.

George W. Perkins.

Everybody in America is interested more or less in the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan because of the great industrial combinations which that firm represent, and which have brought them prominently before the whole civilized world.

It is a banking house that caters not to the ordinary banking business, but to the great capitalists of the country. The latest member of this great firm of financiers is George W. Perkins, and behind his rise to power in the world of finance is some interesting personal history and achievements.

Mr. Perkins is a son of the west, being born in Chicago in 1862. The silver spoon was missing at the time of his birth, and was not found in his mouth. His father was a life insurance agent, and the son began his business career as an office boy in the Chicago branch of the New York Life company. There are to-day men connected with the life insurance business in Chicago, and who claim to have predicted his rise to power in the financial world because of the ability he displayed as an office boy.

During his connection with the life insurance company promotions came rapidly, and when he quit that company to enter the great banking establishment he had risen to the position of second vice president of the company, a member of its board of trustees and the chairman of its finance committee. He is in all respects a self-made man, and a sample of what any progressive American boy may become if he but has the push.

Y. M. C. A. Leaders.

Lord Strathcona.

There will meet at the jubilee convention of the Young Men's Christian association at Boston in June leaders of that association representing three countries.

From England will come Sir George Williams, who founded the original London association in 1844. From New York will attend Rev. George M. Van Derlip, who wrote the original letter from London in June, 1850, which was printed in the Watchman and Reflector of Boston, and which occasioned the founding of the Boston association that will now act as host for the convention, and from Canada will come Lord Strathcona at the head of the delegation from that country.

Of the three Lord Strathcona has probably had the most interesting history. He was born in Scotland, and from there entered the service of the Hudson Bay company, and was sent to Canada, where he endured the hardships and privations that fell to the lot of the northwestern fur trader. In time he rose to the head of that great corporation, and was its last resident governor. He has served Canada and the western provinces of Canada in many capacities; was a special commissioner in the Red River settlements during the first Riel rebellion; was a member of the first executive council of the northwest territory; has sat in the Manitoba legislature and the Canadian parliament at Ottawa, and is now the high commissioner for Canada in London. For the war in South Africa he organized the regiment known as Strathcona's horse, which has but recently returned from Cape Town to Canada.

WANTED TO GO HOME.

But Death Prevented Fulfillment of the Desire of Karl Albert Persson.

Karl Albert Persson, a young man, died at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Jacob Geier, of Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon. He was taken ill three weeks ago, and despite the best of medical attendance, steadily grew worse. Death was caused by Bright's disease and heart failure.

Persson, who was but twenty-three years old, came to Plainfield eleven years ago from Stockholm, Sweden. During most of that time he was employed by Frank Hedden, by whom he was regarded as a trustworthy and industrious young man. He was of a trustworthy and industrious young man. He was of a saving disposition and had accumulated a large sum of money, intending to visit Stockholm and his parents. It was his intention to sail May 5. Beside his aunt and uncle, with whom he lived, he leaves no other relatives in this city.

The funeral services will be held from his late residence, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and from the German Lutheran church, of which he was a member, at 2:30.

FINANCIAL REPORTS AT THE PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Annual Meeting of Church and Society Was Held Last Evening—Rain Kept Many Away.

Owing to the disagreeable weather, the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church and society, held last evening, was not largely attended. As most of the reports of the work accomplished in the church were read at the church annual meeting held last month, the session was very brief. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson, presided.

But two reports were given, and of these the first was merely a statement by Thomas A. Cuming, the secretary of the board of trustees, to the effect that it was unnecessary to give a synopsis of their work as it was embodied in the report of the treasurer. He concluded by saying that it was the earnest wish of all that enough money would be raised during the coming year to obliterate a note of $1,000, which is almost the church's entire indebtedness.

According to the report of the treasurer as submitted by F. Ostrom, the year was started owing the $1,000 borrowed money and $159 in small amounts. The cash on hand was $2 37. The $1,000 is still owing together with $164 composed of small expenditures. Thus while the debt has not been added to, it has in no way been decreased. During the year the receipts from all sources were $3,508.85, while the disbursements were $3,503 69, leaving a balance of $5.77. The total liabilities are $1,164.72, but there is owing the church from pledged amounts and other means $312.90.

The only other business of the evening was the election of three trustees to fill the expiring terms of C. K. Compton, John H. Doane and F. K. Fish. The former two were re-elected and G. E. Hall was elected for two years in the place of Mr. Fish. Thomas A. Cuming was elected clerk of the church. The meeting concluded with a prayer service during which Pastor Richardton made a brief address.

YOUNG MAN DEAD.

Thomas W. Townley Passed Away This Morning After a Long Illness—Was 25 Years Old.

Thomas Washington Townley, aged 25 years, died at 9 o'clock this morning at the home of his brother, William Townley, of East Second street, where he had been living for some time past. Death was due to a complication of diseases. During the past three months, Mr. Townley had been failing and since last Thursday his death was expected momentarily.

Mr. Townley was born in this city, and was the first of seven children to die. He was a machinist and for years worked for William H. Rogers, bicycle dealer, as repair man. For a time he worked at the Aluminum Press and Plate Works. After the death of James Bailey, of the fire department, Mr. Townley occasionally filled the position of driver for Chief Doane. He was a popular young man and had a host of friends.

There are left four brothers, William, Charles, John and Edward Townley, and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Moore and Miss Maizie Townley. Arrangements have not yet been made for the funeral.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DRAKE.

Held From Residence of Her Son, B. W. Hand, Yesterday Afternoon.

The residence of B. W. Hand, of West Second street, was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives yesterday afternoon, when the funeral service of his mother, Mrs. Rhoda Drake, were conducted. They were in charge of Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, who delivered a most impressive discourse.

At the close of the service, the remains were taken to the Scotch Plains cemetery where further obsequies were held in which Rev. G. M. Shott assisted.

The pall bearers were Lewis Walker, of Piscataway, William Clawson, of Samptown, and G. L VanEmburgh and Charles Stimpson, of this city. Among the beautiful display of floral offerings was a set piece from the immediate relatives with the words "mother."

"SUBURBANITE" WRITES ABOUT THE SITUATION.

Thinks That a Great Future is Now in Store For The Village of New Market—Its Attractions in The Past.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Izaak Walton in his recent letter to The Daily Press stated that many Plainfielders enjoyed a days' sport on the lake, but he never hinted one word about the stock company that for some months past has been negotiating for the Mahlon Vail property. It is understood that arrangements are completed, provided the trolley is extended to this place, to purchase this property. The object of the company is to erect a dancing platform, a merry go-round, dredge the pond near the roalroad, build a row or bathing and boat houses and place a naptha launch on the lake. Suitable buildings will also be provided for the sale of refreshments.

These buildings will be rented by advertising for bids, so that a man can have one or more privileges if he so desires No intoxicating liquors are to be sold on the grounds and all disorderly persons will be barred from the place. The place will be properly cared for by special policemen. The danger of children being drowned while bathing will be avoided as bathhouses will be practically arranged to prevent such accidents.

People living in Plainfield, belonging to the Catholic Sunday school, have found this an ideal spot for their annual picnic for three or four years. The Piscataway township schools hold their annual picnic on the same ground. One year they went to Lincoln, but were glad to return here the following year. They have now planned to hold the picnic, June 12.

This place for several years has been noted for its Fourth of July celebrations, and not a place within twenty miles ever offered such handsome prizes or had as fine a display of fireworks. Dunellen started these celebrations and having the trolley had the advantage of this place. If the trolley comes to New Market I can safely say that residents along the line of the trolley to Elizabeth will chose this place for family picnics and the old-time Fourth of July celebrations will be an event of note.

Dunellen people think that they have their eyes open and will not be bulldozed by trolley companies again, and they are anxious to have the Plainfield company ask for a franchise through a portion of their town. I can only say this, gentlemen, if the trolley company wants to run through Walnut and Depot streets to connect with New Market, meet them on equal footing, as the township committee is only too glad to give them the right of way to this place. We have the building lots to turn into a fine suburban residential section for business men and the lake and grounds to make a beautiful summer resort, so why not go ahead?

We hope the trolley company officials will see that we don't intend to give up the fight in making this a model town. With as much hope of seeing the trolley as Izaak Walton, I am a Suburbanite.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

Pleased an Audience at the Parish House of Holy Cross Church Last Night.

Under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross, a delightful musical entertainment was given in the parish house last evening.

The extremely unpleasant weather which prevailed lessened the attendance to a considerable degree, but those who attended the performance were well repaid for venturing out. All the numbers on the carefully arranged programme were decidedly well rendered. Two soprano solos by Miss Reed, of Providence, R. I., a gifted soprano, evoked much applause. Miss VanHerwerden's piano solo and Mr. VanEp's skillful playing on the banjo were both thoroughly appreciated as was also the recitation by Miss Grace E. Overton.

At the conclusion of the musical entertainment, delicious refreshments, placed on sale by members of the Guild, were speedily disposed of and a considerable sum was realized from this source.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONFERENCE.

Being Held in Various Townships of Somerset County This Week.

A series of Sunday-school conferences are being conducted in the various townships in Somerset county this week. The meetings are held in the afternoon and evening and on each day a different edifice of the Reformed denomination is used as a place of meeting.

Addresses on pertinent subjects are made by able speakers possessed of practical experience in the line of Sunday-school work and "open conferences" for the general discussion of a given subject are a feature of the meetings.

At the session held yesterday afternoon in Nechanic Reformed church, Rev. Arthur E. Main, the pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in this city, made an address on "The Home Department" and Miss Nettie J. Beeching, of Watchung, conducted the primary exercises. Rev. Mr. Main also spoke in the Harlingen Reformed church Tuesday afternoon and on the same evening Rev. J. W. Richardson, the pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered an address.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE IN AID OF MISSIONS.

Annual Meeting of King's Foreign Mission Society of Warren Chapel.

WAS HELD LAST NIGHT.

ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME GIVEN WITH REPORTS.

Addresses Were Made by Rev. J. O. McKelvey And Miss Rachael Mair—Interesting Reports Were Given.

The reading of reports, blended with a delightful entertainment, formed the annual meeting of the King's Foreign Mission Society, of Warren chapel, last evening. Both parts of the programme were greatly enjoyed by a large number of the society's interested friends

Of the reports, that of the secretary, Mrs Lewis Ely, was very interesting. In a concise and well-worded way it summed up the work of the society from the time of its organization until the present year. While in comparison with some others the amounts contributed for missionary purposes were not large, the spirit in which they were given is commendable.

The little band has assisted a number of missions, principally that over which their former president, Miss Rachel Mair, presided during her recent labors in Liberia. The society is now in excellent condition in every way and the members begin this year greatly enthused and with a desire, if possible, to exceed the past twelve month's effort.

According to the report of the treasurer, Miss Margaret Randolph, the society has raised during the year just ended $110 90, divided as follows: Balance, $8 54; dues, $22 50; donations, $22 55; missionary offering, $7.80; foreign missionary collection, $30 84; home missionary collection, $18 67. The disbursements have been $106 96, leaving a balance of $3 94.

Interspersing the reports was the following programme: Selections by the Dunellen Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club; recitation, Miss Marie Newman; vocal selection, Joseph Martin; address by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, and an interesting talk on missionary work in Africa by Miss Rachael Mair. The latter was helpful and instructing and at times humorous.

The evening's enjoyment terminated with the serving of refreshments. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Miss Mair, chairman; assisted by Mrs. Howard Thompson, Mrs. Lewis Ely, Mrs. Fred Conkey, Miss Minnie Gulick, Miss Hattie Taynor and Miss Margaret Randolph.

Charles L. Lewis, the instructor of music, will have charge of the affair and under his direction an elaborate programme will be rendered.

The chief feature of the evening's entertainment will be the rendition of "The Story of Calvary," a cantata which formed the main part of the Easter exercises in the High School. In addition to this musical work there will be a large assortment of selections.

Owing to the limited seating capacity of the church it has been found necessary to restrict the distribution of tickets solely to the pupils of the school, each of whom will receive two cards of admission.

CLEVER WORK SEEN IN LOCAL GYMNASIUM.

Annual Spring Exhibition Was Given at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Last Evening.

BASKET BALL GAME PLAYED.

BOYS DID FREE WORK AND EXERCISE ON APPARATUS.

Some of Those Whose Work Was Deserving of Special Mention—Friends of Participants Enjoyed the Exhibition.

The annual spring exhibition was given in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last evening and, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather, a considerable number of friends of the athletic performers were present to witness the work done by them.

Some of the performers did exceedingly well in various feats of strength and agility, and in fact all of the calesthenics, as performed individually and collectively, reflected great credit on the director of physical training, C. E. A. Heywood, who has had the boys in charge.

The exercises commenced with free movement work, with and without dumb-bells. On the low and parallel bars the second and third grade classes showed great skill as they did also on the horse. High bar work was done by the third grade class. The exercises with Indian clubs performed by William Sharpless brought much deserved applause.

Other feats which were well received were the rope climbing by G. C. M. Smith and the individual parallel bar work by Eric Moralier and Ralph Collins. In the running high jump contest O. W. Richardson and Harold Lusey showed great ability. Walter McNaughton, Ralph Collins, Fred Cranston and Eric Moralier did particularly well in individual apparatus work. The exercises on the low bar by W. McNaughton, Wilbur Bentcliff and Edward Neal were also very good.

It was the wrestling match betwen Morton Munro and Wilbur Bentcliff, however, which seemed to especially please the audience. This contest was preceded by an exhibition of the elementary principles of wrestling given by Messrs. Bentcliff, Munro, Simpson, Uhler, Morgan and Bookaw.

The evening's entertainment closed with a game of basket ball between two picked teams, the "Three W's" and the "Wasserpachers." Halves of ten minutes duration were played, resulting in a victory for the Wasserpachers by a score of 8 to 3.

CAUGHT THREE THIEVES WHILE THEY WORKED

Gang of Italians Plundered Residence of Rev. J. W. Sarles at Stelton Yesterday Afternoon.

TWO OF THEM ESCAPED.

OTHERS WERE CAPTURED AND TAKEN TO JAIL AT NEW BRUNSWICK.

Family at Sarles House Was Absent—Thieves Had Collected Considerable Plunder—Captured by Constable, Station Agent, Letter-Carrier.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 26—A desperate attempt at robbery occurred yesterday afternoon at Stelton, when a gang of Italian thieves made a raid on the home of Rev. J. W. Sarles, a retired clergyman. Three of the five men in the gang were caught in the house and are now locked up to await the action of the Grand Jury.

It was nearly 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Station Agent James Burke saw five Italian tramps jump off a freight at the Stelton station. He watched them and noticed that they went in the direction of the Sarles home. He at once notified Constable Horn and together with Letter-carrier Dunn, the men followed the tramps.

When they arrived at the Sarles home they saw two of the five Italians doing picket duty outside the house. These men made their escape. The attacking party then entered the house and captured the three there. The latter had succeeded in collecting many valuables, which they had tied in a bundle and were ready to take with them. The Italians were promptly arrested and brought to this city, where they were arraigned before Justice Heusell. The men gave their names as John Andrews, John Michael and Charles Vallentine. The men were held without bail.

It is believed that these men belong to a gang which has been plundering homes and farms hereabouts for some time past, and the capture is considered a lucky one. Mr. Sarles' home has been unoccupied for some time past, the family being away. It is thought that the thieves had some knowledge concerning this.

PERSONAL WORKERS WANTED.

Asked to Perform Duties at Meeting in First Baptist Church Sunday Night.

A special request is made by those in charge of the meeting to be held in the First Baptist church Sunday evening, under the leadership of F. H. Jacobs, that all personal workers who served at the recent evangelistic meetings come prepared to do similar duty. Pledge cards will be found in the rear pew at the corner of the church. In addition to his address, Mr. Jacobs will sing several favorite selections. It is to be hoped the meeting will prove a spiritual success.

Pastor's Anniversary.

The second night of the pastor's anniversary at the Calvary Baptist church last evening, was a decided success. Despite the disagreeable weather, there was a very large attendance. Remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Young, of New Brunswick, and Rev. Mr. Harris, of Cranford. The music rendered by the choir, under the leadership of William Johnson, was greatly enjoyed. Another pleasing programme has been prepared for this evening.

HOW TO SAVE MUSIC HALL.

PROMINENT CITIZEN OF THE BOROUGH SUGGESTS A PLAN.

Wants a Hundred Citizens to Contribute $100 Each And Buy The Hall.

A prominent man of affairs in the borough has made a practical suggestion relative to the continuance of Music Hall as a place of amusement.

The plan proposed is simply that one hundred citizens of good financial standing contribute $100 each towards a fund for the purchase of the theatre. The advantage of this plan, it is argued, is that it would be to the interest of each one of the hundred shareholders in the concern to use every endeavor to make it a financial success. A man having invested his money in the enterprise, according to the reasoning of the citizen in question, would actively enlist the support of his friends and there would always be one hundred agents booming the various entertainments which might happen to be scheduled at the hall.

In amplifying on the subject the citizen, interviewed by a Press reporter, said that should this scheme be adopted, Frank Rowley, the druggist, would consent to a entrance passage being made through a section of his store and hence no difficulty would be met with by reason of the closing of the present entrance.

In order to prove his sincerity in the matter this public spirited citizen has pledged $100 as an initial contribution towards the object he suggests.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 26.—It is probable that Somerville will secure the New York shirt factory which the Board of Trade has been after, and which will employ 150 girls and fifty men on the start and will increase to about 400 employes. The Board of Trade has agreed to pay three-quarters of the rent for five years, which means an expenditure of $3,000 by the board.

The factory will occupy the two upper floors in the Ballantine building, about 34,000 square feet. They will put in the latest improved machinery, both for making and laundrying shirts.

RECEPTION WITH MUSIC GIVEN AT THE CASINO.

Annual Entertainment of the Monday Afternoon Club Held Last Evening.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

BARITONE SOLOS BY MR. BURLEIGH, OF NEW YORK.

Guests Were Received by Officers and Entertainment Committee of the Club—Artistic Arrangement of the Casino.

One of the most delightful entertainments ever given by the Monday Afternoon Club was the reception with music held last evening in the Casino. Plants, flowers, colored lights, rugs, sofa pillows and an artistic arrangement of small tables, chairs and seats had transformed the hall into a beautiful drawing room with an "at home" atmosphere. Much credit is due the entertainment committee for its arduous labors attended with such satisfactory results.

The guests were received by the president of the club, Mrs. John M. Whiton, and the vice-presidents, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. Israel C. Pierson and Mrs. Wm. H. Sterling. The entertainment committee, Mrs. Harriet A. Schuyler, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders, Mrs. D. M. VanVliet and Miss Mary E. Tracy with the recording secretary, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, the corresponding secretary, Miss Harriet R. Shreve, the treasurer, Miss Florence Tweedy, and chairmen of committees, Mrs. Hugh Hastings, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, wore the floral badge that entitled them to special service in looking after the comfort of guests.

The following musical programme was rendered by Mr. Burleigh, the baritone singer in St. George's church, New York:

The Two Grenadiers	Schuman
Hark, Hark, the Lark	Schubert
Du bist wie eine Blume	Rubenstein
Der Asra	Hadley
Plantation Songs.
Two Hungarian Songs	Korbay
Under the Rose	Fisher
Scotch Song	Fisher
Absent-minded Beggar	Burleigh

Mr. Burleigh has a voice of great compass with fine enunciation and notes most effective in the expression of emotional music. His rendering of plantation songs was received with hearty applause that only ceased with encore after encore. After refreshments were served Mr. Burleigh favored the audience again with a Hungarian song, "Danny Deever," a selection from Franz and "Suwanee River." Three hundred guests were present.

WORKING AGAIN.

Rains Have Delayed Progress on the Somerset Street Widening Work.

Work on the widening of Somerset street, which has been delayed by the stormy weather during the last few days, is now being rushed by Street Commissioner Emmons.

The chief obstacle to rapid progress has been the scarcity of men competent to relay the flagging. All workmen in this line have been engaged as readily as they could be obtained. There is some thought of sending to Elizabeth for extra men to do the flagging so that the improvement may be hastened.

The laborers have nearly completed the excavating necessary in widening the roadbed, and almost all the stumps have been removed.

Changed Officers.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., met last evening, at which time Theodore Kurzhals, Jr., resigned his position as financial secretary. Ephraim Compton was elected to fill the position, and George Bolsterle was elected assistant recording secretary in place of Mr. Compton. After the business of the evening the members enjoyed a smoker and a collation.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION

Powder Works Near Griesheim, Germany, Destroyed.

LIST OF DEAD MAY REACH 200.

Fire Continues After Explosion, and Fumes of Burning Chemicals Drive Inhabitants From Their Homes.

FRANKFORT, April 26.—One of the most disastrous explosions on record occurred yesterday afternoon at the Electro Chemical works, near Griesheim, where smokeless powder is manufactured. Most of the boilers exploded. The noise was so tremendous that it was heard at great distances, including Frankfort and Mayence.

The factory immediately became a mass of flames, and a northeast wind carried the sparks to neighboring villages, where several house were also set on fire.

Eighteen cylinders, each containing about 100 pounds of smokeless powder, were in the room where the explosion occurred.

Troops were immediately ordered to Griesheim to prevent the fire spreading to the large benzine reservoirs near by. Fire brigades from every place in the neighborhood hurried to the scene, but owing to the dangerous nature of the disaster and the fear of a renewal of the explosion the greatest difficulty was experienced in stopping the progress of the flames. Only after five hours of strenuous effort was the conflagration to some extent controlled and the danger passed so as to make it possible to begin the sad work of extricating the bodies. It is feared that nearly 200 persons have been killed or injured.

Fancy Prices For Poe's Works.

BOSTON, April 26.—The French library sale at Libbie's closed with high prices, the top figure being $1,300 for a copy of Poe's "Al Aaraaf, Tamerlane and Minor Poems." A first edition of Poe's "Murders In the Rue Morgue," originally picked up in a Boston bookstall for 15 cents, was sold for $1,000, a Boston man acting for a collector securing the volume. The $1,300 copy of Poe was in the original boards, uncut. But one copy has been offered by auction in over 20 years. The copy sold yesterday is a presentation copy from Poe's sister, Rose M. Poe, with the inscription, "Presented to E.— by her friend, Rose M. Poe." Two autograph letters of Poe went to the same collector for $2,700, which also included two other items. A fine first edition copy of Milton's poems sold at the Foote sale for $370 went to Dodd, Mead & Co. for $555. The same firm also paid $540 for William Morris' "Defense of Guinevere," elegantly bound by Cobden Sanderson.

A Clever Diamond Robbery.

UTICA, N. Y., April 26.—Two men in the guise of workmen got away with the old trick and incidentally with diamond jewelry estimated to be worth from $6,000 to $10,000 at the home of Henry P. Crouse in the fashionable resident district on upper Genesee street. Mr. Crouse is a member of the wholesale clothing firm of Crouse & Brandegee. None but the servants were at home when a man rang the bell and said he had been sent from the electric light company to remedy a defect in the wiring. He was admitted after some hesitation on the part of the servants, during which he told a plausible story. He was in the house an hour, his partner in the meantime being on the street in case the family carriage was seen approaching. The police are active, but have only slight clews with which to work.

A Case of Clear Grit.

SCRANTON, April 26.—Seven years ago this coming June James Gannon, now 68 years of age, was sent to jail in contempt for refusing to sign a deed. Wednesday Governor Stone signed a bill which passed the legislature designed expressly for the release of Gannon. Habeas corpus proceedings were instituted to get Gannon before the court that an order might be made for his release. Gannon refused to sign the habeas corpus petition and further declared that he would not raise a hand to gain his freedom. To make the act effect its purpose it will be necessary to follow some procedure in which the acquiescence of Gannon will not have to be reckoned upon.

Armor For New Battleships.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The navy department has about concluded that the new battleships of the Virginia class shall have armor of six inches thickness in casemate and from 7 to 11 inches side armor. This is about the same as the armor on the ships now building. Chief attention is now being given to the batteries of the new ships. Although no conclusions have been reached, there is a tendency toward substituting seven inch guns in the broadside batteries in place of six inch weapons.

Ship Held Fast In Ice.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 26.—It is feared that the sealing vessel Virginia Lake, with 270 men on board, may be frozen in amid the ice floes in White bay, on the northern coast of Newfoundland, for the next six weeks. The arctic icefields are now packing in upon the floes which have inclosed her for the past month. A sister ship of the Virginia Lake, the Kite, with 150 men on board, is similarly situated in the gulf of St. Lawrence.

German Crops Poor.

BERLIN, April 26.—The latest crop reports for all Germany make a slightly more favorable showing than those recently issued for Prussia, which show the worst condition since official crop reports have been kept. On a scale beginning at 1 for perfect and closing at 4 for very poor winter wheat is given at 3.6, winter rye at 2.8, lucerne at 2.6 and meadows at 2.5.

Bank Tax Bill Signed.

ALBANY, April 26.—Governor Odell has signed the bill of Senator Krum taxing state and national banks 1 per cent annually in the manner of the tax on trust companies. This tax is to be in lieu of all other taxes now paid except that assessed on real estate.

Accidental Shooting.

JEWETT CITY, Conn., April 26.—While playing with a rifle Louis Liberty, aged 15, son of Napoleon Liberty, accidentally shot James Jarvis, aged 17. The bullet entered Jarvis' right lung. His condition is critical.

WHAT CUBANS WANT

Delegates Confer With President and War Secretary.

NO COMPLAINT AGAINST WOOD.

Construction to Be Put Upon the Propositions of the Platt Amendment Discussed—A State Dinner Tendered the Visitors.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The Cuban delegation from the convention framing a constitution for the new island republic saw President McKinley twice yesterday, once in the early part of the day, when there were introductions and a formal exchange of expressions of friendship between the United States and Cuba and again at night, when the members of the delegation were the guests of honor at a state dinner at the White House. The real business which brought the delegation here was transacted with Secretary Root at the war department, the president in the forenoon interview at the White House saying to the delegates that he would confer with the secretary, who would act as his representative in conferences over the Cuban situation.

Matters of importance were not touched upon in the interview between the president and the delegation, the conversation being almost wholly formal. Senor Capote in his address to the president spoke of the desire of the Cubans to have the closest possible relations with the United States. He said that United States soldiers and Cubans had fought side by side and driven Spain from the island and the ties between the two countries were bound in blood. The relationship, therefore, between the countries always should be most amicable and closer than that which usually exists between nations. He also spoke of the gratitude which Cuba felt to the United States for the assistance rendered in her liberation.

SENOR CAPOTE.

In response the president expressed his pleasure at meeting the delegation and desired through them to extend his kindest wishes to the people of the island. He said that his interest in Cuba always had been very great, and he made reference to messages he had sent to congress concerning the island. Its welfare always would be the subject of his most earnest consideration. He congratulated the members of the delegation upon being members of the Cuban constitutional convention. He said it was a high honor and it fell to the lot of but few men to have the opportunity to frame a government for a republic.

The most important meeting of the day was a conference in Secretary Root's office, lasting from 3 until 6 o'clock in the afternoon. This was the first business meeting, the others having been social and formal. Those present were the five Cuban delegates, their interpreter, Secretary Root, General Wood, Assistant Secretary Sanger and Senor Gonzalez, General Wood's secretary, who acted as interpreter a great portion of the time. The army officers who are acting as escort for the Cubans also were present. When the meeting adjourned, no official statement was made as to the proceedings, but it can be said that the result was considered satisfactory both by the Cubans and Secretary Root. The business was not completed, and the conference will reassemble this afternoon. The fact that the entire conversation had to be through interpreters made it necessary to proceed slowly.

It was made plain to the Cubans by Secretary Root that no modification of the Platt amendment could be made by the executive department of the government, and the Cubans themselves understand that there is little possibility of congressional action in that direction, so the conference was devoted largely to the construction which could be placed upon the amendment. The law states that the propositions contained in the amendment shall be "substantially" agreed to by the Cubans, and the discussion revolved chiefly around what will be considered "a substantial" agreement to the Platt amendment requirements.

There was some very fine legal sparring between Secretary Root and Senor Capote, the president of the constitutional convention and chairman of the delegation, as to the meaning of the amendment and the meaning of certain proposed drafts of the different propositions that were considered. Both the secretary and Senor Capote expressed their views quite freely, and the exchange of suggestions and replies was very interesting to those present. The intervention proposition caused the most discussion, and as this had received much consideration in the convention in Havana the Cubans were familiar with all phases of the construction that might be placed upon it.

After the conference adjourned the Cubans called on General Wood at the Richmond. Today Secretary Root will entertain the delegates at luncheon.

General Wood expects to leave here tonight, going to New York and thence to Cuba. It is not known when the Cubans will return.

The members of the Cuban constitutional committee were entertained at a state dinner given in their honor by the president at the White House last night. The guests invited to meet them were thoroughly representative of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government and included members of the cabinet, senators and representatives who have been prominent in the discussion of insular affairs, justices of the supreme court and officers of the army and navy. The dinner was limited exclusively to gentlemen, and covers were set for 47.

The guests assembled in the east room, where the formal introductions were made, after which the party proceeded to the state dining room, where dinner was served. Here the table, set in the shape of a double T, was handsomely decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and ferns.

The guests remained at the White House for several hours, it being after 11 o'clock before the last of them had departed. The Cubans were delighted with the attention shown them and with the cordiality with which their views on the questions of moment to them were received. The party remained in the state dining room and in groups of twos or threes discussed the situation. This gave but few of the Americans an opportunity to talk with all the visitors, and for this reason they were unable to ascertain with any degree of satisfaction the probable outcome of the committee's visit. Enough developed, however, to show that the Cubans are not a unit in their opinions as to the best steps which should be taken to bring about entire harmony between the United States and the people of the island. The observations made convinced some of the guests at least that the tariff is the key to the situation, and the opinion is expressed that if sufficient concessions are made by this government in the duties on sugar and tobacco the Cubans will be content.

FLOODS SUBSIDING.

But Thousands Are Idle and Much Damage Has Been Done.

CINCINNATI, April 26.—The high water mark of the flood passed down this part of the Ohio valley earlier last night than was expected, and the stage of water became almost stationary from 6 to 10 o'clock at fractions above 59.1 feet and afterward at 59.2 feet, when it became permanently stationary here and at upper points. Great relief is reported from Huntington, Catlettsburg, Ashland and Ironton, where the flood was bad, and at smaller places in that district.

The present indications are that the manufacturers and merchants on both sides of the river will be completely relieved before Monday. With the water almost ten feet above the danger line there is endless inconvenience and loss on both sides of the river, and there is some distress.

Three churches in Cincinnati are surrounded by water and as many school buildings, but these three schools have been dismissed. A careful estimate places the number of men thrown out of employment in Cincinnati by the flood at 2,000 and about half as many in Covington and Newport, Ky. Most of them will not be able to resume until Monday.

At Ironton it was reported that 1,500 men had been thrown out of employment. Similar conditions exist at Catlettsburg, Portsmouth and Huntington. An estimate has been made at Huntington that more than 3,000 families are homeless in the southern part of West Virginia and 8,000 men are idle and that the loss by the flood in that part of the state will exceed $1,000,000.

Flood Breaks Records.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., April 26.—Both the Shenango and Mahoning rivers are still rising, and they are now above all previous records except during the flood of 1893. The Erie and Pittsburg and the Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania railroad are badly crippled, and no trains can be run northward on either division. Near Pulaski, this county, the Shenango has overflowed its banks and covered the railroad tracks for more than a mile, and portions of the city are already under water. Mahoning town is the greatest sufferer in this respect, and residents of Montgomery street had to leave their homes. Movable articles were taken to places of safety, but there was no time for much preparation. Communication over the Mahoning is absolutely cut off with the entire western portion of the county.

Dams Carried Out by Ice.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., April 26.—The ice went out from lower Saranac lake last night. The dam and flume at Ames' mill and also the dam at the Saranac club at Bartlitts were carried away. The water raised several feet, and part of Dorsey and Woodruff streets are submerged. Numerous basements and cellars are filled with water, the meadows flooded and much timber floated off.

Dam, Bridge and Barns Destroyed.

UTICA, N. Y., April 26.—The dam of the paper mill near Sauquoit went out yesterday. A bridge and several barns were swept away, and a horse was drowned. The damage is not over $2,000.

A Testimonial For Governor Allen.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Governor Allen of Porto Rico has received an address by the representative people of the island which has taken the form of a handsomely engrossed volume, morocco bound and ornamented with heavy gold clasps and inscription plate. This address is signed by nearly all the political clubs on the island and contains the autographs of a large number of the leading citizens of Porto Rico, who have thus testified to their appreciation of his services.

The Cup Defender.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 26.—From a trustworthy source it was ascertained yesterday that the actual length of the steel mainmast of the Constitution is 108 feet and that the length of the new steel main boom is 110 feet. It looks now from movement going on in the steel shop that the Constitution will have a steel telescoping mast, although none of the telescope fittings are as yet adjusted to the mainmast.

Senator Charged With Bribery.

NASHVILLE, April 26.—Senator W. B. Eldridge of Shelby county was placed on trial before the senate bar on the charge of having accepted a bribe of $150 from A. S. McDowell in the race for assistant clerk of the senate before the Democratic caucus. The evidence is voluminous, and many witnesses are to be called.

Discovered Hidden Money.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 26.—While searching the home of the late Mrs. Anna Norton of Stevensville $1,300 in currency was discovered in an old trunk under a package of sugar. Mrs. Norton lived alone and was recently found dead.

Bonds Purchased.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The secretary of the treasury yesterday afternoon purchased $65,000 short term 4 per cent bonds at 113.5739.

ELEPHANT KILLS KEEPER.

Big Charley Puts to Death His Fourth and Last Man.

PERU, Ind., April 26.—Henry Huffman, well known animal trainer with the Wallace shows, met a horrible death here, being killed by Big Charley, a monster elephant, while the animal was bathing in the river. Big Charley wound his trunk about Keeper Huffman and hurled him far into the stream. The man was uninjured, and when he returned he said: "Why, Charley, I did not think that of you! Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" The next instant Huffman was grabbed by the big elephant and thrown to the bottom of the river and held there by the fore feet of the animal. Then, with a great roar, the elephant ran away. Several showmen shot at him, with no effect. He broke down fences and roamed about in a big field, keeping everybody at a distance. Apples loaded with strychnine were thrown near him, and he ate one. An hour later he laid down and was in terrible agony. A rifle shot settled him.

Big Charley weighed more than three tons and was valued at $10,000 and in his lifetime had killed four men. Keeper Huffman at different times was animal trainer in Fairmount park, Philadelphia, and Central park, New York city. His home was in Columbus, O.

GAMBLING ROOM RAIDED.

Another Move In the Hunt For Vice In New York City.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Frank Moss, Agent Thomas G. McLintock of the Parkhurst society, Justice Jerome and Detective Sergeant Cuff of the district attorney's office raided a gambling house at 50 Broad street yesterday afternoon, capturing five prisoners and a large amount of gambling paraphernalia. The place occupied three floors of the four story brick building which runs through to 52 New street and one story of the adjoining building, 48 Broad street. It was known as the Pennsylvania club, and "Pittsburg Phil" is said to have had a hand in running it.

Accompanied by a squad of police from the Old Slip station, the raiders walked into the place and found about 30 men gambling at all sorts of games. One thousand dollars lay on a faro table and $20 on a roulette table. Two Parkhurst society men who were waiting in the place grabbed the money as evidence. Among the players were two messenger boys.

Fierce Encounter With Burglars.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 26.—Herbert D. Moore, special officer of Cumberland, cannot live and Maurice Mountain, a car conductor, is suffering from severe wounds as the result of an encounter with two burglars at Valley Falls early yesterday. The burglars were surprised while at work at the store of Walter M. Brown by Officer Moore, whom they shot. Later Conductor Mountain, who had heard the shots and who with others went to Moore's assistance, ran into the burglars as he was going for a doctor, and he was shot in the neck and in the shoulder. The two men who did the shooting escaped.

Our Share In English Loan.

NEW YORK, April 26.—It is unofficially estimated that the American subscriptions to the English loan are $150,000,000 and that the allotment will be about one-third of the amount. Baring-Magoun & Co. have refused to take additional subscriptions, and J. P. Morgan & Co. only took them conditionally. London cables indicate that several allotments will be from 10 to 15 per cent of subscriptions. The members of the syndicate having in charge the loan in this country have not received any word yet regarding the allotment. It is understood that the Bank of England will make an official statement tomorrow.

Flood at Paterson, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., April 26.—The Passaic river has overflowed its banks and is threatening much damage. Already all of Dundee island and the lower section of Passaic are covered with from one to one and a half feet of water. Houses on the island are isolated, and boats have to be used to get to them. The river is now within a foot of the 1888 high water mark and still rising.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The indictment charging Albert T. Patrick with the murder of William Marsh Rice has been filed and contains ten counts, each charging Patrick with murder in the first degree. Minister Conger and Family Return From China.

NOT A CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

Desires to Go Back to Peking to Finish His Work at the Expiration of Time Limit—Chinese Stories Exaggerated.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—Edwin H. Conger, United States minister to China, accompanied by his wife, daughter and Miss Pierce, arrived from China last night on the steamer Nippon Maru. Owing to quarantine regulations and the necessity of giving personal supervision to the landing of his baggage Mr. Conger did not reach his hotel until late in the evening.

His arrival was awaited with considerable interest not only on account of his connection with events in China, but from a political standpoint. There was a great desire to know what position he would assume with regard to the coming gubernatorial nomination in Iowa. To a press representative Mr. Conger, when asked if he cared to make any expression on the subject, said:

"I do not wish to make any public declaration at this time. I have not yet had time to read the correspondence which has met me here. So far as I am at present advised I see no reason to change my position as expressed about two months before I left China. I received two telegrams from the United States. One asked me if I were a candidate for governor. I answered, 'I am not.' The other telegram asked if I would accept the nomination if tendered me. I replied that I would accept if the nomination came to me, but that I was in no sense a candidate. I do not care to nor will I say anything further in the matter until I reach Des Moines. I do not know what the situation in Iowa is and do not care to say anything definite until I am fully advised. My present intention and desire is to return to China and finish my work."

Touching events in China, Mr. Conger turned interviewer and was particularly anxious to know what had been done by the powers in the matter of indemnity. He was asked for his opinion as to the amount of indemnity China could pay. "Three hundred million dollars," he replied, accompanying his answer by the statement that it would be necessary for the government to practice economy. The time of payment, too, should extend over a long term of years.

Concerning events in China, Mr. Conger said that there was nothing new to be said in that direction, as everything happened had been told fully, together with many things that never occurred. Tales of brutality had, he thought, been exaggerated. Of course there were cases of outrage by individual soldiers that were not sanctioned by officers. These were but incidents of war which found some palliation in the fact that the Chinese had killed 40,000 native Christians and 100 Europeans. Asked in regard to his future plans, Minister Conger said he would remain in this city until Saturday morning, when he would leave for his home in Des Moines. At the expiration of his 60 days' leave of absence he intended to return to China. He would go back sooner if anything important should come up.

EXPEDITION OFF.

Allies Ordered to Return to Their Original Stations.

PEKING, April 26.—The expedition from Pao-ting-fu has been entirely called off, and the French troops have been ordered to return to the original station. The only casualties suffered by the entire expedition were two German soldiers killed.

With the exception of the formal ordering off of the Chinese troops, the only comment made by the court is a brief notice in the official gazette to the effect that had strong enough manifestations been made through the plenipotentiaries the troops would have been ordered to withdraw before.

China's Finances.

SHANGHAI, April 26.—The Universal Gazette prints an article giving details of China's revenue and expenditure. The figures show that the average annual revenue has been 88,000,000 taels, while the average annual expenditure has been 101,000,000 taels.

Evangelist a Horse Thief.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 26.—The Rev. John H. Graham, one armed evangelist, stood before a judge at Keyser, W. Va., yesterday in his clerical attire, confessed to being a horse thief and was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. Graham traveled through the state of West Virginia, held revival meetings and hundreds professed conversion, people traveling miles to hear him, so powerful was his eloquence. In most cases a horse would be missing when Graham left for a new field.

Mr. Bryan's Plans.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 26.—Mr. Bryan says he is not a candidate for renomination at the hands of the Democratic party nor does he expect to be again a candidate unless "it seems necessary" in defense of the principles he holds dear. This declaration occupies a conspicuous place in this week's Commoner, and the provocation is an editorial in the Springfield Republican which inquired what Bryan was "up to."

Suit Follows an Alleged Attack.

WAVERLY, N. Y., April 26.—Mayor Hugh J. Baldwin has been served with a summons and order of arrest in an action for damages arising out of Mr. Baldwin's alleged attack on Postmaster George D. Genung with an umbrella last Saturday evening. Mr. Genung claims $10,000 damages. Mr. Baldwin gave bail in the sum of $2,500.

The Future of the G. A. R.

It will not be many years before the Grand Army of the Republic, as an organization, will cease to exist. It will not be for lack of interest or enthusiasm, but rather for lack of members. Although the subject has been discussed thoroughly, no provision has been made to extend the life of that organization composed of the men who fought in the ranks of the Union armies during the Civil War. When the veterans shall have passed away, the G. A. R. will pass out of existence.

That the day is not so far distant when this shall come to pass is brought to mind at this particular time by a meeting of the Winfield Scott Post, which was held Tuesday evening. Since that branch was formed, forty seven comrades have passed away. During the last year, seven have been added to the death roll. Each coming year will bring additions to that number.

It is now twenty six years since the last battles of the Rebellion were fought. The men, who were then just at the entrance of manhood, are now well along in life. Same of them still have many years of activity before them. Others may fall before that grim reaper, Death, within the coming twelve month. There was some talk of prepetuating the organization by admitting the sons of the veterans to membership. The Sons of Veterans was formed as a result. Since the war with Spain it has been suggested that the veterans of that war might be taken into membership, but the idea did not find general favor with the Grand Army men.

And so it is likely that each year will see the various posts of the Grand Army of the Republic gathering with slowly diminishing numbers, until the time finally comes when only a corporal's guard of veterans will remain out of the great hosts which once marched under "old glory." But even after that organization shall have passed out of existence, its memory will always be held in the hearts of the American people with honor and respect.

A Generous Gift.

The gift of J. Howard Wright to the Muhlenberg Hospital, the details of which were published in yesterday's Daily Press, was indeed a generous one and one which will be greatly appreciated by those who are interested in the welfare of that valuable institution. It will enable Plainfield to make its operating pavilion equal to any in the State. It will also be a great encouragement to the men who are now working so earnestly to secure the necessary funds for the erection of the hospital.

There are few institutions which can be of such great value to the community as the hospital. Plainfield's present hospital is inadequate to meet the demands upon it, and there is need of a new and better-equipped structure in the near future. Offers of the nature of that made by Mr. Wright are of direct benefit to the community and will wonderfully aid a great and good work.

The Newark News says that East Orange is about to set the example with an ordinance regulating the running of automobiles. The honor should really come to Plainfield which passed such an ordinance over a month ago. It provides for the carrying of lamps and bells on the horseless carriages and places a limit on their speed. It is the latter provision which is most important and which should be carefully enforced. So far the Plainfield authorities have not acted as most of the drivers of these vehicles, which pass through this city, realize the necessity of maintaining a slow speed through the business section of the city at least. As the number of automobiles increases, however, it will soon be necessary to make an example of some wild driver before a serious accident is the result.

The union meeting, which is to be held in the First Baptist church Sunday evening, under the leadership of F. H. Jacobs, will not be for the general public. It is intended more as a rally of those who, during the Twentieth Century Gospel campaign, expressed a desire to become Christians. The meeting is limited to them owing to the fact that otherwise the church would be utterly inadequate to hold all who would desire to attend. As it is, the church will undoubtedly be taxed to its greatest capacity.

Unless the people of Plainfield are willing to patiently await the settlement of the municipal ownership question by the local authorities, they will act at once in the movement to secure the general use of water meters by the Plainfield Water Supply Company. While it must not be supposed that meters are the panacea for all troubles with the water company, they will at least make a far more equitable arrangement between the company and the consumers than exists at present.

According to the ideas announced by the Union County Board of Freeholders, the new county building a Elizabeth will be a handsome and well-equipped structure. The existing building is not large enough to accommodate the county officials and is in such condition that almost constant repairs are necessary. If the Freeholders do not get extravagant, their project to have a new building will be well received by the people throughout the county.

The rain has been making up for lost time during the last week so that the sight of the sun again is almost a novel sensation. According to the weather prophets, spring will now come with a rush.

There is promise now of seven automobile stages which will connect Plainfield with its suburban towns. The promoter of the plan says that they will be working inside of a hundred days.

The idea of holding commencement exercises in a church may not be pleasing to all, but the closing of Plainfield's only large hall of amusement makes it imperative this year at least Another year will see Plainfield's militia company ready to turn out with the rest when the annual field day comes around.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED.

Bridge at Oak Tree Rendered Unsafe by Heavy Rains Which Injured the Abutments.

The officials of Middlesex county have prohibited the further use of the bridge over the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks at Oak Tree, which will be somewhat of an inconvenience to the traveling public. That action was deemed wise in view of the fact that one of the abutments has been weakened by the continued rains during the past two weeks. After an investigation it was decided that the bridge is unsafe.

At the time the new track was laid under the bridze the bank was cut away to such an extent that the abutment was partially exposed. This was damaged by the heavy rains. According to this arrangement travelers are now obliged to go a long way round to cross the tracks. The company will have the bridge repaired at an early date.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 26.—The dime social held at the residence of Miss Emma Nelson, last evening, under the auspices of the social committee of the Daughters of Liberty, was a decided success. Music, games and other pastimes made the hours pass all too quickly. Refreshments were served at the close. Those in charge were H.G. Piddington, Miss Irene Day and Miss Emma Nelson.

A number of New Market people attended the meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., of Plainfield, last evening. Several State officers were present, thus adding interest to the meeting.

Michael Johnson has completed some extensive repairs about the foundation of the barn belonging to Mrs. L H. Danz.

New Market was well represented by young people at the dance of the Plainfield W. S. S. last evening.

The Friendship Social Circle met at the home of Mrs. Squires yesterday afternoon.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, April 26—It is quite likely that a large number of people from this place will go to Plainfield Sunday evening and attend the meeting to be addressed by F. H. Jacobs. During the evangelistic services held in Plainfield recently many of the people from this vicinity became greatly interested and will be glad of an opportunity to renew that interest.

It is reported that there are a few suspicious cases of sore throat among the school children in this vicinity, but the conditions are not as yet alarming. Since the presence of diphtheria, parents have been anxious concerning their children.

It has been partially arranged to play the game of baseball between the local team and the Westfield team next week. The weather this week made it impossible to have the contest.

Rev. G. M. Shott, of the Baptist church, will go to Plainfield tomorrow evening and teach the Sunday-school lesson for the teachers of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

A theatre party of young people went to Plainfield last evening and witnessed the production of "Rip Van Winkle," at Music Hall.

The regular prayer-meeting will be held in the Baptist church this evening. Rev. G. M. Shott will teach the Sunday-school lesson.

Repairs on the Mullison house at Samptown were completed yesterday. Chas. Brantingham and Albert Manning have been in charge of the work.

Marjorie Cubberley is confined to the house by an attack of malaria.

AT THE THEATRES.

Tuesday afternoon there will be a special matinee at Music Hall at 3:15 o'clock to permit the scholars to attend and witness "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The sorrows and joys of "Little Eva," the impishness of "Topsy," the drolleries of "Lawyer Marks," the pathetic devotion of "Uncle Tom" and cruelty of "Simon Legree," will never have been better presented, and the amusing episodes of singing, dancing, cake-walking, and high class specialties make up a bill of unusual excellence. The occasion is the benefit of "Mique" Muldowney, and there will be two performances.

F C. Whitney and Edwin Knowles' startling production of "Quo Vadis," a play made from Sienkiewicz' novel, by Stanislaus Stange, is announced for presentation at Music Hall, Thursday of next week. The piece enjoyed long runs in London, New York and Chicago last season, and was universally pronounced the most impressive stage picture seen in many years. Its story of Roman life in the time of Nero is already familiar to persons who keep pace with popular fiction, but the present play is manifestly a departure of its own and is very elaborate in scenic and spectacular effect. A number of scenes will be illustrated with choral music, hyms, bacchanalian chants and dances. These compositions were arranged by Julian Edwards, and a chorus of twenty is employed in their presentation.

The farewell week of straight variety at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York City, will be given the week of April 29, when the programme will be headed by Severus Schaeffer, the greatest of all jugglers. On May 6, the musical comedy section of the F. F. Proctor's big stock company will begin its metropolitan season at Proctor's Twenty-third Street house with the laughable three act musical comedy, "Cinderella at School." The usual popular prices will prevail, 15c., 25c. and 50c.

SOMERVILLE IMPROVEMENTS.

JERSEY CENTRAL PLANS DECIDED CHANGES IN STATION THERE.

A Tunnel Covered Platform and Other Things Promised After Conference With Town Officials.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 26—Hons. Alvah A. Clark and James J. Bergen have had a conference with the Central Railroad officials concerning the grievances of the town, which resulted most satisfactorily. The company has agreed to build a tunnel under the tracks and erect a covered platform on the south side of the tracks, for the accommodation of east-bound passengers.

The tracks of the South Branch road will be changed so that they will arrive at the station from the south, instead of backing down over the Bridge street crossing, as they do now. The freight depot will be moved so that freight trains loading and unloading will not be in the way of passenger trains. Automatic signals will be placed at the Middagh street crossing, and if these are not satisfactory the company will build a subway, if the town will join them in making the excavations.

The officials said that the stories about their removing all local trains from Somerville were untrue, as they had never contemplated such a step. They were pleased with Somerville patronage and were disposed to meet the citizens more than half way in any thing that would prove of mutual advantage.

AFTER FRANCHISES.

S. D. Drake Announces That Middlesex County Will Grant Them to Automobile Line.

Silas D. Drake announces today that franchises for operating omnibuses in Middlesex county have been applied for and will be granted at the meeting of the Township Committee, May 7.

The route to South Plainfield and New Market will be from the post-office through West Front street and Plainfield avenue to South Plainfield, thence to New Market, Dunellen and Plainfield. Trolley fares will be charged.

These omnibuses will be in operation within one hundred days, or the right of way will be waived.

DON'T WANT MUSIC HALL.

Klaw & Erlanger Cannot Take Charge of a Theatre in Plainfield at Present.

Elston M. French, in the course of his efforts to keep Music Hall open as a place of amusement, has endeavored to interest Klaw & Erlanger, the well-known theatrical syndicate, in the matter.

Some days ago Mr. French communicated with the syndicate and urged that the matter be taken hold of by them. In reply the syndicate has stated that as yet it has made no attempt to control the theatres in the smaller cities and that nothing can be done in regard to the matter at present.

The representatives of the syndicate say, however that, the subject is under consideration and should they at any time venture to run theatrical performances in smaller cities Plainfield will not be overlooked.

There was a step heavy enough to have been masculine on the diamond-shaped marble tiles in the hall, and a tall, angular woman about 50 years of age advanced into the room with quick, angry strides. She had crushed the visitor's card in the hand with which she was endeavoring to adjust a meager coil of iron gray hair. She did not speak till she had peered into the hall and carefully closed the door, then she said, frowning into the complacent face of the half-amused caller:

"It certainly is a good thing for you, Jeanne, that you came to-day."

"Ah, you think so?" Mrs. Goddard's smile was tantalizing in the extreme.

"Yes, I had written my last note to you. I say it now plainly, so that you will not keep me waiting so long again."

"I assure you, Lucy Nolan, that I came only by the merest accident."

"Oh, I don't care why you came, just so you came with the money. I have my room-rent to pay and several other bills. If you had not come this morning, I was going to Maj. Goddard with my whole story. It makes me furious to know that you are rolling in luxury while I am living like this. I haven't had a new dress for—"

"It is as well as you lived when you were my forewoman," said the visitor, with a sneer; "and when you had to work from morning till night. You can't frighten me, Lucy; you had as well realize that. Now, what will you say when I tell you that I have not brought you any money—not one cent?"

"What!" gasped the angular woman, "you mean to tell me—"

"I mean to tell you that the hen (begging my husband's pardon) which has been laying golden eggs for you, can't do it any longer. Goddard has lost everything he has except Lyndhurst and an income barely enough for a parsimonious man to keep it up on."

Mrs. Nolan sank on to a rickety sofa, and sat stiffly erect.

"You are not in earnest, Jeanne?"

"Yes, I am. I left him yesterday."

"Left him?"

"I was obliged to. I can't live on his present income; besides, when you told me Dugdale was here looking for me, I knew that he'd hunt me down sooner or later. Lucy, I must make for Europe. I couldn't live here with that fellow on my track. He is as sharp as can be."

"How are you going to Europe without money?" asked Mrs. Nolan, suspiciously.

"I have a plan; a desperate one, too, but I had to conjure up something. What I have in view includes you."

"Includes me?"

"Yes, it happens that I may really be able to put you to some use at last."

"I will do nothing without being paid, I tell you that."

"We will have a good bank to draw on, if everything works well." Mrs. Goddard lowered her voice, hitched her chair nearer to her confederate and explained salient features of her scheme. Before she had finished Mrs. Nolan was trembling all over, and her eyes were batting rapidly from sheer excitement.

"Is—is the girl so dangerously ill?" she asked.

"In a most critical condition."

"Why did you smile when you said that, Jeanne?"

"I don't know; did I smile? Because our success depends on the state of her health, you know."

"I never heard of such a—such a bold idea."

"It will work like a charm."

"But what part shall I play?"

"I shall need you as a companion of my travels; and you know I sha'n't be able to make a creditable exit from this life without somebody to testify to my demise."

"O! you want me to shoulder the risk."

"Puh! don't be silly; the whole thing will rest on me."

"I should love to go abroad, Jeanne."

"Well, there is nothing to hinder you. Goddard, after his marriage, will be involved as deeply in the matter as you or I, and with all that fortune to draw on, we sha'n't want for money, and we shall have the world before us. Lucy, I am simply enchanted with the thought of freedom—glorious freedom! I have not closed my eyes in really sound sleep since you wrote you had seen Henry Dugdale. I shall kill two birds with one stone—get out of his way and get plenty of money into the bargain. I wish you were less cowardly. I haven't the slightest fear."

"Well, you may count on me," said Mrs. Nolan, forced in spite of herself to enter into the buoyant spirit of her friend. "When once I get started I'm a regular war-horse."

CHAPTER V.

When Mrs. Goddard returned to Lyndhurst at noon, Blanche and her guardian and Mr. Talley received her in the drawing-room. The exchange of greetings might have been mere awkward platitudes but for her wonderful conversational skill.

"I am so sorry I was detained in town last night," she laughed. "The major was actually frightened when he reached me. I did a very foolish thing in taking so much money. Imagine my surprise to find that I had actually $5,000 in my purse when I took it out to pay the cabman. When I went off the major was not here, and being accustomed to taking money from the safe, I thrust my hand into the box and folded up some bills. I intended to pay a few bills of pretty good size in town, but goodness knows I didn't intend to carry off a small fortune."

Talley laughed unsuspiciously.

"Some pickpocket would have been in clover," he remarked.

"The fright I gave this dear man," and Mrs. Goddard laid her gloved hand on the arm of her statuelike husband, "was a good thing in one way, for when I told him that Dr. Sloan, who was at the Palace yesterday, had advised me to take a sea voyage he was so relieved over finding that I had not been abducted that he really consented to my running over to London for a week or so."

"We are sorry you are going," said Blanche, with a start of surprise.

"But surely not alone?" remarked Talley.

"No; I have applied to a bureau for a companion. They know exactly the kind of woman I want, and I shall have no one else, I assure you."

"I have been looking over my affairs, and I think I can get away," said Goddard. "You will at least allow me to go over with you."

"And be obliged to nurse you through your seasickness," laughed his wife. "No, this voyage is for my own health, thank you. From the moment the gangplanks are up till they are down he is too ill to eat a bite," she said to Blanche and Talley. "I shall be provided with a good companionable maid. New York is full of gentlewomen who are dying for such opportunities."

"After all, it may do her a lot of good," Blanche said, consolingly, to her guardian, when Mrs. Goddard had left the room. "She seems to anticipate so much pleasure from it. She seems to treat me so much more genially than she has been doing."

The major frowned. There was a trustful glance in the girl's eyes which recalled her school days to him. She looked almost as childlike as she had the day she had come into her father's sickroom, her long golden hair plaited and hanging down her back. How vividly he recalled John Briscoe's words:

"My darling child, this is the best and truest friend I ever had; he has shown me his friendship in a thousand ways; if anything should happen to take me from you he will care for you as tenderly as your own father could."

Goddard shuddered over this memory, and the thought that, although she was marked as such an early prey of death, he had been induced to plot against such frailty, but he felt the futility of struggle. Ever since he had fallen under the spell of Jeanne's eyes he had looked upon her as the ruler of his destiny, be it for good or evil.

"You ought not to suffer so because she is going, dear guardian," said Blanche, with tender concern. "You ought to look forward to her return, and not give yourself up to morbid brooding over it."

"She doesn't want me to go with her, you see," answered the major, coming back to a closer view of his own woes. His lip was quivering, and his tone was almost petulant.

"Sometimes I am afraid I am in the way," said Blanche. "Perhaps I ought to go away myself."

"No, you must stay," said the major; "but you must invite some one to be with you."

"Lottie Dean will come," said Blanche; "I shall write to her," and suspecting that Goddard wanted to be alone with his trouble, she left him.

The woodworker's life is hard at its best. Standing day after day alongside a workbench causes many of the delicate organs of digestion to get out of working order. Worry in the workshop six days in the week is very apt to carry over on Sunday also. Headache does not stop when the day's work is done, but spoils the pleasure of the leisure hours as well. A workman in the Burlington Venetian Blind Co.'s employ says: "Ripans Tabules first came to my notice when the engineer sent for me one day and asked me if I had ever used them. He recommended them so highly because they had cured him of dyspepsia and other troubles, that I began to use the Tabules. I found them so good that I recommended them to others. I have had headache but once since I began to take them. Everything I eat acts well now and even a crust of bread tastes good."

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One dose relieves. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, [illegible] at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

CHILDREN'S STYLES.

Pretty Ideas For the Wardrobe of Little People.

Poppy red is now fashionable for the dress of children and is extremely pleasing. Little people may always wear this beautiful, bright color without incurring comment, and the tiny red clad figures are a pleasure to the eye. Blue and pink, after white, are, of course, the conventional wear for children, and to them is now added lettuce green. For babies who take the air in a perambulator the cloak, bonnet and rug are chosen to match.

The cut illustrates a girl's costume of red cashmere with white dots. The skirt is plain. The blouse bodice has a wide collar of nainsook bordered with lace and opens over a plaited plastron of nainsook crossed by little bands of red velvet, each ornamented with a steel buckle. The collar and the draped belt which fastens at the side with long ends are of red silk. The half length sleeves consist of a puff from the shoulder to the elbow, below which are three circular ruffles. The hat of red straw is trimmed with red ribbon having white dots. JUDIC CHOLLET.

JEWELRY.

Many Ornaments of Great or Lesser Value Are Worn.

A great deal of jewelry continues to be worn. As is usual when much jewelry is fashionable many of the semi-precious stones are pressed into service, and now topazes, aquamarines, turquoise matrix and fine rock crystal are well employed for ornaments. With the decorative buckles used for belts and corselets comparatively short neck chains are worn. These are something new and reach only part way down the bodice. From them are suspended ornaments—little animals or medals of gold of several tints.

The costume shown has a skirt of black satin ornamented with stitched folds of satin. The bodice of black chantilly over white satin has a vest of white satin bordered with gold passementerie and closed with large, jeweled buttons arranged in pairs. The pagoda sleeves of chantilly have lower full sleeves of white satin spangled with gold, gathered into tight cuffs trimmed with black velvet bands. The chantilly collar has a cravat composed of loops of black velvet. The hat is of black tulle spangled with gold and is trimmed with parma violets and black velvet loops. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Temptation rarely comes in working hours. It is in their leisure time that men are made or marred.—W. M. Taylor.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 28, "Our League Pledge"—Text, Ps. lxv, 1; Eccl. v, 4, 5; II Cor. viii, 11.

"Pay that which thou hast vowed."

A good promise is of great value to him who makes it as well as to him to whom it is made. The effort of will necessary in forming a resolution has powerful influence in determining and settling character. The attention likely to be given a matter on which a resolution is made brings cultivation to mind and experience to the heart. The whole nature is enlarged and ennobled by the process of deciding freely and intelligently on any right course of action.

A still greater benefit, if it be possible that any good can be greater than these, lies in the sense of stability we derive from obligation to perform what we have pledged. "I said I would do it, and I will," is the end of all debate with an honest soul. Many temptations and dangers are escaped by calmly making vows in the hours when we can soberly debate the point at issue and in "cold blood" decide what is the right course and choose it.

Then when excitement comes and the "pull" of appetite and inclination is strong we are able to hold to our moorings until the gale blows out. But if no promises are made and we leave ourselves free to decide under the stress of sudden emergency the chances are largely against our being free to decide them. We are apt to be biased by passion or blinded by prejudice or swept from sound judgment by a multitude of contingencies. Vow in quietness when you can think coolly. Cast anchor while you are on good holding ground and before the storm breaks. Then let the anchor hold you.

But broken vows are bad things, bad as a broken rail for a locomotive or a parted cable for a vessel on a lee shore.

Our promise as Leaguers is to strive by the help of God to attain the highest New Testament type of piety and help others to do the same.

How have you been keeping your vow?

To keep within eyesight of it we must: 1. Think often what it means. What is the New Testament standard of piety? To know its features we must read the Bible itself. If you want to know "what would Jesus do" the best way to find it out is not to read some twentieth century novel, but the gospels. Put the principles you find there at work in your own life and you can make your own novel. You can live a romance in real life. 2. We need to plan how to do our daily work according to Christ's pattern. Because we intend and desire to do nothing wrong it by no means follows that we will not need to use all our skill and sense in finding what the right and best way is. Many Christians do an incalculable amount of mischief, unintentionally to be sure, but no less damaging, because they do not take pains to find out how things should be done. Discipline and train yourself as a soldier of Jesus Christ if you have enlisted in His cause. Endure hardship without whining or repining. 3. Put heart into keeping your vows. Do it with love, with enthusiasm. If you think and plan and pray, the fervor will come. The more you invest the larger interest you will have in the success of the work. Praying is putting soul into effort. It is heart energy co-operating with thought and will power.

Are you sorry you ever promised?

Some are. That's because they have not half kept their vows. Unfaithfulness is a most unsatisfactory condition of soul. Repudiation will not settle the account.

Deeper than all happiness which can by any possibility be imparted by Almighty God to a soul which receives in mere passive acquiescence is the blessedness which is experienced when in conscious, free activity the spirit participates with God in the doing of His work.

The blessednesses of existence are for him who overcomes.

"Defer not to pay thy vow."

Just Outside.

Not a few persons can be found in nearly all our churches who have inwardly resolved to live upright lives and who often by their consistent conduct put to shame many professing Christians. It is a serious mistake on their part and a great detriment to the church that, having gone so far, they have stopped short of their full duty. They have made no open profession of faith in Jesus Christ and often have no experience of pardon or consciousness of personal salvation. They are among the most difficult of persons to reach with the gospel message. Strange as it may seem, they are among the greatest hindrances to the conversion of others much worse than themselves. Their attitude settles others into indifference or opposition. They are almost saved, but just a little outside the door.

They must be reached by some means so as to open the way for others. Patient study of each case will frequently suggest some way to reach them. Sometimes a plain, straightforward statement of the matter to them is the best way to proceed. Tact is requisite in all cases.

Be Cheerful.

It depends less on surroundings than on self. No sunshine can scatter the gloom of a heart given to brooding, nor can any clouds depress the soul that is thankful. It makes little difference what you have or where you are, but counts much what you are. No sickness, not even pain, can wholly stifle the cheerful spirit. Rather the good cheer of heart will strengthen the bodily powers until the pain lets go and the disease departs. Cheerfulness is health; it is also religion; it is the key to happiness and helps make heaven.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 28—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Fidelity to pledges. "I promise."—Ps. lxv, 1-4; lxi, 1-8; cxvi, 12-14.

The second clause of the Christian Endeavor pledge is "I promise," and on this clause of the pledge the entire structure rests. Everything depends upon the keeping of the pledge. It is useless and worthless unless it is kept. The criticism that the pledge at first aroused has practically ceased, and yet there is a phase of the pledge that needs still to be emphasized—the necessity and importance of fidelity to it. It is not kept as it once was. It is not kept as it should be, and perhaps the fault lies in the fact that it is not emphasized as it once was and should still be. Fidelity is the all important characteristic of a vow. It is better not to vow than to vow and not pay. As Endeavorers it may be well to note some reasons why we should be faithful to the promise clause of the pledge. The reasons will apply to all pledges, whether made to God or to man. All vows should be performed. All promises should be kept. All debts should be paid. "When thou vowest a vow unto God, defer not to pay it; for He hath no pleasure in fools; pay that which thou hast vowed."

1. The Christian Endeavor promise should be kept because of the person to whom it is made. That person is Jesus Christ. "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him." The promise, the pledge, is made to Christ, not to man, not to the church, not to the society, but to Christ. This should make this pledge absolutely inviolable. All promises should be kept, but above all those made to Christ should be kept. We cannot afford to be indifferent to pledges made to man, but infinitely less can we afford to break a pledge made to Christ.

2. The Christian Endeavor promise should be kept because our personal honor and character are at stake. Nothing tests true honor and character better than a solemn pledge. The man who is indifferent or false to his word is not to be trusted. A reputation for failure to keep promises is a most undesirable reputation. A reputation for fidelity to promises is a most desirable one. We should shun the former and cultivate the latter. For our own sakes we should make our word as good as our bond, whether given to God or to man.

3. The Christian Endeavor promise should be kept because of Christ's fidelity to His promises. Christ has given us precious promises, and He never fails in the keeping of them. His example should inspire us to fidelity to our promises to Him. How can we break faith with one who has never broken faith with us? If He were unfaithful to His promises, a lack of fidelity on our part might seem to be excusable, but He is always faithful, and as He is so should we be.

4. The Christian Endeavor promise should be kept because it is a voluntary pledge. No Endeavorer was forced to take the pledge. Christian vows are always voluntary, and hence no excuse can be given for indifference or faithlessness to them.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Arrange a special programme with an address on the subject, "Fidelity to the Pledge."

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxviii, 20-22, with Gen. xxxv, 7; Job xxii, 27; Ps. xxii, 25; lvi, 10-13; lxvi, 13, 14; cxvi, 18, 19; Eccl. v, 1-5; Isa. xix, 21; Jonah ii, 1-10; Acts xviii, 18.

Retarding the Spread of the Gospel.

It is equally true that he who seeks to retard the conquest of the world for Christ affiliates and may be reckoned among the adversaries who seek to defeat the object of His coming among men. Why should any man dare to excuse himself from doing what Christ positively requires, especially when the decree has gone forth that every knee shall bow to do Him homage? Has not the Father given all to His Son? Has He not said to the church militant, "Ask of Me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession?" It may be said this is the promise of the Father to the Son, but whatever is given to the Son is given to the church, for blessed are they who put their trust in Him; and to trust Him means that we implicitly obey Him, and obedience brings victory.—Philadelphia Methodist.

Larger, Fairer Worlds.

Blessed are they to whom science and art and religion and all natural beauty and all sad and joyous experience are gates through which the soul freely passes into larger and fairer worlds than earth, where the symbol is changed for real being and where each mortal form is made resplendent by its indwelling, immortal life.—Christian Register.

Sunset.

After a day of tempest,
A battle of wind and rain,
Just when the gloom was thickest,
The sun shone forth again;

Lit with a blaze of glory
The track of the seething waves,
Fell like an angel's blessing
On the desolate churchyard graves;

Gave heart of hope to the fisher
Wearily faring home,
Brightened the brow of the goodwife,
Watching till he should come,

And the words of the Holy Scripture
Were borne to my soul again
As I thought of the wonderful gladness
Of sunshine after rain,

And thought that ever the Master,
As once in Galilee,
Is ready to calm the tumult
Of storm on land or sea.

And yet when the gloom is thickest
And the day is almost done
He sends us cheer and courage
In the gleam of the setting sun.
—Christian Union.

A STORM PREDICTED.

England Must Fight With America or Eat Humble Pie.

LONDON, April 26.—Mr. William P. Stead, in an interview with a representative of The Daily Mail yesterday, said:

"The Boers are calculating upon England's becoming embroiled with Russia or upon some other international complication. If I am not mistaken, we are on the verge of a storm across the Atlantic that will rudely shatter our peaceful calculations.

"When the United States congress meets, the Clayton-Bulwer treaty will be torn into shreds and flung in our faces. We shall have to choose between fighting and eating humble pie.

"The first serious discussion of the possibility of such a war will do more to keep the Boers in the field than all the speeches of all the pro-Boers in existence."

The war office has received a further brief telegram from Lord Kitchener recording the capture of Boers and the taking of a 12 pounder gun, together with the finding of a destroyed 4.7 inch naval gun which the Boers captured at Helvetia.

It is reported from Pretoria that General Baden-Powell will resign the inspectorship of the South African constabulary and return to England at an early date.

An All Day Fight.

CAPE TOWN, April 26.—A dispatch from Dordrecht, Cape Colony, says the yeomanry under Colonel Wodehouse and the Dordrecht volunteer guard were engaged all day Wednesday with the Boer invaders in the vicinity of Dordrecht. When the British commenced firing at a distance of 200 yards, it is said, the Boers fled in confusion, abandoning a number of horses. When the messenger left the scene, the Boers were between the two British forces. The Boer losses are unknown. The British had no casualties.

FOUND AFTER SEVEN DAYS.

Body of Young Sawyer Grappled Near Scene of Drowning.

LAKEVILLE, Conn., April 26.—The seven days' search in the lake here for the body of Otis Sawyer of Montclair, N. J., was ended shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the very day that the dead boy's father on the other side of the Atlantic had broken the news of his drowning to an invalid mother and sister. The search had been pursued steadily during the day in boats with grappling hooks since the explosion of heavy charges of dynamite Wednesday had left little chance of the body still being on the bottom of the lake.

At the hour mentioned Captain Evarts, the diver who has been in charge of the search throughout, was dragging about 60 yards from shore at a spot some 700 feet from the scene of the diving operations when he felt his grapple catch on some heavy object on the bottom. By the aid of those in the boat he pulled it to the surface and revealed the body of Sawyer with limbs contracted as if in a final struggle and a pair of eyeglasses clutched in one hand.

The body was in a good state of preservation and was immediately prepared for shipment to New York.

Phillips Makes $100,000.

CHICAGO, April 26.—With George H. Phillips apparently unloading his May corn holdings and Armour & Co. buying at his price, May corn yesterday went shooting up to 49 cents. From the opening nearly to the close of the day's trading things moved fast in the corn pit, and the attendant excitement pleased the crowded gallery and filled most of the brokers' offices with excited men. It was estimated that the corn Phillips disposed of secured him an average profit of 5 cents. This, figured on the 2,000,000 bushels sold by him, gives for his day's work a profit of $100,000.

Helen Gould Was the Donor.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Miss Helen M. Gould gave $10,000 last January to build a Young Men's Christian association headquarters at Fort Monroe under the condition that the name of the giver be kept secret. The fact came out yesterday, however, when active work was begun upon the erection of the building. A second association headquarters have just been provided at Fort Hancock, N. J., the giver of $10,000 with which to erect the same being Thomas S. Gladding of this city.

Whisky Plant Seized.

CHATTANOOGA, April 26.—The plant of the Lookout Distilling company, together with 631 barrels of whisky, has been seized by revenue collectors on an order from Washington. Shomatultsky & Connor, former proprietors, who sold the plant April 1, were arrested. Duplicating stamps on original packages is the charge.

Revenue Receipts.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue shows the total receipts for March, 1901, were $24,030,745, a decrease as compared with March, 1900, of $295,933.

Robber Caught.

FISHKILL, N. Y., April 26.—Albert Booth, a former Erie railroad employee, was arrested here while trying to rob the ticket office of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team plays the Rutgers Preparatory School nine at New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon.

The baseball teams of the Third and Fourth classes of the Plainfield High School play a game this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on Martine's Common.

The Alis Athletic Association baseball nine, which plays the Plainfield High School team tomorrow afternoon on Martine's Common, is claimed to be a strong aggregation. Bert Moore is the team's captain, and Aaron Thompson its manager.

The postponed baseball game between the Borough and the City High School nines, scheduled for yesterday afternoon, was stopped at the first inning by a sudden downpour of rain. By an agreement between the respective captains of the teams another date will be arranged for the contest.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team will make the trip to New Brunswick tomorrow by stage. The coach will leave the Somerset street schoolhouse at 12:30 o'clock sharp. A limited number desiring to see the game played with the Rutgers Preparatory school can be accommodated in the coach.

The Hope chapel and Leal's School nines will cross bats on the diamond of Pittis' field tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The positions and batting order of the Hope chapel boys will be Gordon, third base: Roseberry, centre field; Smith, short stop; Montross, pitcher; Hatfelder, catcher; Evans, first base: Auten, right field; Mague, left field, and Hand, second base.

The St. Mary's nine will open its season tomorrow afternoon on its new grounds on West Fourth street. The first game was to have been played last Saturday but the rain prevented. The opposing team tomorrow will be from Kensington A. C., of Brooklyn. An exciting game is promised. The St. Mary's team is stronger than ever before and will undoubtedly give its guests a hard fight.

GOLF.

There will be no golf at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club grounds this week. The green committee has decided that the recent heavy rains will not permit the course to be used for the present. The opening date has therefore been postponed until further notice.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Edith Lacey, of LaGrande avenue, has purchased a 1901 Wolff-American wheel, which she expects to enjoy very much during the coming summer.

VISITORS EXPECTED.

Out-of-Town Organizations Will Probably Attend Gesang and Turn Verein Fair Tonight.

The Gesang and Turn Verein fair in Sangerbund hall was marked last evening by a decided increase in the attendance.

Spirited contests afforded much excitement as well as increased largely the receipts of the evening. One contest that is growing in favor as the fair progresses is that in which a prize is offered to the man voted to be the most popular man of the organization. The other contests are also receiving considerable attention.

Again last evening the chief attraction appeared to be the dancing and all evening the merry couples glided over the floor to the music furnished by Prof. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra.

Notwithstanding that no visiting delegations have yet attended the fair, the management appears to be sanguine that the public will not be disappointed in this respect this evening. Tonight societies from New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Stirling and Lincoln have promised to be present.

His trouble was at first thought to be rheumatism, but the doctors fear that he is more seriously ill than was at first supposed. He was accompanied on the trip from Trenton yesterday by his nephew and a trained nurse. Mr. Little is the president of the New Central Coal Company, with offices at No. 1 Broadway, New York.

OBJECTED TO WIFE'S ARREST.

HARRISON RANDOLPH AND WIFE WERE BOTH LOCKED UP.

Randolph Attempted to Interfere When His Wife Was Ordered to Jail—Hearing Yesterday.

Mrs. Irene Randolph, colored, caused considerable excitement on Watchung, near North avenues, yesterday morning, and as a result she and her husband, Harrison Randolph, who attempted to prevent her arrest, were locked up at police headquarters.

The Randolph woman, it is alleged, was lamentably intoxicated and the husband was compelled to call for George Belcher's hack as the only means of getting her home. At this juncture Mrs. Randolph proceded to disrobe, it is said, and Detective McCarthy, who happened to arrive on the scene, promptly notified her that she was under arrest. She was placed in the hack and the Detective gave the order to have her conveyed to police headquarters. This order was not to the liking of Harrison and, it is alleged, that he made strenuous resistance on her behalf.

Detective McCarty called upon a young man to escort Mrs. Randolph to the police headquarters while he took charge of the husband.

Yesterday afternoon City Judge Runyon gave the pair a hearing, the woman being charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and the man with interfering with an officer.

The testimony produced varied considerably. Hackman Belcher was pronounced in his opinion that there was no justification for the arrest of the man and that McCarty had been unnecessarily brutal. Three others, however, were of a contrary opinion. City Judge Runyon, in suspending sentence on the husband, said that the man while guilty did only what many men would have done under the circumstances.

Mrs. Randolph frankly confessed her wrongdoing and pleaded for a merciful consideration by the court. With her also His Honor was inclined to be lenient and after receiving a reprimand the woman was allowed to go on suspension of sentence.

ELLIS HOUSEHOLD BRIGHTER.

TWO CHILDREN NOW ILL SEEM TO BE IMPROVING.

Mr. Ellis Has Requested New York Authorities to Carefully Examine Son Now in That City.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 26—Conditions appear brighter at the home of LeRoy J Ellis on Forest avenue today. Dorothy and James, the two children ill with diphtheria, are much better. At the request of Mr. Ellis, Dr. Westcott, this place, arranged with Dr. O. L Jenkins, of Plainfield, and Dr. Smith, of Westfield, for a consultation. This was held yesterday, at which time anti-toxine was administered to both children. This morning the children do not seem to have any fever, but the diphtheria has not left them entirely.

The clearing weather and bright sunshine has brought cheer and hope to the Ellis household, and Mr. Ellis, as well as others at the house, feels more encouraged today. Not wishing to take any chances Mr. Ellis telephoned this morning to the New York Board of Health requesting them to send an inspector to the home of Mrs. Norton, in New York, and make a thorough examination of his son, LeRoy, to ascertain whether there is the slightest indication of diphtheria. Mr. Ellis is not willing to take any chances with the Christian Scientists and has taken this action as a precautionary measure.

New York reporters visited the Ellis home yesterday, but Mr. Ellis absolutely refused to be seen. He states that any reported interviews in the New York papers are entirely without foundation as he has refused and still continues to refuse to be interviewed. He also says that the pictures in today's New York papers are purely imaginary ones, as he refused to furnish any pictures.

England's Elderly King.

With one exception, never since Egbert—the first king of England—came to the throne has a successor ascended it who exceeded, or even approached, the present king in years. The Saxon and Danish sovereigns had short reigns, and for the most part died young. Even Alfred the Great, who made England and ruled for 30 years, was only 52 at his death. The very first of our monarchs to attain the age of three-score and ten was our first great queen, Elizabeth, and she was 26 when she came to the throne. All the house of Hanover, of whom the present king is the seventh, have been long-lived, George I., who died at 67, being the youngest. William IV. did not succeed his brother until he was 65, and he was older than the king by six years. George IV. was a trifle younger when he came to the throne —London Chronicle.

What Prehistoric Men Ate.

Our modern microscope has been looking back some 5,000 years and examining the food of our savage ancestors when they were but little above the beasts whose bones we find mixed with theirs. Charters White, of the Royal Odontological Society of Great Britain, has recently placed under his microscope teeth taken from human skulls dating back to the stone age, and carefully examined the tartar on them after it had been dissolved in a weak acid, hoping to find traces of the food that they had masticated. He was entirely successful, and found corn husk particles, hairs from the outside of husks, spiral vessels from vegetables, particles of starch, point of a fish tooth, oval cells from fruits, barbelets of down, portions of wool, and pieces of quartz and flint.—Science.

Every Man His Own Foot Rule.

Your hands and arms will make good substitutes for a foot-rule or a tape measure. The first finger is usually four inches long, two inches from the knuckle to the next joint, and two inches more to the tip. From the tip of the middle finger to the elbow is about 16 inches on an average, and the distance from finger tip to finger tip of the outstretched hands is about six feet. Individuals vary in these respects. But if once for all you measure the exact length of your finger, your arm, your outstretched hands, and your foot or boot, you will have permanent measures always with you. —N. Y. Herald.

The King and His Dog Tax.

A recent Greek law is to the effect that every owner of a dog shall pay a yearly tax of 12 drachmas. Those who do not pay in time are condemned by the new law to pay double the tax. King George sent recently to the police in order to register his four dogs and pay their taxes. But the official found that his majesty owed for the taxes a sum of 48 drachmas, and had been fined another 48 drachmas for having delayed payment. His majesty has paid 96 drachmas for his dogs.—St. James' Gazette.

Parliamentary Records.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman holds one of the proudest records of the commons. He has held his seat without a break for almost a generation. Patrick O'Brien holds a distinction of another sort. He is the Tom Thumb of the house, standing four feet three inches in his shoes. It is one of his namesakes—J. F. X. O'Brien —who has distinguished himself by being sentenced to be hanged, drawn and quartered.—St. James Gazette.

WILL SELL ELKWOOD.

If Delinquent Taxes, Amounting to $300, Are Not Paid By Wm. R. Rice Estate Before May 1.

Included in the properties to be sold May 1 under the provisions of the Martin Act is the building on West Second street, formerly known as the Elkwood. The taxes due on this property amount to nearly $300 and as the taxes have to be two years delinquent before the property can be sold, the sale cannot take place until May.

This property was originally assessed to C. T. Barney, of New York. Afterward Wm. R. Rice, for whose death Lawyer Patrick has been indicted for murder, was obliged to foreclose the mortgage. Former Judge Bartine, of Somerville, was the attorney in New Jersey for Mr. Rice and he had charge of the property. Unless Mr. Bartine arranges to settle the amount due, the property will be sold.

Collector of Taxes F. H. Smith will make his report to Corporation Counsel Marsh next Monday, and the Common Council will take action on this report at the May meeting.

CENTRAL'S PLANS FOR THE COMING SUMMER

Most Important Improvement Will be Elevation of Tracks at Bayonne.

ELEVATED AT NEWARK ALSO

WILL REBUILD AND ENLARGE NEWARK BAY DRAW BRIDGE.

A New Station For Roselle on South Side of Tracks is Alread Under Way—Will Raise Tracks Eight Feet at Bayonne.

With the advent of spring, the Jersey Central Railroad is prepared to start a number of improvements along the line between Jersey City and Somerville, all of which will tend to better the service of the company. The most important improvement of the winter months was the erection of the new east-bound station in Plainfield. Work has now begun on another new station at Roselle. Probably the most important change of the spring will be the elevation of the tracks at Bayoone and Newark.

Heretofore the station at Roselle has been on the north side of the tracks while only a shed has served to accommodate the passengers for the east-bound trains. The shed has now been torn down and a handsome little station, modeled after the same design at the modern ones on the Jersey Central line, will be erected in its place. When the new station is completed, the old frame building will be removed and the ticket office transferred to the south side of the tracks.

As comparatively few Plainfielders visit Newark, the elevation of the tracks there will not seem of as much importence to the local commuters as will the change at Bayonne. There are two grade crossings in Bayonne, Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, at which accidents are frequently happening. Despite the best efforts of the railroad employes, people will persist in rushing across just as a train is passing and the results have sometimes proved fatal.

Beginning at Eighth street, just east of the old Bergen Point station, the tracks will be gradually raised until, at the crossings in question, they will be eight feet above the present grade. The streets will be slightly depressed to allow them to pass under the railroad. From that point, he tracks will gradually return to the present grade which will be reached at Thirty-third street. Two tracks will be raised at a time and the other two will be used for traffic. In that way the railroad officials hope to have the work done without materially interfering with the traffic, either passenger or freight.

Another important change will be the rebuilding of the drawbridge over Newark bay. It is planned to increase the width of the draw by some twenty feet and to put in complete new bulkheads. These changes will necessitate a temporary draw bridge which will be built parallel to the present one. The approaches will be built of piles and will connect with the present structure. A similar one was built some years ago when the present drawbridge was built over.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS THERE.

Rev. T. S. Henderson and F. H. Jacobs Will Speak at Convention.

The decennial convention of the Somerset County Christian Endeavor Union will be held May 3, afternoon and evening, in the Second Reformed church, Somerville. Rev. Theodore S. Henderson and F. H. Jacobs, who assisted in recent evangelistic services in this city, will assist in the services. Rev. Mr. Henderson will speak in the afternoon, and Mr. Jacobs will have charge of the music and lead the "Quiet Hour" service in the evening.

Will Act On Mr. Martine's Offer.

It is believed that at the meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital Monday evening some action will be taken regarding the offer of J. E. Martine to give a plot of ground for the new hospital. J. Howard Wright's offer of $10,000 to establish an operating pavilion will probably be officially accepted at the same time.

Charles Graves Will Build.

Charles Graves, of South Second street, near Grant avenue, has purchased a lot from his father, and next month will erect a handsome house thereon.

Two More Dances.

The members of the W. S. S. will give two more dances in Central Hall before they close the season.

LAST PLAY FOR MUSIC HALL.

ORIGINAL PRODUCTION OF "QUO VADIS," COMING NEXT WEEK.

Will Mark Close of the Career of Plainfield's Only Theatre—A Fine Performance.

On December 27, 1899, Manager Maze Edwards signed a contract with Messrs. Whitney and Knowles for the original production of "Quo Vadis" to be given in Music Hall, May 2, 1901. Before the necessary signatures were placed on this contract it was stipulated that 'Quo Vadis" was to be presented in its entirety. This point was conceded with the promise that sufficient room and adequate stage facilities were available.

A representative of the famous New York firm has today taken measurements and assures Manager Edwards that the full production will come to Plainfield according to contract.

This is undoubtedly the most portentious offering that has visited Plainfield in many a day. It is also a strange provision of Providence that the historical old playhouse at Plainfield will end its career with this performance. A more fitting or appropriate attraction could not have been selected. Those who witness the triumph of Christianity over the superstitions and bloody reign of Nero will have a lasting memory of the brilliant career of Stillman Music Hall which will hereafter be devoted to sordid commercial purposes.

DECEIVED THE COURT.

But Mrs. Stevens Finally Admitted That She Had Been Drinking.

Mrs. Mary Stevens, of Watchung avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Overbaugh for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. After spending the night at police headquarters she was given a hearing this morning by City Judge Runyon. The woman declared that she was subject to fits and was suffering with one when arrested by the officer. At first she declared emphatically that no liquor had passed her lips.

His Honor announced that he would withhold sentence until the matter was investigated, but in a few moments Mrs. Stevens confessed that she had deceived the court in her plea.

A fine of $10 or forty days' imprisonment was the punishment inflicted by the court.

SUCCESSFUL CAKE SALE.

Given by Ladies' Aid Society of Park Avenue Baptist Church Yesterday Afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church held a most successful cake sale yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John H. Doane, of LaGrande avenue. This was one of a series of sales that have been held by the women for the benefit of the church, and their efforts have been generously rewarded.

There was a good attendance at yesterday's affair and the entire stock of cakes was sold at good prices. The society will realize $13 as profit. A feature, that was greatly enjoyed by those attending the sale, was the sociability on the part of all.

It was intended to have an informal programme of music, but later it was decided to omit it this time. There was no special committee in charge, as all the members agreed to act as a committee.

In Honor of Their Guests.

A delightful party was given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Duer W. Baird, of Linden avenue, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley, of New York. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing parlor games. Instrumental music added much enjoyment to the occasion. Before midnight the guests, twenty-five in number, partook of refreshments.

Receiver's Sale.

There is advertised in today's Daily Press a receiver's sale of furniture at the Plainfield Furniture Company's store. 139 East Front street. Eleton M. French is the receiver. Commencing Monday he will offer for sale the furniture at that place below cost. Great bargains for cash. The sale will only last a few days.

Miss Messler Still in Charge.

Miss Emma Messler, superintendent at Muhlenberg Hospital, who recently resigned her position, is still in charge and will remain at the hospital until some action is taken by the Board of Governors. Miss Messler will undoubtedly remain in Plainfield after giving up her position.

The books and accounts of A. B. Thorn, formerly of the borough, were sold yesterday at the office of Justice Nash by Constable W. R. Mattox. The were valued, at $1,350 and Lawyer W. S. Angleman bought the entire lot for $10.

FIRST PUBLIC MEETING.

Young Men's Brotherhood of First M. E. Church Entertained at Vincent Chapel Last Night.

The Young Men's Brotherhood of the First M. E. church held its first public meeting last evening in Vincent chapel. The affair was largely attended by the members and their friends. The Brotherhood was recently organized by the young men, having for its object the advancement of religious and social interests among the young men in the church.

The meeting last evening was in the form of an entertainment and Charles Thompson, of New York, a well known sleight-of hand performer, was present and entertained the audience with his clever tricks. He gave one of the best performances ever seen in this city and his work was heartily applauded. Mr. Thompson formerly lived in Elm place, this city, and at one time was a clerk at Shaw's pharmacy.

Mr. Thompson occupied the entire evening and held the close attention of all. N. A. Miller, president of the Brotherhood, was in charge. At the conclusion of the entertainment he thanked all for their attendance and explained briefly the objects of the association. He then invited all to partake of some light refreshments provided by the young men. After enjoying the repast and a social time, he happy affair was concluded.

BUSINESS COLLEGE SOCIAL.

Gave Annual Reception to Their Friends at College Last Night.

Once each year the students of the Plainfield Business College lay aside their books and entertain their friends at a pleasant social. This event took place last evening and a most enjoyable one it was. The attendance was very large, the reception room of the college being well filled.

The students had prepared a programme of musical selections and recitations, the rendition of which required some time. At the close all joined in playing games and having a general social hour. The serving of refreshments brought the evening's enjoyment to a close.

Supper and Social.

ANOTHER FANWOOD HOME IS NOW QUARANTINED.

Illness of Margaret Gibbs Proved to be Light Attack of Scarlet Fever.

ELLIS CHILDREN IMPROVED

WORD RECEIVED FROM NEW YORK THAT LEROY ELLIS IS BETTER.

Is Not Believed That He Has Dread Disease—Diphtheria Prevailing in Westfield—Some Alarm at Illness in Gibbs Family.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 27—There is now a noticeable steady improvement in the condition of Dorothy and James Ellis, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs LeRoy J. Ellis and there appears to be no reason why they should not recover. Miss Yeatman, of Nashville, Tenn., a relative of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, arrived here yesterday. She is a skilled trained nurse and she will take charge of the Ellis children, assisted by others at the house.

Mr Ellis received word this morning from his wife, who is in New York, that she is very much better. The son, LeRoy, has not developed any symptoms of diphtheria and is not likely to now.

There was some alarm here yesterday when it was learned that there was a case of contagious disease in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W E Gibbs, on North avenue. Their daughter, Margaret, was taken ill Thursday night. At first it was feared that she had diphtheria. Dr. William H. Murray, of Plainfield, was called and he took a culture from the girl's throat. This was sent to the laboratory at Princeton University for examination. Word was received in reply that there was not the slightest trace of diphtheria germs, but that the case was one of scarlet fever. The Gibbs home is now quarantined and the best of medical treatment is given.

Mr. Gibbs believes that his daughter contracted the disease about a week ago when she took a trip to New York with him. The case does not thus far appear to be a very severe one and the family and physician are hopeful far a successful termination.

Dr. Smith, who is attending the Ellis children, reported today that three children have died in one family at Westfield, where five children have been ill with diphtheria. This has caused considerable alarm on the part of the residents there and the Board of Health is alive to the situation.

Removing to the Hotel.

Miss Mary Beerbower, who has been at the hospital for several weeks under treatment, left the hospital today and was taken to the Hotel Kensington, where she will remain for the present. Her condition is improved, although the chances for recovery are not any better than they have been during her illness.

Married Quietly at Rectory.

Former Patrolman John Winzenried and Miss Margaret Delaney, of this city, were quietly wedded at St. Mary's rectory Wednesday evening by Rev. Father P. E Smyth. Only several intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. They will reside on Lee place.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to James A. Miller, of West Third street, by thirty-two of his friends. Dancing and instrumental music were the features of the evening. Refreshments were served at midnight.

READY FOR SEWER.

Committee on Borough Storm Sewer Will Report at Next Borough Council Meeting.

The committee appointed by the Borough Council to frame a suitable ordinance to provide for a substantial storm sewer for Somerset street, and to make an approximate estimate of the cost of the improvement, has completed its work. The committee will report at the meeting next Friday evening as ordered.

Much consideration has been given the subject by the committee, which is composed of Mayor N. B. Smalley, Borough Counsel Chas. A Reed and Borough Engineer H. C. VanEmburgh.

The Mayor, accompanied by the Borough Engineer, was in Perth Amboy yesterday examining the several designs in sewer pipe manufactured by the Standard Fire Proofing Company of that city. Fortunately they found a particular style of pipe in terra cotta which exactly answers the purpose required and it will be recommended to the Council manic body. The diameter of the pipe agreed upon is twenty-four inches.

Senator Reed, the borough counsel, will draw up the requisite ordinance before the meeting, and hence everything will be ready for prompt action on the part of Council.

T. W. TOWNLEY'S FUNERAL.

Was in Charge of Independent Fife and Drum Corps As He Had Requested.

With very impressive funeral ceremonies, the remains of Thomas W. Townley, who died Thursday, were laid to rest this morning. They were in charge of a detail from the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, in compliance with his request before death.

At St. Mary's church where the main service was held, the edifice was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives. Rev. Father P. E. Smyth officiated and spoke at some length on the untimely death of the young man. Among the handsome display of floral emblems were several large set pieces, one of which was a beautiful harp, the gift of the drum corps.

At the close of the obsequies, the remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery. The pall bearers, who were chosen from the young man's comrades in the drum corps, were M. H. Brokaw, D. V. Force, Lawrence Benner, H. R. Brokaw, Henry Adams and Raymond Carver.

IN ORPHAN'S COURT.

Exceptions Taken to Accounting of an Estate in Somerset County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April, 27—In the Somerset Orphan Court yesterday F. A. Pope applied for an attachment to produce Wm. J. Pearson, executor of the estates of the late Oliver R. Pearson and Wm. Fryer, to appear and give an accounting in these estates. The rule was granted.

Exceptions to the account of John B. Dunster, executor of Phoebe Woodward, deceased, were filed by Horace Codington. Former Judge Bartine claimed that the first exception, that the executor had not accounted for all monies received, was too vague. Mr. Codington asked for an amendment to the exception, which was granted. He then stated that $95.58 had been received from the estate of Oliver Woodward, and was not accounted for.

Mr. Bartine asked that they be given time to answer this exception, and the case was then postponed until May 10.

IN CONTEST AT FAIR IN SAENGERBUND HALL THIS WEEK.

Other Contests Will Be Ended This Evening—Large Attendance at Fair Last Evening.

The Gesang and Turn Verein fair last night proved to be the most successful of any evening thus far. The contests were more spirited and the attendance was considerably increased.

Dancing continues to be a popular feature of the affair and the music furnished by Prof. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra is an important factor of the entertainment provided.

The contest between Louis Menzenbach and George Schlick for a fine grade bicycle came to a close and Menzenbach was declared the winner. In the popularity contest between all the members, John Wirth attained a good lead and now bids fair to win the contest, which closes this evening.

The visitors expected did not put in an appearance, but sent instead greetings accompanied by liberal donations towards the object of the fair.

Tonight at 10 o'clock the winners of all the contests will be announced.

PARISH RECEPTION.

Pleasing Evening Spent by Members And Friends of Grace P. E. Church Last Evening.

A most enjoyable reception was held by the Guild of Grace Episcopal church in the parish house last evening.

The attendance was unusually large and the affair was marked by the rendition of a splendid musical programme. Chief among the pleasing members of instrumental music were violin solos by Miss Cornelia Hyatt. A tenor solo by William Tallamy evoked much applause as did also the soprano solo of Miss Rosabel Schroeder, in which Miss Hyatt acted as accompanist.

A delightful social time was spent by the parishoners and their friends and the entertainment was an acknowledged success in every way.

Quarantine of Christian Science Healers Will Not be Over Until Sunday Evening.

DEPUTIES ARE ENFORCING IT.

YOUNG CRANFORD WOMAN HAS WRITTEN A STORY ABOUT IT.

Tells How Her Sister Was Treated by Christian Science Healers and Then Died—Public Indignation is Strong Against Them.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, April 27—Deputies are still guarding day and night the Christian Science reading rooms here, where Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. See, readers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, are under an involuntary seven days quarantine. Their treatment of diphtheria in the household of William J. Ellis, of Fanwood, which was followed by the death of William, nine years, and Ida, seven years, and the serious illness of two other children, has resulted in making many residents here indignant.

Threats are made publicly against Mrs. See and her husband because of her return from the sickroom of the Ellis home and her entry into Cranford without the precaution of a thorough fumigation. Mr. and Mrs. See, as readers of their church, are anxious to lead the usual services tomorrow morning. The Board of Health, however, has refused to free them a single hour before 6 o'clock tomorrow evening.

One wealthy young society woman of Cranford has written a novel, in which she attempts to portray the methods of Joseph See and his wife. The story tells of the author's own sister, who died under Mr. and Mrs. See's Christian Science treatment. The healer's name in the book is Samuel Seele.

The story ends with the mobbing of the heeler. Seele is thrown into the river by the neighbors of the dead girl, his house is burned down, and he and his wife are driven out of town.

Anita Clay Munoz, the author, calls her work "In Love and Truth; or, The Downfall of Samuel Seele." The dead sister of whom the young woman writes was Mrs. Nina E. Porcelli, the wife of Santiago Porcelli, a prominent Wall street broker, having a home in Cranford.

"After her death," said Miss Munoz yesterday, "Mr. See repudiated the case and placed the responsibility on medicine, as he has done in the case of the Ellis children. He said he would have cured my sister if the doctors had not interfered. There was some talk of mobbing him then. His false pretensions have played so tragic a part in my family that I decided to base my book on Christian Science."

FOR ENDEAVORERS.

Interesting Side of the Work Being Carried on by Young Christians.

(Conducted by Press Department Union County C. E. Union.)

The Hutchinson, Kan., local Christian Endeavor Union decided that ballots were better saloon smashers than hatchets. They organized a law-enforcement movement, and have just elected a Christian-citizenship, non-partisan ticket, over the old parties.

An organ has just been sent to the mission of Rev. H. C. McCormick, Rio Piedras, Porto Rico, by the Haddonfield, N. J., Baptist Endeavorers.

A society has been organized among the Wesleyans at Barcelona, Spain, as a result of the convention last summer, and it is expected that the Episcopalians will soon lead off in Madrid.

'Quilt, quilt, quilt!' is the needle song of a dear old soul in Franklin, N. Y. She ran out of calico for her charity quilts, and the bright-witted Congregational Endeavorers devised a social, each admission to which was a bundle of calico. Now she is knee-deep in multi-colored calicoes, and very happy.

In twenty minutes $6 45 was raised by the Union Park Congregational Endeavorers to send a treat of fruit to sixty patients in the county hospital.

Waiting at a Philadelphia trolley station, on their way to take part in the Sunday Breakfast Association services, some Endeavorers began to sing. Motormen and conductors listened, joined, invited them within to hold a service. As a result a service is now held every Sunday. Some of the car men are Christians, and others want to be.

From a community without a Protestant service, Dunning, Ill., has been revolutionized by the Christian Endeavor society, until it now has Christian Endeavor prayer meeting, Sunday school and children's meetings. Most of the Endeavorers are inmates of the poorhouse. The corresponding secretary was struck by the happy thought of inviting the truck farmers and laborers in the community and providing special services. A newspaper artist was secured to give a chalk talk, a Junior choir sang, and a college professor gave lectures.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

OUR CUBAN VISITORS

Another Conference With Secretary Root.

FAREWELL VISIT TO THE PRESIDENT

A Further Meeting Will Be Held at the War Department Monday. Delegates Seem Pleased With Their Reception.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—There was another conference at the war department yesterday afternoon lasting more than three hours. At this sitting not only the political relations of the United States and Cuba were discussed, but there was also much time devoted to the economic questions, such as the possibility of a reduction of the tariff on sugar and general reciprocity arrangements between this country and the island. This was regarded as practically the last business conference by the United States officials, though it is quite probable that the Cubans will desire a further conference with Secretary Root in order to have some points that have been discussed further elucidated after they have considered among themselves the statements made to them by the secretary.

Today the Cubans were again escorted to the White House and said goodby to the president. There will be no further conference with Secretary Root until Monday. This was determined upon by the delegation after its return from the war department last evening.

It is believed by the United States officials that a very fair understanding has been reached and that the complete report of the interviews with the secretary which the delegation will take back to the convention will have a very satisfactory result upon the members of that body.

General Pedro E. Betancourt, one of the most influential members of the delegation, in response to inquiries made some interesting general statements as to the purposes of the visit and the impressions which the delegates have obtained.

"It should be understood," said General Betancourt, "that we are here for the purpose of studying the entire question of the relations between the United States and Cuba, more particularly as presented by the Platt amendment. But it is a mistake to think that we have presented any proposition or that there is anything thus far beyond an effort to learn the views entertained by the authorities here on the many points involved and at the same time to convey to them the views held by the convention which we are here to represent. We are not clothed with any plenipotentiary powers and cannot present plans which occur to us. For that reason it is a mistake to think that in the discussions which have occurred there is anything like, 'You give us this, and we will give you that.'

"There is absolutely nothing of that kind. On the contrary, the Platt amendment has been before the people of Cuba for some time, and there have been varying views as to the meaning and construction of some of its terms. Now we come here to secure information from those best able to give it as to the meaning of all these points. Thus far I think I can say for myself and my associates that the discussion has produced an agreeable impression upon us. It has shown a very earnest effort on both sides to deal with the subject in such a spirit of fairness and honor as would reach a conclusion satisfactory to all concerned.

"The dinner given us at the executive mansion on Thursday night afforded the delegates an opportunity to meet not only the president and members of his cabinet, but many of your foremost senators and public men in all walks of life. I can assure you that the meeting produced on us a most favorable impression. We were received not only with courtesy and regard, but even with affection. Your leading public men took occasion to greet each one of us with assurances of deep friendly and personal interest in the maintenance of the most cordial relations between Cuba and the United States.

"As to the details of our further discussion the members of the delegation do not feel at liberty now to go into particulars. We have been assured that there is an earnest desire to have us remain until there is the most complete understanding on the very last point open to doubt."

Cunard Line and Wireless Telegraph

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Cunard line intends to equip its steamers with instruments for wireless telegraph and make an experiment to determine its value. Marconi sailed on the steamer Campania a week ago. It is reported that he visited Montauk point before leaving this country with a view to establishing a receiving station there. It is said that the approach of a steamer reporting itself by wireless telegraph to a station at Montauk point would be known here more than 12 hours before she arrived. This method of reporting steamers would have another advantage over the present one in that fog would in nowise interfere with it.

More Bridge Cables to Be Raised.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Three more cables for the new East river bridge were towed across the river yesterday. John A. Roebling's Sons company, who are executing the work, raised No. 7 cable this morning between 11 and 12 o'clock. No. 8 cable will be raised between 12:30 and 1:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon, and No. 9 between 1 and 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Lieutenant Hodges will have the patrol boats on duty during the raising of the cables, and no navigation will be permitted to pass during the hours mentioned.

Brockton Man Won.

BROCKTON, Mass., April 27.—Before the largest crowd ever in attendance upon a wrestling match in this city Harvey Parker of Brockton last night defeated Ronley Reakes of Michigan in two straight falls in the City theater in 14 minutes and 30 seconds and 6 minutes and 50 seconds respectively.

State Funds Tied Up.

ALBANY, April 27.—Fifteen thousand dollars of state funds are tied up in the failure of the banking house of Leroy C. Partridge of Ovid, Seneca county, which was the chief depository of the Willard State hospital. The state is protected, however, by a bond of $25,000.

Big Ship Canal on a Paying Basis.

BERLIN, April 27.—The latest figures show that the Black sea and Baltic ship canal has become self sustaining, with a clear profit of 200,000 marks. Since 1897 the canal receipts have more than doubled.

MORE BOERS KILLED

Lord Kitchener Reports Slight British Losses.

SCHOEDER'S COMMANDO AMBUSHED.

Large Herds of Sheep and Cattle Captured—Boers Said to Be Worn and Harassed — They Distrust Milner and Chamberlain.

LONDON, April 27.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, April 26:

"Since yesterday the columns report the Boer losses to be 12 killed, 20 wounded, 47 captured and 42 surrendered.

"In addition to the foregoing Lieutenant Reid, with 20 bushmen, captured southeast of Commissie drift, Oliphant river, Commandant Schoeder and 41 Boers, together with a Maxim. Reid's men crept up and surrounded the men before dawn and opened fire, the Boers immediately surrendering."

In a later message, forwarding advices from General Kitchener, his brother, the commander in chief says:

"General Kitchener reports from Paarde Platz 4 Boers killed, 180 taken prisoners and 3,000 cattle, 6,000 sheep and many wagons captured."

Mr. Henry W. Massingham, writing today in The Daily News, which is likely to be well informed as to the motives of the Boers, says:

"The Boers are greatly worn and harassed, and they yearn for a settlement, but they will not trust any settlement on Chamberlain-Milner terms. They would, however, surrender the whole Johannesburg and Rand goldfields district to Great Britain on condition that independence was restored to the Orange Free State and that the Transvaalers were allowed to found a republic in the wild, uncultivated north subject to British control of foreign affairs."

UPROAR IN EDINBURGH.

Former Treasurer of Cape Colony Speaks For Federation.

EDINBURGH, April 27.—Mr. J. X. Merriman, former treasurer of Cape Colony, who, with Mr. J. W. Sauer, is now representing the Afrikander bund in Great Britain and urging the immediate federation of South Africa into a self governing commonwealth under the British flag, addressed a meeting of 3,000 yesterday in Waverly market, Edinburgh.

Before he could proceed it was necessary to suppress organized disturbances to eject a large number of catcallers and howlers and to arrest several persons for assault. Eighty policemen were needed to keep order inside the hall, while a large force of mounted police outside prevented thousands from raiding the hall. Several were injured in scrimmages.

Fifteen thousand people waited to see Mr. Merriman when he emerged from the building, but he managed to make his exit unobserved by a private door.

Ohio River Stationary.

CINCINNATI, April 27.—The Ohio river has been stationary here and for some distance below Cincinnati for several hours, when the limit of 59.6 feet was reached. Those depending on the prediction of the limit not exceeding 58 feet have suffered, since the stage became almost ten feet above the danger line. It is estimated that 500 residences have been inundated in the eastern part of Cincinnati and that many more on the west side, along Mill Creek valley. These do not include the flooded districts along the frontage of the Ohio river, where tenement houses as well as business interests suffered. On the Kentucky side, from Covington to Newport, Bellevue and Dayton, the situation is equally distressing. Thousands are out of work here and up the valley, but most of them will resume Monday.

To Leave Miners' Union.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 27.—A meeting of fire, loader and driver bosses of this section of the Ninth United Mine Workers' district was held here to take action on the notice of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company that they must either quit their positions or the union by May 1. In order to avoid a strike of 40,000 miners in the event of the company discharging them the bosses voted to at once leave the United Mine Workers' organization. This determination will cause 500 subbosses in the district to ask for withdrawal cards. Officials of the organization attended the meeting and will, at a session of the executive boards of districts No. 1, 7 and 9 to be held in Hazleton today, ask that the bosses' action of last night be officially indorsed.

Indians For the Exposition.

BUFFALO, April 27.—Three hundred Indian braves, squaws and papooses, with 200 horses, have arrived here from the west. The Navajo, Pim and Pueblo tribes were represented. In the party were many noted chiefs, among them Geronimo, Red Cloud, Kicking Bear, Crazy Snake, American Horse, Painted Horse, Lone Bear, Black Bird, Hollow Horn Bear, Little Wound, Shot-In-the-Eye and Black Bear. Shot-In-the-Eye is a chief who lost an eye in the Custer massacre. The Indians were collected by Mr. Fred Cummings, who has charge of the Indian congress at the Pan-American exposition.

FILIPINOS SURRENDER.

General Torribo's Command Gives Up—Torres Held as Prisoner.

MANILA, April 27.—A column of native scouts dispersed General Torribo's command at Lake Nafit, island of Mindanao, on April 2, causing the surrender at Butuan, the town where Magellan landed, of Torribo, with 21 officers and 34 rifles.

Captain McRae defeated some insurgents under General Torres at Norzagary, province of Bulucan, on Thursday, and as a result Torres has surrendered. He will be held as a prisoner until certain atrocities attributed to him are investigated and because he did not come in until he found himself in danger of being captured.

There have been several more surrenders of insurgents within the past day or two. Colonel Morales, with three officers and 11 riflemen, surrendered at Malabon, Luzon, and Colonel Dayrit gave up at Mabalacat, province of Pampanga with 18 riflemen. He also promised to bring in the remainder of his command.

The Griesheim Explosion.

FRANKFORT, April 27.—It now appears that the statement of the General Anzeiger of this city that 80 bodies had been recovered was greatly exaggerated. The fact is that the number of killed is much under the early estimates, some now placing it as low as 25. Nothing definite, however, can yet be ascertained. The effects of the first two explosions are described as fearful. An immense cloud of wreckage was thrown by the first into the air, plunging the whole district into darkness, which was followed on the second explosion by an outbreak of flames in many quarters. Scarcely a house in Griesheim escaped without shattered windows, while in many cases walls and doors were burst asunder.

Ocean Liner Disabled.

QUEENSTOWN, April 27.—The Cunard liner Campania, Captain Walker, from New York April 20, which arrived here last evening about 8 o'clock, reported having passed the American liner New York, Captain Roberts, from Southampton April 20, at noon Wednesday, in latitude 45.34 north, and that the New York signaled that her port shaft was broken. The Campania stopped for five minutes to take further signals, but nothing was given beyond the announcement that apart from the accident all was well. The New York proceeded westward, making good progress with one engine. A strong northeast wind was blowing at the time, and the sea was rough.

Changes In Confession of Faith.

PITTSBURG, April 27.—Late yesterday, after a pleasant and harmonious meeting, the Presbyterian committee decided upon two important features of the plan for revision, which will be presented to the general assembly. These features are as follows and are the most urgently demanded by the presbyteries: "First, a new statement of doctrine to be issued as a supplement to the confession of faith; second, a revision of the confession itself either by the addition of a declaratory paragraph or a change in the text."

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Business Very Brisk—Great Activity In Cereal Market.

NEW YORK, April 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Business continues very brisk for the season in the face of some drawbacks which at times might cause marked hesitation. Chief of these is the floods in many directions, which have interfered with railroad operations and interrupted the distribution of merchandise, and the weather all over the east has been adverse to an increase of retail trade.

Much unfavorable comment has appeared regarding the advance in steel rails to $28, yet the change is only in keeping with recent increases in prices of pig iron and billets.

After a prolonged period of waiting for definite crop news the cereal markets suddenly awoke to unusual activity. Much of the increased trading and sharp advance in prices resulted from clever manipulation by a single western speculator, who compelled the short contingent to cover May corn contracts at the highest prices of the season. While there was an element of strength in the reports of late planting, slow movement of the old crop had greater influence, as stocks available for delivery were light.

In four weeks western receipts of corn amounted to only 6,148,755 bushels against 16,153,797 last year. It is not surprising that foreign buying decreases at the present exceptionally high level of prices. Wheat has also risen sharply, partly in sympathy with corn, but there was bad news regarding the German crop, and some damage occurred at the west.

Cotton responds slowly to indications of damage on plantations, for the old crop comes into sight freely, and heavy losses in British exports of goods and yarns do not promise a vigorous foreign demand for raw material.

Another decrease is reported in shipments of boots and shoes from New England shops, although there is still a heavier movement than in the same week last year.

Failures for the week numbered 215 in the United States against 204 last year and 26 in Canada against 22 last year.

Inventor Marconi to Wed.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Professor Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, is engaged to be married to an American girl. His fiancee is Miss Josephine B. Holman, a cousin of the late W. G. Holman of Indiana, who was best known as "the watchdog of the treasury." Her father was the late Justice J. A. Holman of the supreme court of Indiana. The report has been in private circulation for some little time, and Miss Holman, who is now living with her mother in an apartment at 292 West Ninety-second street, last evening admitted that it was true. Professor Marconi met his intended wife on board ship in his recent trip to this country. He sailed for Europe last week, but it is said that the ceremony will be performed in this city in the fall.

Wildcat Oil Companies.

AUSTIN, April 27.—It is estimated conservatively that the scores of oil companies that have been formed in Texas during the past few weeks, ostensively for the purpose of operating in the Beaumont field, have unloaded upon the small investors of this state fully $75,000,000 of oil stock. Much of this stock is worthless and will never be of any value to the purchasers. It is asserted that many of the companies who are thus taking advantage of the excited minds of the people on account of the oil discoveries are wildcat concerns and that the purchasers of stock will have no recourse for recovery when the crash comes.

An Easy Mark.

PORTLAND, Me., April 27.—Too much confidence in newly made friends cost Anton F. Anderson, a Norwegian on his way home from Minneapolis to the old country, more than $1,100. He became friendly with a stranger and confided the fact that he had a lot of money about him. Later the stranger asked Anderson to put his money in a bag in which a supposed $4,500 had already been placed. A third party appeared, and after some talk Anderson was given the bag to hold. The two others then left on an errand and forgot to return. Anderson found that there were old papers in the bag.

The Only Giraffe.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The only giraffe in this country is in the hold of the Hamburg liner Graf Waldersee, which arrived at Hoboken yesterday. She is 18 months old and 12 feet 10 inches tall when she stretches her neck and is growing rapidly on a daily diet of milk, oats and hay. The animal is consigned to Ringling Bros.' circus at Cincinnati and will be shipped today in a special car with padded sides. The cost of the capture in Senegal, West Africa, and its transportation to this country was about $7,000.

Burglars Sent to Goshen Jail.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 27.—A gang of five burglars giving the names of Frank Blauvelt, Ira Blauvelt, Simon Bouvin, John Bouvin and Albert Raite of Paterson, N. J., have been sent to Goshen jail to await the action of the grand jury. They are charged with having committed numerous robberies. A large amount of plunder was found in their possession, and much more is believed to be secreted in the mountains in the vicinity of the lake.

Letter Box Contract Awarded.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The contract for furnishing the street letter boxes to the government for use in cities throughout the United States during the four years beginning July 1 next has been awarded by the postoffice department to the Michigan Steel Box company of Adrian, Mich. There are four sizes of boxes to be furnished, at the following prices respectively: $2.90, $3.75, $4.25 and $6.25. The last is a new size of box to be put into use.

Algerian Natives Revolt.

ALGIERS, April 27.—The natives broke out in revolt yesterday near the town of Milianah, in Oran province. The deputy administrator of the province and some native horsemen are reported to be prisoners of the rebels. A Spaniard has been killed, and the village of Marguerite was looted. Several persons were wounded. Troops have been ordered to the scene of disturbance.

German Iron Market Improves.

BERLIN, April 27.—The Rheinisch-Westphalische Zeitung publishes a survey of the German iron market and, commenting thereon, says that the market shows steady improvement.

DOWAGER ABDICATES

China's Old Lady Appoints National Board.

NEWS CAUSES MUCH REJOICING.

Movement Considered the Beginning of a New Era In Chinese History — Fierce Famine In Province of Shansi.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The United States charge at Peking, Mr. Squiers, cables the department of state as follows:

"The empress dowager has appointed a board of national administration to relieve her of her public functions. They embrace three members of the cabinet now with the empress at Sian-fu and Prince Ching, Viceroy Li Hung Chang and Prince Kung, now at Peking."

While the state department has no other information on the subject than that contained in Mr. Squiers' message the officers there are practically satisfied that the action of the empress dowager marks the beginning of a new era in Chinese history.

It is believed by those officers that the empress dowager has withdrawn from any participation in public affairs in order that the Chinese government may get on a working basis with the powers.

The elimination of the empress dowager is regarded as a great point in favor of reform and closer relations between China and the nations engaged in the negotiations at Peking.

The appointment of Li Hung Chang, Ching and Kung as members of the administrative board indicate that there will be a more liberal policy pursued by the Chinese government.

BOXERS STILL AT IT.

Three Villages Raided—Massacre of Christians Threatened.

LONDON, April 27.—The Reuter Telegram company has received the following dispatch from Peking, dated yesterday:

"A band of Boxers, estimated at 1,000, is operating 20 miles south of Pao-ting-fu. It has raided three villages within a week and threatens to massacre the Christians in that vicinity, many of whom have fled to Pao-ting-fu for refuge.

"In the Man-cheng district, northeast of Pao-ting-fu, another strong band is committing depredations and has announced its intention to attack the city of Man-cheng, where there is a post of 20 German soldiers.

"Even Pao-ting-fu, since the town was practically denuded of troops by the expedition to the great wall, is not wanting in evidences of serious unrest among the more disorderly elements of the population.

"Competent observers believe that the worst class of Chinese are only awaiting the withdrawal of the foreign troops to resume the campaign of extermination against native Christians."

A Famine In Shansi.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The following telegram was received last evening by the editor of The Christian Herald in this city:

"Very serious famine spreads over the whole province of Shansi. Over 11,000,000 population affected. Urgent relief necessary. Conditions warrant immediate appeal.

"LI HUNG CHANG [Seal].

"Government, Peking, April 25, 1901."

The word seal following the signature indicates the official nature of the message. The cablegram was forwarded to Minister Wu at Washington, who announced his purpose to co-operate in any movement for the relief of his countrymen.

Odd Fellows Celebrate.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The Odd Fellows of the District of Columbia yesterday celebrated the eighty-second anniversary of the formation of the order. A cavalcade of nearly 10,000 members of the order marched in parade and were reviewed by President McKinley and the District commissioners. Formal exercises were held in the afternoon at the National theater, where former Mayor John B. Goodwin of Atlanta, deputy grand sire of the I. O. O. F., delivered the principal oration. J. Frank Grand of Kentucky, grand secretary of the grand lodge, also delivered an address. A reception, concert and ball at night at Convention hall wound up the exercises.

Confederate Memorial Day.

SAVANNAH, April 27.—The Confederate memorial day was celebrated by a suspension of the markets, the closing of stores and offices and exercises at the Confederate monument and in the cemetery. In the afternoon the camps of Confederate veterans paraded, escorted by the local military bands. At the monument an oration was delivered by Captain L. G. Young, and a volley was fired. The monument was decorated with bunting and evergreens. After the ceremonies the bugles sounded "taps," the bugler being a grizzled veteran. At the cemetery the graves were strewn with flowers and evergreens.

Herron Hissed at Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 27.—Considerable agitation prevails here on account of an attack upon Harvard made by Professor G. D. Herron in a lecture given by invitation of the Harvard Social Science club. Professor Herron referred to Harvard in terms of caustic criticism, and he also attacked Vice President Roosevelt as a Harvard graduate in terms of gross opprobrium. The speaker's utterances were hissed by the audience.

Fierce Storm In Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, April 27.—A special from Seligman, Mo., says a terrific rain and hail storm visited north Arkansas Thursday night. Six trestles and four miles of track on the St. Louis and Northern Arkansas road were washed out. Railroad connection with Eureka Springs and points east is severed.

The Tax Rate.

Unless the demands of the county or the State schools are largely increased, there promises to be but a small increase in the city tax rate this year. During the last fiscal year, taxpayers in this city have been paying at the rate of $2.46 on each $1,000 of assessed valuation. While the amount of money required to run the various city departments, exclusive of schools, is slightly increased, it is expected that the natural increase in the taxable property of the city will nearly make up for it.

A special meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday evening when the tax rate will be fixed as far as the city can do so. It is expected that the appropriation, asked for by the Board of Education, will then be passed on. It is understood that there is an increase in that amount.

This question of tax rate is a subject in which every Plainfielder is directly interested. Of course, it is generally realized that a city cannot enjoy all the advantages without paying for them. Good roads, an efficient fire department and proper lighting and sewer systems cost money. A comparison with other cities is not, however, of much use as there is so much opportunity for juggling with the assessed valuations that a comparative basis cannot be established.

Unless, however, there is a general change in the assessed valuations all over the city, an increase or a decrease in the local tax rate gives evidence that there is a change in the amount of money needed for city purposes. If the increase is but small and the benefits correspond, it is hardly likely that there will be any serious objection on the part of the taxpayers. It will be remembered that two years ago the tax rate rose as high as $2.56, and still the people voted to retain the present municipal administration.

The offer of J. Howard Wright to give $10,000 for an operating pavilion for the new buildings of Muhlenberg Hospital was a decided step forward in the movement to secure the new buildings. The Board of Governors of the hospital now has before it the offer of James E. Martine to donate a site for the hospital in the southern end of the city. It is probable that the board at its next meeting will be prepared to decide what shall be done with Mr. Martine's offer. What that decision will be has not been made public. There was only one restriction to the generous offer and that was that no cases of contagious disease shall be admitted to the hospital.

There is no doubt but that the building of the trolley line through to New Market would open up a section heretofore but little heard of. Inland lakes are so scarce in this part of New Jersey that an attempt to open the lake in New Market as a popular day summer resort would be very likely to meet with considerable success. The work has been carried on in the past on a small scale, but the extension of the trolley to that village would give a great impetus to the plan.

The citizens of Somerville doubtless feel much relieved now that they have learned that the officials of the Jersey Central Railroad bear their town no malice and are very willing to meet them half way in any attempt to advance their mutual interests. The changes proposed at the Somerville depot will greatly improve the railroad facilities there and will be of much advantage to the citizens of the town.

Every year demonstrates the good which was done when the Y. M. C. A. building with all its adjuncts was built. The recent spring exhibition in the association gymnasium was only another evidence of the many accomplishments of the Y. M. C. A which were made possible by the erection of that structure.

The tramps seem to consider Middlesex county a favorite working ground. It is to be hoped that the Middlesex county authorities will make examples of the tramps who walked into the home of a retired clergyman at Stelton and prepared to carry away everything valuable.

Various plans have been advanced whereby Plainfield's hall of amusement is to be retained, but so far none of them have gone into effect. Meanwhile work is going steadily forward to convert the present entrance of Music Hall into a store.

Plainfield possesses a number of organizations of women which are the equal in activity and progressiveness of any in the State. Of these organizations there is none more active or flourishing than the Monday Afternoon Club.

Among the other things that the rain did was to temporarily stop work on the widening of Somerset street. That work is now going on again quite merrily.

It is the wise advertiser who is first on the field after the spring trade which is sure to follow the advent of the period of pleasant weather.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

What the "big five" of the railroad men's organization did not do the sensible representatives of the New Jersey Central Railroad employes, and the broad minded officials of the road quickly succeeded in doing. They have agreed upon a new schedule for all the employes of the road, and joy among the Central men today is unconfined. These have been cold days for the walking delegates, but great days for common sense, law and order.—Jersey City Journal.

At a meeting of the Medical Association held in Muhlenberg Hospital Thurday, the announcement was made by Dr. Monroe B. Long that he had just assisted in the birth of a child, making the seven hundredth since his admission to the medical profession.

Personal Workers Desired.

Those having in charge the service to be conducted in the First Baptist church tomorrow evening are very desirous of impressing the fact on all recent personal workers, that their presence will greatly assist in the success of the meeting. They will be in charge of Joseph Gavett. It is also requested that the choir go directly to the platform and take the seats provided, if possible bring a copy of Christian Hymnal, No. 1. The latter applies to the congregation as well. At the close an offering will be taken for the Twentieth Century National campaign.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, April 27—The meeting of the local Board of Trade, Thursday evening, was largely attended owing to the meeting of Defender Fire Company being held at the same time. Several interesting matters were discussed, principal among them being the subject of advertising. It is possible Dunellen's advantages as a residential and business locality may soon be exploited in the metropolitan newspapers.

Miss Rachael Mair, of Plainfield, who but lately returned from missionary work in Africa, will address the prayer meeting in the Methodist church Wednesday evening. Miss Mair spent several years among the natives of Liberia and expects to return there in a short time.

The regular meeting of the Literary Circle will be held this evening at the residence of Mrs. L. T. Titsworth. Shakespeare's "King Lear" will be read and in addition the usual excellent programme will be rendered by the members. Refreshments will be served at the close.

At the evening meeting in the Presbyterian church tomorrow, Rev. N. J. Sproul will repeat the lecture he recently delivered in the First Baptist church. Those who failed to hear him, should not miss the second opportunity.

Miss Elizabeth Gray, of Califon, has returned home after a pleasant visit with her brother, Alvah Gray.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, April 27—The county prosecutor at New Brunswick has made known his decision in regards to the suit of Peter J. McDonough for alleged damages to the ice which was cut from the South Plainfield mill pond. His finding and that of the Grand Jury, is that there is no law applying to ice which is uncut and that it is public property until housed. He suggested as a redress for Mr. McDonough, that he secure the passage at Trenton of a special law which would recognize ice, upon ponds of the local character, as property. The parties against whom complaint was brought are Harry J. Manning and Claude A. Cubberley.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society held its regular meeting this afternoon. After the meeting an informal social was given to the members and their friends. Cake and lemonade were served.

One morning three days later they were all seated in the library. Mrs. Goddard sat in the bow window, her eyes on the road which led past Lyndhurst to the station. Blanche was looking over some music at the piano, and Talley was taking down in shorthand from Goddard's halting dictation some business correspondence. Now and then Mrs. Goddard would furtively scan the faces in the room and then peer toward the road again. Suddenly she saw a cab containing a single occupant driving in at one of the gates at the bottom of the lawn, and she at once rose and went to the fire and sat down. When the door bell rang a few minutes later, she was the only one in the room who did not appear to notice it. She seemed so much absorbed in thought as not to see James when he entered with a card on a tray.

"A lady to see you, madam," he announced.

Mrs. Goddard had four pairs of eyes on her as she scanned the card.

"'Mrs. Lucy Nolan,'" she read, "'from the Metropolitan employment bureau.' Ah, it is the woman they were to send me! Tell her, James—tell her I shall be in at once. Where is she?"

"In the little parlor, madam."

"What is she like?—but never mind; I shall see for myself. If they have sent me anybody without the best of references she shall go back without an engagement."

Goddard's voice wandered into inaccurate dictation.

"Get that off and I shall finish the rest some other time," he said, wearily, to his secretary. The gaze of his ward seemed to melt on his face. She well knew that the realization of his wife's coming departure had fallen upon him with new force.

In a few minutes Mrs. Goddard returned. She was smiling with amused satisfaction.

"She is just the woman I want," she declared, looking at the major, "but perhaps you will feel better if you have seen her and spoken to her. I asked her to wait to see you."

"Have you really engaged her?" asked Goddard, dejectedly.

"Oh, yes; we came to terms at once. She has a son in London and is anxious to see him. She will not want much more than her passage money, but of course I shall try to be generous with the poor thing. Don't expect to find her beautiful. She is anything but good-looking, but that is not what I am after. Good-looking women are rarely useful."

As the major left the room his wife resumed her seat at the window. Her color was high; her eyes were as full of life as a fine diamond, and Blanche could hardly keep her eyes from her face. She was beginning, now that Mrs. Goddard was exerting herself to be attractive, to comprehend the hold she had on the major. To-day Mrs. Goddard looked as she had when Blanche had first seen her and realized that the place her guardian had filled in her girlish heart must be deprived of its tenant, that she must never even in dreams remember those days when he used to sit beside her in the little reception room at Mme. Bell's select school. She had been sure during those visits that his eyes, the pressure of his hand, his parting kiss had meant the same as her delicious yielding to them had implied. But the awakening shock had come and she had borne in silence her secret and gone through the daily torture of witnessing both her guardian's adoration for another and, what was almost as painful, that other's indifference to it all.

When Goddard reentered the room there was a droop of utter despondency on him that added years to his appearance.

"Well, how do you like her?" his wife asked.

"Oh, she is all right," he said. "She seems good enough; but somehow I simply can't reconcile myself to—"

"Oh, puh!" Mrs. Goddard rose with a graceful sweep of her lithe body and stood with her beautiful hands linked behind her head; her yawn, showing her perfect teeth, was as pretty and insincere as a coquette's kiss. "Blanche," she said, "if you ever marry, make just as many voyages as you can. The more a wife is away the more she is appreciated. But I must go and give that woman some final directions. What is her name?" Mrs. Goddard picked up the visitor's card. "Nolan, ugh! what a frightful mouthful. I'll have to call her Lucy, as much as I hate to address a maid by her Christian name."

When she had gone out Blanche went to the sofa on which the major was seated and sat down by him.

"Dear guardian," she said, "I wish I could do something to help you."

When he answered there was a distinct touch of faultfinding in his tone.

"You would not go away on a pleasure trip and leave a husband you loved behind, would you, Blanche?"

She had hesitation to answer, but when she did it was without a twinge of conscience, and her firmness surprised herself.

"I could not do so, guardian."

"I know it, my dear girl," he said, sighing; "but she is not like you. However, she wants the trip and she shall have it."

Just then he saw Jeanne and Mrs. Nolan passing through the hall to the cab waiting at the door. He rose and went out on the veranda, but was just in time to see the cab driving away with its occupant. He put his arm around the statuesque figure of his wife.

"For God's sake, drop it, Jeanne," he muttered. "I don't feel as if I can go on with it."

"It's too late now, dear," she said, giving him a glance from her wonderful eyes. "Think of all the fun we shall have when the girl finally succumbs. No, you have given me your promise. I shall hold you to it."

"Jeanne," he said, gazing into her eyes, "you are a beautiful mystery to me. I don't understand you."

"Don't try, then." She smiled bewitchingly and turned back into the house.

CHAPTER VI.

All the remainder of the week Mrs. Goddard was occupied with hurried preparations, running into the city on the morning trains and returning in the afternoon. As her stay shortened Goddard's depression became more and more obvious. He shunned the companionship of his ward and neglected to give Talley any work to do. When he was not following his wife about like a doting slave he was brooding alone in his room or walking nervously in the wood behind the garden.

The night before her departure Mrs. Goddard retired to her room immediately after dinner was over. The first two hours were given to her husband, but at ten o'clock she dismissed him with the request that he send Blanche to her.

Our young lady found her seated over a little fire in her luxurious boudoir. The gaslight in a yellow globe was burning low and the red coals in the grate gave a rich tint to the furniture and tapestries. She greeted Blanche with the superficial smile which she had been conferring on her without stint since the hatching of her nefarious plot, and taking her hand she drew her down beside her on a sofa.

"I want to have one friendly chat with you before I go," she said. "I am afraid I have not been so good to you as I should have been; but I was born thoughtless and have never gotten over it."

Blanche could not think of a suitable reply, though she allowed her hand to rest passively in the clinging grasp of the woman, which action was sufficiently cordial for a nature so coarse of fiber as Mrs. Goddard's.

"What do you suppose I have been doing every spare moment lately? Don't laugh, but"—Mrs. Goddard pointed to a Bible on the table near her, a rich affair bound in Russian leather and gold—"I have been reading that Book and finding out how wicked I am. Before going away I want, humbly, to beg your pardon, Blanche. I could have treated you better. You are a Christian, aren't you, dear?"

"I try to be, Mrs. Goddard; I hope I am."

"My attempts in that direction have generally been spasmodic," went on the older woman, smiling. "I presume I have really not striven hard enough, or kept at it long enough, for my efforts to be really good have always ended in an explosion of good intentions. The devil has always beguiled me into places from which there seemed no outlet without making other people unhappy, and that is the keenest sort of punishment—to be made to feel that you have made yourself the devil's coadjutor. It has been that way in regard to your guardian."

"Mr. Goddard?" murmured Blanche. "I don't understand."

"Blanche, I shall feel better if I make a full confession to you before I go. I want you to sympathize with me—pity me if you wish, but try to see a little good in me. Dear girl, I was so worldly-minded that I married your guardian for what I could get out of him, because he was at that time rich, but I do not love him and, to be more frank, I am miserable with him. It seems to me that I simply cannot stand it here another day."

"You don't love him!" said Blanche, with a shudder, and she recoiled and drew her hand from Mrs. Goddard's clasp.

"Ah, I see you don't understand how such a thing could be, but it is so, and, try as I will, I cannot make myself care for him. This voyage gives me infinite pleasure because I shall be free if only for a little while. But you must not tell him."

"Never; it would kill him—break his heart!" exclaimed Blanche; "he loves you with all his soul. I don't see how you could be with him every day and—"

"Don't reproach me," begged the older woman, giving another glance at the Bible. "I have been trying to get forgiveness to-day. I have actually been on my knees half a dozen times, but rest—peace of mind will not come. Then—Blanche, are you superstitious?"

The purchasing agent for one of the large brass rolling mills in Connecticut had a "mighty hard time" with his stomach. "I used to get up in the morning feeling 150 years old," he said, "and at meal time I felt faint, but still I had an insatiable appetite. I was cross and irritable. I didn't take any interest in business or anything else, and finally I got so bad I had the jaundice and was as yellow as sulphur. I was getting to be a perfect wreck and I didn't care so very much whether I lived or died. It was at this point that I began using Ripans Tabules, but before I had used three dozen my natural color began to return. All my stomach trouble has disappeared and now I consider myself well."

CORSELETS.

They Are In Great Demand to Accompany Blouses.

Corselet belts of black or white silk or of silk matching the gown in color are worn with ordinary gowns and are an admirable accompaniment to the short bolero. Corselets of jet or bead embroidery accompany bodices embroidered at the top to match, and the lower part of the sleeves repeats the decoration. Passementerie or detached motifs may be used in the same manner. Blouses of taffeta of the simpler sort have little plaited corselets of the same material. Plain foulard and soft silks of similar character are beginning to be used for plain blouses in the place of taffeta.

The illustration given today shows a bodice of blue peau de sole. The back is tight and plain. The front is applied in two scallops on a yoke of plaited crepe de chine. The collar is also of plaited crepe de chine. Applications of guipure ornament the front, which is also embroidered. The sleeves are embroidered and trimmed with guipure and have lower sleeves of crepe de chine gathered into a band at the wrist. The cravat is of peau de sole, with a buckle, and the belt is of gold trim. Small gold buttons decorate the collar, shoulders and cuffs.

THE MODE.

Fashions In Neck Chains and Handkerchiefs.

The newest neck chains often have little flat metallic flowers mingled with the links and forming part of the chain itself. These chains are comparatively short and are superseding the long chains so much worn for two years past.

Handkerchiefs grow smaller and smaller. A striking novelty is the white handkerchief, with one corner alone colored, upon which is an application in white of a flower, bird or insect.

The cut shows a girl's costume of gray cashmere cloth. The skirt is laid in stitched plaits at each side of the tablier and at the back, and around the foot is a stitched band of white cloth. The blouse bodice is ornamented with flat folds of white cloth in imitation of a quadruple bolero, the upper two passing across the top of the sleeves. The high collar is edged with a fold of white cloth. The cravat is of black satin, embroidered with gold, the belt of soft gray silk. The sleeves form a double puff, with tight cuffs, which flare over the hand. The hat of gray straw is trimmed with white taffeta, bordered with black.

ENFORCED THE LAW.

How a New Arizona Sheriff Began His Official Life.

Invited Cowboys to Drink and Then Faced Them with Six-Shooters, Relieved Them of Weapons and Imposed a Fine.

Eastern ideas of a western sheriff would be rudely exploded by the recent actions of the high officers of the county in the far southwest. When it is said that westerners themselves were surprised, startled in a land where every-day life is startling, an easterner's feelings can be imagined.

Tom Turner, says the Kansas City Times, is the name of this sheriff. In the land of cacti and lizards, that part of the union known as Arizona territory, he is a power. Adventures among the cowboys and miners have made him "one of the most prominent men in the territory." But to his prominence Turner has added notoriety, a sort of fame not at all in line with the generally approved ideas of the frontier.

In the county of Santa Clara, upon the river and but a short distance removed from the republic of Diaz and hot pepper, a new sheriff was deemed necessary. Not that the old sheriff was incompetent, but simply because he forgot that he held the job when he departed on a prospecting trip into the sister republic.

An election was duly called. Tom Turner was almost unanimously chosen to the position. Election here did not depend upon the amount of cash expended as is the case in communities considering themselves more highly civilized, but hinged upon personal popularity. Freedom from fear also has much to do with elections, and fear was a word Turner did not know.

"Tom didn't say much about the office," said one of the "constituents" in discussing the election. "Just went around attendin' to his business the same as ever. Course he talked about it, and seemed to think it would be an honor to have the place. But he didn't tell anybody what he would do if he got the job. Just pegged along.

"Well, the boys all liked Tom, and they helped him all they could. Then they didn't like the other feller much. So they started right in and they 'lected him straight. Tom felt kinder proud that he was so pop'lar, and he thanked everybody. Some of the boys tried to find out what he would do when he got the office. But he told 'em to wait and see."

"Come on over to the joint, boys," he remarked after talking a moment with his chief deputy. The "joint" meant the saloon, and the request seemed an invitation very welcome to the friends of the new officer, sworn to enforce the law. Therefore a willing crowd followed him to the saloon.

"Tom's all right, I guess, boys," remarked one of the cattlemen. "We'll have the town by the roots before midnight, and Tom'll be with us through the scrimmage. Guess I can come in for this. I'm here for the big show, and the sooner it starts the better."

Joking and laughing the cowboys and miners filed into the saloon, the new sheriff leading. He didn't joke much, and there was a peculiar look in his eye. But the boys were intent upon the prospective celebration and did not notice. All filed up to the bar and stood ready to "punish the booze."

Suddenly the new sheriff whirled about. He faced the men lined up beside the bar. In his hands were a pair of six-shooters. His skill with the weapons, well known, made the small battery an exceedingly dangerous affair.

As they glanced at the sheriff with startled eyes the stupefied cowboys were shocked by the hasty closing of the only door. Before it, his back firmly braced against the exit, stood the sheriff's head deputy. In his hands a pair of weapons matching those held by the higher officer made him an equally formidable proposition.

"Boys, let's all be peaceable like and not have any trouble," said Tom Turner, in the even tone of a man devoid of fear. "There's a law in this country, and you've all heard me swear to enforce it. That's what I'm going to do, and I'll begin now.

"First, I'll take every gun in the crowd. Then each of you will be fined $50 for carrying concealed weapons. You'll pay on the spot and consider yourselves lucky." Deftly the sheriff went through the men. Each gave up at least one revolver, some of them a pair. Then each gave up $50.

"Now, boys, go ahead and have a good time," said the sheriff, with a smile, as he took possession of the weapons and pocketed the cash. "You know there's a law and now you have learned that it's going to be enforced."

In Arizona the law against carrying concealed weapons makes the offense a serious crime. Although it is not rigidly enforced, the law there is the strongest of its kind in the union.

"BLACK JACK" HANGED.

Rope Broke, but Fall Ended Life of Desperado.

CLAYTON, N. M., April 27.—Thomas E. Ketchum, alias "Black Jack," a notorious train robber, was hanged yesterday at 21 minutes after 1 o'clock p. m. The rope broke, but the fall jerked Ketchum's head off.

Ketchum mailed a letter to President McKinley yesterday which read:

"Standing in the presence of death, I desire to communicate to you some facts which may be the means of liberating innocent men. There are now three men in Santa Fe penitentiary serving sentences for robbery of the United States mail at Steins Pass, A. T., in 1897 They are Leonard Albertson, Walter Huffman and Bill Waterman, and they are innocent of the crime. The men who committed the crime are Dave Atkins, Ed Bullin, Will Carver, Sam Ketchum, 'Broncho Bill' and myself. I have given to my attorney in Clayton means by which articles taken in said robbery may be found where we hid them.

"The fact that these men are innocent and are suffering impels me to make this confession. I make this statement, fully realizing that my end is fast approaching and that I must very soon meet my Maker."

Jones' Forgeries Amount to $25,000

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., April 27.—A most startling feature of the series of forgeries said to have been committed by ex-Mayor Hadley Jones of this city, who is a fugitive, was disclosed here yesterday when Jones' safe was opened by an expert. In the safe was found a book containing blank stock certificates of the National Herkimer County bank of this city. Seventeen of the certificates had been used, and some of the remaining certificates had the names of William G. Milligan, president, and Albert Story, cashier, forged thereon. It is believed by the police that most of these forged certificates were put up as collateral for loans negotiated at various banks throughout the country. The amount of stock issued will not be known until the banks make reports, but it is estimated that the total will be at least $25,000. The National Herkimer County bank is the largest institution of its kind in this county. Jones' wife, who is also missing from the city and is believed to have joined him, was a stockholder in the bank, and Mr. Story, the cashier, whose name was forged to the certificates, was her uncle. Jones got one of her certificates and had a new stock certificate book printed by a Buffalo printing firm.

Last Day In Old Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Wild outbursts of applause over a speech that few heard and a perfect bedlam of noise yesterday afternoon marked the close of the last day on the present Stock Exchange. While brokers were running about the floor with all the excitement of schoolboys at recess and the air was filled with reams of ticker paper, workmen inside were already tearing down the historic structure, which is to be replaced by a larger and handsomer building. Before the crowd began to leave the floor the sound of ripping partitions was heard, and men with axes began to chop down the partitions that sheltered hundreds of telephones. All these telephones will be moved to the Produce Exchange and will be ready for business on Monday.

Heavy Rainfall Up the State.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 27.—The rainfall in Ithaca during the past week has been exceeded only once in 20 years. The weather bureau of Cornell university reports an average of 1.34 inches for the past eight days. The department was established in 1880, and in April, 1894, the average was slightly greater than during the present month. The high water along Cayuga inlet, which has overflowed its banks for a mile and a half, has not receded, and damage to property in this part of the city has been considerable. In the neighborhood of the Cornell boathouse a veritable lake has been formed, and the Cornell crews find it unnecessary to keep to the stream in their daily practice.

Lake Huron Ice Blockade Broken.

PORT HURON, Mich., April 27.—Shortly after noon yesterday the ice blockade at the foot of Lake Huron, which has been blocking navigation for a week, was broken by the combined efforts of the steamers City of Berlin, Hadley and Fedora, releasing about 20 vessels. A number of the craft have been in very dangerous positions, and as the City of Berlin broke through the ice into clear water she was saluted with a chorus of whistles from all the imprisoned boats.

Austria to Build Four Canals.

VIENNA, April 27.—The imperial government has submitted to the reichsrath a bill authorizing the construction of four canals in the Danube, Moldau, Elbe and Vistula districts. The work of construction is to begin in 1904 and will be completed in 1924. Two hundred and fifty million kronen at 4 per cent is to be borrowed before 1912, and further funds for the construction of these four canals will be borrowed when necessary.

Famous Pugilist Dead.

ROCHESTER, April 27.—Jack Turner, known in pugilistic and sporting circles from Maine to California and in England and the Dominion of Canada and who was the trainer of John L. Sullivan for his fight with Jake Kilrain, is dead at his home, Rock Cottage hotel, on St. Paul street.

DR. BROWN DEAD.

Well Known Clergyman Passed Away at Home at Mullica Hill.

Rev. Dr. James F. Brown, of Mullica Hill, Gloucester county, N. J., died at his home yesterday morning from a stroke of paralysis.

Rev. Dr. Brown was an uncle of the Misses Elizabeth A. and Ada M. Runyon, of Putnam avenue, and he was well known in this vicinity, especially in Scotch Plains, where his parents, Rev. Thomas and Mary Brown, resided, and where the Doctor himself was born in July, 1819.

REGIMENTAL FIELD DAY.

SECOND REGIMENT OF THE NATIONAL GUARD ON REVIEW.

Officers of Company K, of Plainfield, Were Present and Witnessed Drill.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 27—The annual field day of the Second Regiment was held here yesterday and it was a great success. Everything was carried through as arranged with considerable punctuality and the manoeuvres were executed with remarkable accuracy.

The various commands formed on Clinton avenue and with Colonel Gilmore and his staff at the head of the line they marched to field accompanied by Winkler's band. In the line were seventeen men of Company K, of Plainfield, including the commissioned and non-commissioned officers and three privates. This detail was specially ordered by Colonel Gilmore to attend the regimental drill.

The morning was devoted to a close order drill in which the proficiency shown by the men in the manual of arms was very commendable.

Dinner was served at noon and the Plainfield boys, together with their fellows of the other companies, heartily enjoyed a repast consisting of sandwiches, eggs, pie, cheese and a cup of coffee.

Precisely at 1 o'clock assembly was sounded and Col. Gilmore and his command marched in review before the brigade commander, Brigadier General Cooper. At the conclusion of the inspection, a sham battle, the most exciting feature of the day took place. The third batallion under Colonel Cline was placed in the defense, and the first batallion under Major Packer together with the second under Major Coward assumed the offensive. After a good deal of sharp manoeuvering the third battalion was routed. An evening review climaxed the day's work and the various companies left for home on early trains.

During the manouevres, Colonel Gilmore, in emergency, called upon the Plainfield soldier boys to do guard duty about the parade grounds in order to keep back the mass of people who were crowding in on the militia on all sides. This duty was effectively performed by the men of Company K, notwithstanding that the parade ground was a thirty-acre field. Before returning the officers were highly complimented on the ability displayed in performing the duty exacted of them.

GOLFERS OPEN SEASON AT PARK CLUB LINKS.

First Play For President's Cup and Ball Sweepstakes Marked the Informal Opening.

COURSE IN GOOD CONDITION

MANY PLAYERS WERE OUT FOR THE FIRST TIME THIS SPRING.

C. W. McCutchen Won First Honors for President's Cup—M. T. Townsend Was Winner in the Ball Sweepstakes—The Scores.

Spring activity at the links of the of the Park Golf Club began Saturday afternoon when two competitions marked the informal opening of the season. The opening event, a handicap ball sweepstakes, scheduled for a week ago and postponed on account of stormy weather, was held in connection with the first competition for the President's cup. There were many golfers out including a generous sprinkling of the fair sex.

The weather was delightful save for a fresh north-east wind which blew almost continuously. The course was in excellent condition considering the the recent heavy rains, but was somewhat slow and heavy. The turf was fine. Temporary greens were used. They were well rolled, however.

Nearly two score golfers were out, ten of them competing in the sweepstakes and eighteen entering for the President's cup. The play for the President's cup will be under the same rules as last year. There will be medal play, eighteen holes, every Saturday, the players making the three lowest net scores, tallying three, two and one point for the cup. The player, who scores the most points during the year, will hold the cup.

The handicaps for the year were announced at the clubhouse. They differ from those of last year, being about ten strokes more. Scratch is based on "bogey," which is 88. Last year's scratch men are now playing with a handicap of ten. Changes in the handicaps will be based on the average scores, while those who fail to turn in any scores at all will suffer accordingly.

The two events of the afternoon were run off together, the scores counting in both events for those who desired so. The "duffers" failed to win anything in the sweepstakes, Morgan T. Townsend being first, Fred P. Taylor second, H. D. Hibbard third and Charles L. Nichols fourth.

Charles W. McCutchen and W. J. Buttfield, who had the limit in the handicaps, forty strokes, won first and second places respectively for the President's cup. Considering the slowness of the course their scores were very good. The crack players of the club, Townsend and Taylor, played together and Townsend came out ahead, scoring a 103 gross, which gave him third place for the President's cup. Taylor was three strokes behind. Neither player was at his best.

Some of the scores for the President's cup were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Chas. W. McCutchen	121	40	81
Wm. J. Buttfield	130	40	90
Morgan T. Townsend	103	10	93
Fred P. Taylor	106	10	96
H. D. Hibbard	121	18	103
Charles L. Nichols	141	35	106
Charles A. Reed	132	25	107
George T. Rogers	135	25	110
Allan B. Laing	136	25	111
William R. Faber	131	20	111
Meredith Dryden	138	20	118
Samuel Townsend	144	25	119

ST. MARY'S NINE WON WITHOUT ANY TROUBLE.

Defeated Kensington A. C., of Brooklyn, in the Opening Game of the Season.

SCORE WAS 26 TO 16.

PLAY ON BOTH TEAMS WAS SOMEWHAT RAGGED.

Good Battery Work By O'Keefe and Barry—Mistake as to Number of Outs Proved Expensive for Home Team—The Score.

Fully five hundred enthusiastic rooters witnessed the first game of the St. Mary's baseball team Saturday afternoon The opponents were from the Kensington Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, a promising team, but just at present in need of practice. While the playing on both sides was rather ragged, the local team showed its superiority by making 26 runs to their opponents 16. The large number of runs was due mainly to costly errors.

During the first few innings of the game, the playing of the St. Mary's boys was almost faultless. O'Keefe, the pitcher, was in excellent form and for a time his curves mystified the Kensingtons completely. In his old position behind the bat, Joseph Barry was as energetic as ever, allowing but very few balls to pass him. It was due to their work that at the end of the fourth inning, the visitors had but one run to their credit, having been shut out three times in succession. In the same time the local team had tallied six runs.

In the first part of the fifth inning, a mistake on the part of the Plainfield boys as to the number of outs, resulted in their coming in from the field. The Kensingtons were aware that but two men were out and while the opposite team was leisurely walking about, two men who were on bases, crossed the home plate. On resuming positions, five more runs were made before the third man was put out.

In the sixth inning, poor field work on the part of the Kensingtons allowed the local team to score nine times and in the remaining two, not taking the last inning, they made five more. The Kensington's battery, Wedderholt and Quaid, worked hard but they received poor support from nearly every part of the field. In the last three innings they made eight runs, bringing their total up to sixteen.

On the Plainfield side, in addition to the battery, the playing of George Taylor, in left field, and George Keene and Robert Angleman at the bat, was excellent. As the game was the first of the season, it was more in the nature of a practice game and those to be played later may bring out much better work. The game next Saturday with the Clinton Avenue nine will undoubtedly be an exciting contest and show what the St. Mary's boys are capable of doing.

The batting order of the teams was as follows:

St. Mary's.	Kensington A. C.
Mack, s. s.	Wedderholt, c.
Fleming, c. f.	Kernan, 1b.
Keen, 3b.	B. Wedderholt, s. s.

CLOSE OF SAENGERBUND FAIR

NUMBER OF CONTESTS WERE CLOSED SATURDAY NIGHT.

Frank Haurand Voted Most Popular Member—Great Crowd at the Last Night of the Fair.

The week's fair of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein held in the Saengerbund Hall, was brought to a successful close Saturday evening.

A great crowd was in attendance and the evening was the most successful in every respect of any during the week. Much interest was shown in the various prize contests. All the evening the rival contestants displayed considerable energy in obtaining the support of their friends.

The popularity contest between the members was the most exciting. In this Rudolph Spiegel, John Wirth and Frank Haurand ran very close until the last hour when Hauraud forged ahead radidly and was later declared the winner and awarded the cane.

Jennie Chatelain won the gold watch and Hulda Rummel the diamond ring. The phonograph was carried off by Mrs. A. Bartlau while Henry Bergen captured the parlor lamp.

As the evening advanced the crowd appeared to increase in numbers rather than diminish and at midnight when the fair was declared closed a good sized assemblage was present.

CITY HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED.

ALIS A. A. BASEBALL TEAM WON BY SCORE OF 16 TO 11.

Alis Boys Showed Up Well and Finally Won Out—Showed Good Judgment.

A large number of baseball enthusiasts assembled on Martine Common Saturday afternoon to witness the contest between the teams from the Plainfield High School and the Alis Athletic Association. The final score was 16 to 11 in favor of Alis. It was the general opinion at the start that the High School team would win as they had had more practice.

The game opened auspiciously. The Alis team was whitewashed in the first two innings, and only scored one run in the third, while their opponents scored two and three runs respectively in the second and third innings. In the fourth inning the High School boys lost their heads and allowed their opponents to tally six runs. In the next two innings they scored eight more runs. After that they only got one run, in the eighth inning, but the lead was too much and the school boys could not overcome it, although they scored in every inning but the first and eighth inninge. Several times they had an opportunity to bring in a number of runs, but a lack of judgment coupled with clever play by the Alis team shut them out.

The fielders on both teams put up a fair game, and in the main the infield support was was good. The Alis team was credited with 22 hits as against 21 by the school boys. Thomas Smith, pitcher for the Alis team, struck out two men, while Townsend Mason for the other side failed to strike out a man.

The batting order follows:

Plainfield High School.	Alis A. A.

Mrs. Lewis and her husband are the leaders in this movement. Owing to illness the Archbishop was unable to be present, but those who were there greatly enjoyed the talk by Mrs. Lewis and the report she presented telling of the great work being done in Paris.

After the talk by Mrs. Lewis there was a social time, when everyone had an opportunity to meet the speaker. The Archbishop and Mrs. Lewis will sail Wednesday for Paris, where they will continue their work.

BETTER CARE OF THE BODY.

SHOULD NOT FORGET IT IN ANXIETY TO SAVE THE SOUL.

First of a Series of Discourses on Health by Pastor of Grace M. E. Church Last Night.

The first of a series of practical sermons on health was given by Rev. G. W. Gardner in Grace M. E. church last evening. From II Samuel xx:9, he took the clause, "Friend, art thou in good health?" and with this as his theme delivered an interesting discourse in which many hygienic rules were set forth.

He deplored the numerous indiscretions of youth practiced unthinkingly to the detriment of their physical bodies and which are bitterly paid for in after years. Men's bodies are given them for the preservation of the soul during its earthly career, and as such they should be properly cared for as the Creator intended. He advised his hearers to be temperate in all things for the benefit of the mind, the body and the soul. It is a common mistake made by clergymen in these days, the speaker said, in their anxiety to save men's souls, to forget the body and its welfare, and, in his opinion, the Twentieth Century church would pay more attention to this ever-increasing factor in temporal life.

But while man is endowed with the privilege of keeping his body in a healthy state, if he so chooses, the great Physician will care for his spiritual nature and tend its wants if trust is placed in Him. The body and soul are essential to each other and neither should be neglected.

WILL BUY A PIANO.

Trinity Reformed Church Sunday-School Has Already Raised $161 For That Object.

The hearts of the people of Trinity Reformed church was again made glad yesterday, when it became known that the church and Sunday school are to have a handsome new piano. This worthy effort was started at a meeting of the teachers Friday night, when the subject was introduced and the sum of $45 was raised toward the object. Yesterday afternoon Superintendent E. E Anthony told the members of the school what had been done and asked for class pledges. To the surprise and gratification of everyone the sum of $113 was pledged, making the total amount $161 raised by the Sunday school. They propose to pay one-quarter of the cost of the instrument and if any money is left over, it will go toward purchasing a piano for the primary department.

To make the plan of purchasing a piano for the main school easy, the church will be asked to pay one fourth of the cost, and the Ladies' Christian Work Society will also be asked to pay a fourth, leaving the Christian Endeavor Society, Young Women's Mission Band and King's Daughters to pay the remaining fourth. The church is entirely out of debt and the officials believe that the piano can be purchased without incurring any debt.

The journey from the Philippines to San Francisco was made by the steamer Grant.

QUARANTINED IN NEW YORK.

MRS. ELLIS AND SON ARE UNDER BANN OF HEALTH BOARD.

Meanwhile the Condition of the Patients at Fanwood is Rapidly Improving.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 29—The home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy J. Ellis, of Forest avenue, is now gradually returning to its former condition. The children, Dorothy and James, are very much improved. There are still slight traces of diphtheria, but it is believed that with a few days the quarantine can be raised. As soon as the children can be moved, the house will be thoroughly fumigated and arrangements will then be made to set things to rights. The Ellis family is now quite cheerful as it is believed the worst is over.

Mr. Ellis received word from New York this morning that his wife and son, LeRoy, are getting along well, although the house where they are stopping is quarantined for the reason that they came from an infected house.

Mrs. Gibbs, wife of W. E. Gibbs, has been taken ill with a slight attack of scarlet fever. It is presumed she contracted the disease from her daughter, Margaret, who has been ill for several days. Their condition is not alarming.

LITTLE GIRLS TAUGHT SEWING.

CLOSING OF YEARS WORK AT HOPE CHAPEL INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Exhibition of Work and an Entertainment Held Saturday Evening.

The pupils of the Hope Chapel Industrial school terminated their year's work Saturday afternoon with an exhibition of work to parents and a delightful entertainment. The class comprises ninety little girls and under the management of a committee from the Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue church, of which Miss Margaret Yerkes is chairman, has become one of the most important branches of the chapel. Children ranging in years from six to twelve, are taught the rudiments of sewing in which some of them have become very proficient.

Twenty prizes were given to pupils who were present every Saturday and three were given to pupils who missed but one Saturday.

The entertainment part of the programme consisted of a recitation by Mary Radford, a piano duet by Lillie Duckworth and Jessie Chamberlain, a practical talk on sewing by Rev G. K. Newell and a Punch and Judy show. At the close the pupils were served with ice cream and cake.

MISS FISH WEDDED.

Ceremony Took Place at Bride's Home on Grant Avenue, and Was a Very Quiet Affair.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick K. Fish, of Grant avenue, was the scene of a very quiet wedding Saturday afternoon, when their eldest daughter, Miss Sara Elizabeth Fish, became the wife of Shelton William Swallow, of New York. Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, performed the cermony.

The groom was accompanied by Thomas Grant, of Washington, D. C. The bride, who was unattended, was attired in a traveling gown of gray broadcloth and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Only a few immediate relatives and intimate friends of the family were present.

A wedding supper was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Swallow departed amid a shower of rice for a wedding trip. It will be of a month's duration and will include a sojourn in the Adirondacks and a visit to the Pan-American Exposition. The young couple have not as yet decided where they will make their home. The groom is an architect in the employ of Howell & Stokes, of New York.

BATTLE OF PITCHERS AND DUPEE WON IT.

In Well Played Game, Leal's School Defeated Hope Chapel Four to Two.

PLAYED ON PITTIS FIELD.

CLEVER FIELDING BY BOTH OF THE CONTESTING TEAMS.

It Was Chiefly a Game Between the Pitcher—Both Played Well But Dupee Was the Better—Had Good Support.

A great game of baseball was played between the Hope chapel nine and the team of Leal's School on the diamond of Pittis Field, Saturday afternoon. After playing the full nine innings, which was done in a rush, the score stood 4 to 2 in favor of the Leal boys.

It was the kind of a match that would have been hailed with delight by the old enthusiast. Not for a minute did the play lag. The teams were evently matched and good work was general. The fielding was exceptionally fine and proved to be a great support to the pitchers. To a great extent the score represents the relative abilities of the batteries, whose work constituted the main features of the game.

Dupee, of Leal's School, pitched in excellent form and his drop shoot kept the Hope chapel boys guessing continually. In the second inning he struck three men out in succession. The work done by him, however, should not detract from the encomiums due J Montross, who put up a great game in the box for the Hope chapel team. Behind the bat the Leal's School team has a phenominal player in Tilney. He is quick and invariably uses good judgment.

The make up of Leal's nine was the same as at previous games with the exception of Neider who substituted for D. McGee on second base. On the Hope chapel team Roseberry's place in centre field was taken by Cose because of the inability of Roseberry to play. H. Montross substituted for Gordon on third base. The remainder of the team was the same as usual.

In the first inning each team scored once, Mague bringing in a run for Hope chapel and Tilney doing likewise for Leal's After that the game was largely a pitchers' battle for several innings, no runs being made by either team Mague, of Hope chapel, succeeded in scoring in the sixth inning, and this feat seemed to spur on the opposing nine. Leal's piled up three runs in the eighth inning, Tilney, V. McGee and Dupee scoring in succession. The game stood then 4 to 2 in favor of Leal's School, and in this condition the game ended.

Hand and Smith, of Hope chapel, made a double play in the fifth inning and they repeated their cheery performance again in the next inning. Another clever piece of field work was Vaughn McGee's catch of a fly batted by Smith in the last inning. Nieder, as a new player, did very well at second on Leal's team.

At the bat Smith and Dupee each succeeded in making a two-bagger. The runs for Leal's were made by Tilney, who scored twice and V. McGee and Dupee. For Hope chapel Mague brought in the two runs scored.

The batting order was as follows:

Hope Chapel.	Leal's School.
Mague, l. f.	Tilney, c.
Smith, s. s.	V. McGee, l. f.
J. Montross, p.	Dupee, p.
Hartfelder, c.	R. Schoon'ker, s. s

H. Montross, 3b	W. Schoon'ker, 3b.

LIKE AN ECHO OF THE GOSPEL CAMPAIGN

Converts of Recent Evangelistic Meetings United in a Service Last Evening.

F. H. JACOBS WAS LEADER.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH WAS NOT LARGE ENOUGH FOR IT.

Many of the New Christians Bore Testimony—Rousing Singing of Favorite Gospel Hymns by Chorus Choir—Several Short Addresses.

A union meeting of those who expressed a desire to lead a Christian life at the recent evangelistic services was held last evening in the First Baptist church. In charge of the service was F. H. Jacobs, the evangelist who so ably assisted Wm. Phillips Hall and Rev. Theodore Henderson in the Twentieth Century Gospel campaign.

In many respects the meeting reminded one forcibly of the evangelistic services. People coming from all parts of the city and borough, swarmed the large church edifice until at last, when Mr Jacobs made his appearance on the platform promptly at 7:30 o'clock, not a seat was vacant. With one accord all seemed to join heartily especially in the service of praise.

Mr. Jacobs announced at the commencement of the meeting that the services will be of an informal nature in which the giving of testimonies would mingle with the prayers and praise of the worshippers. Those who had surrendered themselves to the Master at the evangelistic meetings were urged to testify whether Christ was not now more precious to them. This request met with a glorious response from many who have lately professed a desire to lead a Christian life.

Coupled with the announcement that the collection would be devoted to the cause of the Twentieth Century Gospel campaign movement, Mr. Jacobs stated that the funds of the organization were used for the purpose of sending evangelists out to conduct meetings and to distributing literature explanatory of the great movement. It has large obligations to meet May 1, and the organization treasurery is very low at present.

The keynote of the service, he said, was better service to Christ. F. H. Andrews, superintendent of Warren chapel Sunday school, at Mr. Jacob's request, commenced the testimonial service. He spoke particularly on the responsibility of those recently pledging themselves to Christ to spread the gospel.

After a number had given testimonies Rev. Arthur E. Main, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, made a short extemporaneous address on "Church Membership" and spoke particularly on the duty of every Christian believer to be baptised and become a member of the church. The speaker gave a number of reasons why it is incumbent upon all Christians to belong to the Church. The Church, said he, was built by the Lord; it stands on a rock; it belongs to Him, and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it. If nothing else, it is the pillar of truth.

During the service a number of the favorite gospel hymns were sung by the volunteer choir and by the congregation. Mr. Jacobs sang very effectively "Count Your Blessings" and the congregation joined in the chorus.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, April 29—At the recent New York East M. E. conference, Rev. W. W. Winans, a former resident of the borough, was appointed to Watertown, Conn. The church at that place is a large and prosperous one and is one of the most important changes in the district. It is but six miles from Waterbury, where Mr. Winan's former charge is located.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Literary Circle held Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. L. T. Titsworth. One of Shakespeare's tradgedies was read and the remainder of the evening was given up to sociability. But one more meeting will be held before the circle disbands for the summer.

A number of the borough baseball enthusiasts held a practice game on the Lincoln avenue grounds Saturday which was witnessed by a crowd of spectators. As yet no steps have been taken toward the formation of a regular team and there is a possibility of Dunellen being without a representative nine this season.

Aleck Harris left Saturday for Five Mile Lock, with a full equipment for pursuing the shad fishing industry. He has rented a section of the Raritan in that vicinity and will remain all summer. He has engaged several assistants from the borough who will join him during the latter part of the week.

Miss Margaret Smith, of New Brunswick, who taught the dancing class in Apgar's hall during the past winter, will be married tomorrow evening to Joseph W. Lucas, of Philadelphia, son of the wealthy paint manufacturer. The ceremony will be performed at the bride's home.

A. A. Lake spent Saturday and yesterday with Rev. A. I. Martine, of Marlboro. Miss Janet Lake, who accompanied him, will remain until Saturdao.

The Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar Club will meet this evening at the home of Miss A. B. Weatherwax for the regular rehearsal.

George Angleman, of Piermont, N. Y., has been visiting friends in town during the past few days.

The regular meeting of Court Dunellen, I. O. F., will be held this evening.

Miss Nellie Brown was the guest of New York friends Saturday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 29.—A petition for electric lights on the road between New Market and South Plainfield, which has been circulated during the past few days, has been favorably received wherever presented. More than the necessary number of signers has already been secured and is possible the petition will be presented at the next meeting of the Board of Freeholders. It is a much needed improvement and the request will no doubt be granted.

Miller John Otto has plans in view for the beautifying of the dam on his property and for that reason has planted a number of pussy-willow bushes directly in front of it. It is his intention to place them along the entire length of the dam.

The social to be given in Friendship Hall on May 7, will be known as a "duck dance." Only men in duck trousers and women in skirts of the same material will be allowed entrance.

C. T. Rogers' clothing manufactory has closed for an indefinite period. The employes were laid off Saturday.

Miss Annie Jenner entertained company from New York Saturday.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, April 28—Albert Gibbs, formerly of this place, but now of Bayonne, sustained a serious injury Saturday afternoon while at work in the Jersey City yards of the Jersey Central Railroad. He was caught between two cars and his left arm was badly lacerated, leaving a wound several inches deep. He was taken to a hospital in Jersey City, where the wound was dressed. Later he was taken to his home in Bayonne. It cannot be learned as yet whether the arm can be saved or not. Mr Gibbs is unconscious most of the time. It was only a week ago that Mr. Gibbs moved from Fanwood to Bayonne.

Rev. G. M. Shott went to New York today to take part in a farewell reception to Rev. Dr. Dixon, of Brooklyn, who soon goes to the pastorate of the Ruggles Street Baptist church, Boston.

A large number of the members of Methodist church attended the regular services at the church yesterday to greet the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Beacom. He preached two very interesting sermons.

The school children, who have been afflicted with throat trouble, do not seem to be any worse and the health authorities do not believe that anything serious will result.

Miss Florence Wade led the Epworth League meeting in the M. E. church last evening. There was a large attendance and the service was an interesting one.

Miss Margaret Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gibbs, who is suffering with a light attack of scarlet fever, seems to be improving satisfactorily.

The officials of the borough and township have been having the streets and gutters cleaned of late, and otherwise improving the condition of things.

Mr. and Mrs. Youndt, of Dunellen, spent yesterday with Mrs. Youndt's mother, Mrs. A. Miller, of Fanwood.

M. A. Johnston, of Plainfield, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. Johnston, of Park avenue, yesterday.

Miss Ethel Conger, of New Market, spent yesterday with Miss Gussie Clawson.

William E. Manning entertained company over Sunday.

Harry Teeple is entertaining his cousin from Newark.

Rugs From Prairie Grass.

An illustration of the ingenuity of the Yankee is shown in the manufacture of carpet from prairie grass. The grass is twisted into a continuous rope about three-eights of an inch in diameter and woven with cotton warps of various colors, making a delightful floor covering that is not only beautiful but remarkably durable. Rugs of various sizes woven in pretty patterns are also made in the same manner. A fine display of these original carpets and rugs is to be seen in the window of Woodhull & Martin's carpet store at 246 West Front street.

At a business meeting of the W. S. S., held in their rooms in Central Hall Saturday evening, the following officers were elected: President, Robert Goldsack; vice-president, George L. Apgar; secretary, Percy Vail; treasurer, Nelson Peterson. Arrangements were also made for the organization's farewell reception which is to be held Friday evening.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Recognition by Manager Maze Edwards of the valued services of an employe prompts him to tender a complimentary benefit to treasurer "Mique" Muldowney which takes place at Music Hall tomorrow night. The grand old drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented by a strong company the version used being now performed at the Academy of Music, New York. In addition to the regular features of the play many local celebrities have volunteered their services and will appear. Among the latter are Prof. Wm. Munsell who will execute his well known abilities as an entertainer. John Taylor and six colored belles and beaux who appear in a swell dress cake walk, and Miss May Duffy in recitations. Matinee at 3:15, parade at noon.

Max Freeman is responsible in a manner for the great success achieved by F. C Whitney and Edwin Knowles' production of Stanislaus Stange's dramatization of "Quo Vadis," which will be the closing attraction at Music Hall Thursday night. It is under his direction that the piece was staged, and he personally inspects the performance frequently to prevent the possibility of a lapse in any part thereof. Mr. Freeman has brought all his knowledge of stage technique to bear on the business of Quo Vadis," and the result is said to be a triumph. The play which is to be seen in this city within a few days follows the book very closely, and is given in six acts and eight scenes. Among the most important of these are the garden of Nero's palace, the burning of Rome, the Emperor's box at the Amphitheatre and the Mamertine Prison. It is of a semi-religious nature, which style of drama seems, at the present time, to have particular vogue. A writer in the Philadelphia Record devoted a column to citing the great qualities he saw in "Quo Vadis." The production as given here will be identical with that enjoyed by the citizens of London, New York and Chicago last year.

Uncertainties of Nitroglycerin.

Long experience commonly makes the oil well shooter unconsciously, if not avowedly, a fatalist. Nitro-glycerin would make a fatalist of any man. It is a substance that is likely to do almost anything except what is predicted of it. A ten-quart can of it had been dropped off the roof of a house with no disastrous consequences, while it is on record that a man, in passing a can that had been emptied and that was lying beside a forest path, struck it with his walking-stick and was promptly blown into a neighboring tree-top. Instances are numerous where workmen have "thawed out" the erratic fluid by standing the cans on top of a hot stove and have continued to eat three meals a day, and yet the dropping of a piece of hot iron into a tub of water in which such cans have been standing wrecked a building and the adjoining derrick. Instances such as these could be multiplied from the annals of the oil country and serve to show how unreliable nitro-glycerin is. As one shooter expressed it: "If only a man sticks to this business long enough, he is pretty certain sooner or later to be spread all over the next county."—George E. Mayo, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Old Gooseberry for New Ships.

It may be ungenerous to dispel a popular delusion, but there is no one among the thousands who witness a ship launch who does not believe that the beautifully garlanded bottle of wine broken against the stem of a ship is anything but the choicest brand of champagne drawn from the admiral's cellar. Whenever a ship is launched in a dockyard the admiralty generously allow £40 as the cost of the jubilation, and included in this sum of £40 is the item of three shillings for wine. Hence, it follows that not only is the wine not drawn from the admiral's cellar, but it certainly is not champagne of foreign vintage.—English Naval and Military Record.

Admirable Self Control.

Queen Alexandra's capacity for self-control was shown when she was taking one of her incognito excursions about Copenhagen. A nobleman saw her entering a "bus," and as she was doing so a stout man and two women forced their way in front of her. Not a sign of disapproval was on her features; merely a sort of naive surprise. There was absolutely no comment. As she was unknown, she was free to make an angry protest, but she ruled her spirit, and was thus a model of self-restraint in that hardest of all places to avoid impatience—a public vehicle.—Youth's Companion.

"White Mountain" Ice Cream Freezers
Triple Motion

The can moves from right to left, the outside beater moves from left to right, scrapes with its wooden bars the cream from the can, and throws it towards the centre, where it is met by the floats of the inside beater, moving in an opposite direction, and returned to the inside surface of the can to be re-frozen.

The triple motion thus induced, keeps the cream constantly moving and ensures every particle being smoothly and evenly frozen.

"Not much, I think, Mrs. Goddard."

"Well, it must be the natural condition of wicked people. I am full of superstition. I am always looking for punishment in some supernatural way, and right now it seems nearer to my heels than ever. Have you ever heard of Mme. Legare, the fortune teller?"

Blanche had, and she sat wide-eyed with surprise as Mrs. Goddard continued:

"I went to see her this afternoon. I have heard so many wonderful things she has foretold. She seems to be able to look right through the curtain of the future and to actually tear it down from the past. I don't know what made me decide to go, but when the idea presented itself I went without stopping to weigh the consequences.

"Her house is in West Fiftieth street, and when I went in and the man had closed the front door I found myself in total darkness. I assure you I felt as if I were actually in my grave. Even the sound of the wagons and carriages in the street was shut out. The attendant gave me his hand, and, whispering to me that I had nothing to fear, he led me into a dark, still room on the right of the entrance. There he left me for at least half an hour. I tell you I was frightened almost out of my senses, but I did not dare get up to retrace my steps. I seemed to breathe only the stuffy darkness, and absorb new horrors from my surroundings. Presently a soft glow as delicate as the first touches of sunlight on the eastern skies shone in front of me. This grew into a sort of rosy radiance, and then a gauzy curtain seemed to be lifted, and I saw a woman reclining on a couch under a faint pink light. I knew that it was Mme. Legare and that she was in her famous trance condition. Just then the attendant came to me and whispered that I was to advance and stand by her couch alone. As soon as I had done so Mme. Legare began to speak.

"'The person before me is threatened with a sad calamity,' were her first words. Then, although she could not possibly have known that I knew of her, or had the slightest intention of consulting her, she gave me a clear, true outline of my past life."

"Very strange, indeed," said Blanche.

"It was, to be sure," went on Mrs. Goddard. "And what she told me of the past made me dread more than ever her first statement. I presently found courage to ask her what she meant by that allusion.

"'You are about to take a voyage,' said she, after a moment's reflection, 'and, while you may come back safely, I am afraid you will die away from your native land.'

"'Would you advise me to stay at home?' I asked her.

"'No, you need not try to escape your fate,' she answered. 'In fact, your impulse to go away from America is a step in the right direction, and if you have to die it would be better to die while trying to atone for that which you regret so sincerely.'"

"How very awful!" exclaimed Blanche. The recital had really excited her beyond description.

"Her warning has brought all the good there is in me to the surface," declared Mrs. Goddard. "I want to stop right now and try to beat a retreat and disentangle myself from the toils my sin has wound around me." The speaker's voice dwindled away into silence. Then she seemed to make a resolve to be more candid than ever.

"Blanche," she sighed, "I have not told you the worst yet. I have wronged you more than I did him—more than I ever did anybody in my life, because you were so young at the time, and I struck you from the dark."

"Wronged me?" The girl drew herself up with a sudden intuition of what was coming.

"Yes, you, my poor, innocent child. When the major first began to come to see me it was simply that he might pour his love for you into a sympathetic ear. He was madly in love with you. He could talk of nothing but his beautiful ward. I had heard of his riches, and I at once set about to dethrone you. I laid the most adroit plans to secure his attentions. I used all the wiles in my power. It was an awful struggle, but the prize was a big one in my sight. I was heartily tired of the sordid life I was leading and was fired with the ambition to be a social leader—to use the arts I felt I was born with. When he fell it was very sudden. Then I pretended that I was trying to retreat because he was rich and I was poor, but that only inflamed him all the more, as I knew it would. You know the rest. Now, you may hate me, for if it had not been for me he would have gone on loving you, and—and you would have made him happier than I can, for—oh, Blanche, I know your secret, and that has been part of my punishment! I have ruined both your life and his."

"Why do you tell me all this?" asked Blanche, bitterly, and, unwilling to disclaim the accusation just uttered, she put her hands to her face and began to tremble from head to foot.

"Why do I tell you about it?" said Mrs. Goddard, a cold, snaky gleam in her eyes, "because if anything were to happen to me I want you to remember that I now say that God selected you for his bride and Satan and I thwarted the plan. Therefore, remember that—if I should die abroad (you see, I cannot forget that woman's uncanny prediction)—I want you to console him at once by marrying him as soon as he asks you."

"Oh, this is simply dreadful!" Blanche uncovered her white face and stared fixedly at the woman.

"I know it," was the answer, "but see that you keep what I have told you to yourself. Blanche, you cannot deny that you have loved him a long time."

"I don't intend to," said the conquered girl. "He is the best man that ever lived—the noblest, the truest, the most abused. If you had only made him happy—but you have not; he is beside himself with grief over your departure."

"That is true, but it can't be helped. Now leave me. I feel very unhappy tonight—unhappy because I have made you so. I am not all bad."

Blanche rose. She was like a boat buffeted by conflicting currents. She believed Jeanne to be remorseful because her confessed deeds appeared so horrible to her unsullied mind.

"I am so sorry for you," she was enabled to say sincerely.

"Will you kiss me, Blanche?"

"Yes, for I am sorry for you, in spite of—"

"I know," broke in Mrs. Goddard, and she kissed the girl on the lips. It was just such a kiss as she bestowed on her husband a thousand times, and it had never failed to deceive him. It made our heroine shiver.

"I have another trouble, Blanche," and Mrs. Goddard pressed her hand upon her white brow. "My father was insane when he died. That's the other secret. He had strange fancies. I often have them, too. Awful delusions. I fight them away, but they come again and again. Don't tell the major. He has enough trouble already, besides he would be afraid to send me away."

"But perhaps you ought to tell him and get medical advice," remonstrated Blanche.

"No, the voyage will put me straight. The sea air always does. I shall come back feeling better in every way."

"That, then, is your chief reason for deciding to go so suddenly," remarked the girl. "I wondered how—"

"Yes," broke in Mrs. Goddard, as if her recital had gained plausibility in being viewed from Blanche's standpoint. "Yes, my attacks have been more frequent of late and I really feel the need of a decided change."

As Blanche went out she saw her guardian waiting on the first landing of the stairway, and her heart reproached her for remaining so long with his wife, for she saw that his impatience was consuming him. He had nothing to say as she passed; his face was filled with utterances too vague for words.

"I forgot to say," he said, when Mrs. Goddard had admitted him, "that I did not go down to the ship to see your stateroom. You said it was the Cleopatra, I believe."

"Yes, dear," she drew him to the seat just vacated by his ward. "It is not one of the fastest liners. Indeed, it takes ten days to reach Liverpool, but for the same price I was able to get absolutely the chief stateroom on the ship. It is on the promenade deck and has a private bath and a room for Mrs. Nolan adjoining mine. Oh, it has every convenience, and has a big, wide bed in which I can be thoroughly comfortable!"

"I am glad you have made such good arrangements," responded the major; "but I wish you wouldn't go. Jeanne, do you know that you are drawing me into depths of degradation that I would never have reached but for you? For God's sake let's renounce it all and turn about and try to live pure, honorable lives. I am already tired of the plan."

"Bosh!" Her exclamation was full of impatience. "Don't show the white feather at this late hour! You want me to continue to love you, and I cannot love anybody as poor as Job's turkey. So drop that sort of nonsense. I have argued with you all I am going to."

"Another thing," he said, cautiously, "I don't like the looks of the woman you employed."

"Lucy Nolan, and why, pray?"

"She doesn't look like an honest woman."

A rippling laugh burst from Mrs. Goddard's lips.

"What are you amused over?" he asked, slightly piqued.

"That you should expect me to select a prodigy of human goodness to help me carry out the most daring piece of rascality ever born of woman's fertile brain. Dear Rowland, are you jesting?"

"Do you mean to say that you suspect her to be a dishonest woman?"

"I know that she will do anything I ask for money and keep her mouth shut. I may as well tell the truth. I used to employ her. She was at the head of my sewing-room. We understand each other."

He seemed deeply shocked by this confession. For several minutes he sat staring at her dumbly. Presently he pulled himself together. Later in his life he recalled his reply and regarded it in the light of an inspired prophecy.

"Jeanne, don't drive me too far," he said with a sudden firmness that beat her back into the crafty cautiousness from which overconfidence had allowed her to slip. "Don't drive me too far. I have always had an ideal—a woman who would be above instead of beneath me in high aspirations, and if anything should cause me to shake you off, it will be that you draw me down instead of upward."

Her face was full of startled concern for a single instant, then she began to smile upon him.

"Leave it all to me, then, Rowland," she said. "I am plotting and planning for your interest and mine. All I ask of you is to be silent and obey my orders. Think of the long years of happiness before us. You never could make me believe that we are doing Blanche any wrong in making the few remaining months of her life happy. She confessed to me that she loved you only a few minutes ago."

"You are not serious, Jeanne?"

"I never was more so. She has never had a moment's happiness since you married me. Now, it will be but fair for me to give you to her while she lives."

He made no reply. The firelight shone in the face of the enchantress. If he fell under the circumstances, he did nothing but what man's earliest ancestor did for reasons not so clearly set forth as those which dragged Goddard away from the rugged path of rightdoing.

In Old Rouen

Where Joan of Arc Was Martyred To Appease Science

WHEN you are in France, if you have only a little time left after "doing" Paris, spend that time in Normandy. If you have only one day, give it to Rouen, a town probably as old as the Druid Cromlechs of the isle of Jersey, and its buildings and the ways of its people seem as old as the Druids too.

In the vast cathedral, built two centuries before the discovery of America, is the tomb of Richard the Lion Hearted of England. The great town clock "grosse horloge," set upon an arch over the street, dates from 1389. But most of all a woman will care to search out with loving pains the places where Joan of Arc, the holy maid of Domremy, walked while on this earth, the grim, gray tower where she was imprisoned, the sorrowful path she trod from the tower to the stake.

Rouen is full of traces of gentle, saintly Jeanne Darc to this day. The very air seems vibrant with memories of her. The principal street is named for her, "Jeanne Darc." It was spelled as I have written it, with no apostrophe between the D and the a. Rouen still recalls that the maid's family name was plain peasant Darc till the French government, long after her martyrdom, ennobled it by decreeing that the aristocratic "de" should be placed before it. Jeanne Darc had no blue blooded ancestry, therefore was snuffed out by no fine lady traditions when she entered on her mission. Had she been "in society" France might have been an English possession to this day.

Yet another street is called "Rue de la Pucelle d'Orleans," and there is, too, the "Place de la Pucelle d'Orleans." Her memory is honored by an inscription in the market place. In these ancient French towns the market place is an important spot. It was a lovely spring day when I went through the public mart of Rouen. Old environing walls, built like almost everything else in this part of the world when time was long, stood all about. The stalls were bright with flowers and fragrant with the odors of delicious northern French strawberries. New grown peas, like polished round green pearls, were bursting from their fat pods. Clean, white capped peasant women cried their wares musically — periwinkles, tender green radishes and succulent rhubarb stalks.

Past them all, stalls, women and radishes, through the market house I went and on to the spot where one of the world's most awful tragedies was enacted—the burning at the stake by decree of church and state of a virgin martyr who had delivered her country from a foreign power. The very spot where the fires were kindled is known and marked. A stone of the pavement outside the old market covers the place. Years after her death, when the martyr had become a saint in the minds of the French nation, old people yet living who remembered the death scene and the day pointed out the spot to those who wished to make record of it. The maid was taken to the market place to be burned that the populace might see and take warning.

Joan of Arc owed her death to science, strictly. In writing of the extraordinary career of the maid, the scientist biographer of today tells you that at the age of 13 she "believed herself subject to supernatural visitations," "imagined" that she heard voices calling to her and giving her direction. Further, she had heard a tradition that a virgin was to deliver France from the English invader, and having imagined she heard the voices and saw the visions it was very easy for her, being already slightly touched in the head, to go in a trifle stronger and again "imagine" herself to be that virgin.

Thus says science today. But it was exactly the "science" of 1431, that of the University of France, the very forefront of the learning of the time, which first demanded the trial of Joan of Arc on the charge of sorcery. Today science would eat its own head before it would admit there was any such thing as sorcery. Science changes its front.

Having defeated the English and seen Charles VII crowned, the maid heard no more voices. Her work was done. Then she begged to go back to grooming and feeding her horses at the country inn. But no! The French king and his nobles would not hear of it. They begged, they commanded, her to remain with them, leading them to conquest. She yielded. That was the girl and the woman of it, and then her sorrows began. Not until she had been arrested and put on trial for sorcery at the demand of the most advanced scientists of the day did she hear any more unearthly voices. There in the grim, gray tower, terrifying beyond description to a country girl of 18, her heavenly voices and visions returned to her and kept her from going mad. For months common humanity argued pro and con with the college professors and advanced scientists. Finally the advanced scientists had their way, and their decision that the maid was guilty of practicing diabolical arts and should be subjected to punishment by fire was affirmed officially.

Speedily the punishment was executed, speedily the maid passed from the grim tower into the dear sunshine for the last time. Down the street of Jeanne Darc, which was not Jeanne Darc then, and across to the open square she walked, ranks of pitiless men at her heels, in front and all around her, only one kindly face in the whole sea of humanity surging through that market place. She had been put to the rack to force her to confess the black art, had weakened for a little, and said she did not believe her voices and visions were of God. Then she took it all back and declared they were of God and then—the pile of wood, the tender white body chained to the stake, shrinking beneath the cruel fires. In that last moment celestial visions floated before her in glorious beauty. She testified that the voices said to her:

"Daughter of God, go on! This day shalt thou be with me in paradise."

At least, she "imagined" so.

Then while her earth body went up in smoke and flame this great spirit, herald and prophet of the woman that is to be went back invisible to God. Hundreds of feet press daily the paving stone which marks the place where she was burned; every year hundreds of American women stand beside it with hearts full of pity and reverence and the number of pilgrims ever increases. The inscription, wearing dim beneath the many feet, tells us she was martyred May 30, 1431, on what, by a coincidence, is now the American Memorial day—the day for placing flowers and evergreens upon the graves of the beloved dead. The maid's ashes were sprinkled upon the waters of the Seine.

Today the gentle maid is St. Joan, canonized, and the patron of France. Today foremost among those who shudder at the deed of horror wrought in Rouen, that fair May 30, are the world's most advanced scientists. So it goes.

In the Place de la Pucelle d'Orleans is a statue of Jeanne by no means worthy of Rouen or of her. The inscription thereon says of her that she was "in sex a woman, in arms a man, in fortitude a hero." Well might it say so.

Peacefully flows on still that Seine which nearly five centuries ago bore the ashes of the maid to the ocean, but all the atmosphere of old Rouen thrills with her spirit still. It seems indeed as if

In her ashes live their wonted fires.

She "imagined" she was divinely called to do great works. She did them. That is the cold, hard fact. Pity some of us today could not "imagine" ourselves in like manner called to do worthy deeds.

Now Everything in the Stores Is for Summer

All the Spring Materials Have Been Sold or Otherwise Disposed of

Now Everywhere Is the Summer Gown Displayed

DURING the days of Lent there was but little shown in the New York stores but the spring garments, and the women who must provide themselves with at least four new wardrobes each year to meet the demands of each season thought only of these spring gowns. But scarcely had Easter Sunday afforded an opportunity for displaying these new spring costumes when the whole display in the stores were changed, and we now have summer. There is the customary early rush for materials and novelties that marks the beginning of preparations for each new season, and when it is over the fashionable women will be provided, and the woman whose purse is not so well supplied with money will have something to copy in less expensive materials and trimmings, and if she is a bright woman she will get something quite as charming in its way, even if not quite so fine, as her more fortunate sister has secured at many times the price.

OF ZEPHYR SILK IN PARMA MAUVE.

In this display of new summer materials are fancy crepes, wool poplins, grenadines and the very thin zephyr silks. All of these make delicate, soft shimmering dresses, and appear in plain surfaces, or delicately embroidered effects, all in self colors. Lace insertions, lace medallions and lace flounces, both narrow and the medium wide, are being used on summer costumes in white, ecru or black.

Etons and blouse effects with long basque ends will be much worn if one can judge by the store displays in which they predominate. They are made with balloon or paquin sleeves.

Of the pretty summer models there is an elaborate crepe gown in a light shade of gray, trimmed with old ivory tinted lace. The skirt is corded all the way around, and in shallow scallops down the front, with wee gold buttons. Reverlike points are turned back at the foot to display a petticoat of plisse chiffon. The bodice is in large box plaits from a yoke of velvet, trimmed with lace applique. The plaits are drawn in at the waist line to form a shirred gathered effect girdle. Paquin sleeves with lace cuffs and puffing of white chiffon.

A TAILOR GOWN OF WOOL POPLIN.

Another of the pleasing summer gowns is of zephyr silk in a tone of parma mauve trimmed with broad insertions. The skirt is made with several tiny tucks directly down the front, and a shaped flounce having the tucks at the hem, and headed with lace insertion. The bodice is in wee tucks, with bands of insertion on each side. A vest of silver tissue which shimmers out softly through a veiling of finer lace, thus making an effective background for a little cravat of black velvet. The sleeves are tucked at the top in a V shape, with a finish of insertion, and are bell shaped at the wrist with the insertion to finish.

Of the summer tailor gowns a smart one is of wool poplin in a delicate mauve. It has a gracefully hanging skirt with a deep embroidered band of black velvet and gold, this extending from the hem in front to half way up the back. It has a bolero jacket, with standing collar and paquin sleeves. The bolero and sleeves are bordered with narrow bands of the embroidered trimming. A very wide pointed belt and the puff of the sleeve of the same embroidery.

Some Little Hints on the Summer Fashions

HERE are a few little points about summer fancies that were given to me by a dressmaking friend in New York. They are worth considering:

"Tell your readers to have a bolero jacket made for summer wear," she said. "They are sure to be worn all through the summer season, for that is the verdict of Paris. They will be worn quite short, descending but two or three inches below the arms and forming a straight line round the figure, or far longer—that is to say, reaching almost to the waistline—but still allowing the waistband to be visible at the back between them and the skirt. They are made long in front and frequently pointed, and are shown less often accompanied by chemisettes than waistcoats, which have close-fitting fronts. Many of such waistcoats are fashioned in white cloth or flannel, in which an allover design is stamped out; they are lined with colored silk forming a transparent, and are very pretty.

"Tell them also to use velvet ribbon and lots of it. They can scarcely get too much. Black velvet ribbon, in graduated widths is one of the very approved modes of decoration for transparent flowered materials, and later on flounces will be so employed in the composition of the skirts that an effect as bouffante and extensive as that lent by the old-fashioned hoop will be given these fragile costumes.

A LIGHT GRAY CREPE GOWN.

"Above all else tell them to be careful of the accessories. It is a season of accessories, and never before did the little things play so important a part in our fashionable wardrobes. One of these accessories that are necessary is the fan. The short sleeves to our gowns make them so. The same sleeves make the long glove, the long mitt necessary. In fans, the hand-painted affair or a daintily decorated Japanese one are to be the favorites.

"But there are other accessories equally important. Among these are fancy jeweled pins for the throat, as well as the many artistic pieces of neckwear with jeweled clasps to hold the velvet ties, jeweled ends for ribbon ties to match the belt with similarly jeweled ends—all of these are interesting and attractive articles, especially suited to the designs of the gowns of the coming season.

"Applications of lace, like ribbons, can hardly be overdone. They are one of the most fashionable methods of decoration in a season devoted to elaborate decoration. Lace applications may be had in a countless number of designs, but a new lace trimming consists in square applications of that fabric. They form a sort of frame as the interior is absent. They are sold ready woven in that shape and cover a space of about six inches, the frame itself being from two to 2½ inches broad, both edges of which are scalloped. These are appliqued on skirts a little above the hem, or as panels at the sides, in which case they are graduated in size. The square space left in the center is crossed by two or three bands of narrow ribbon fastened in the center by a small bow or gold buckle."

Ah Sin's Ways.

To a Chinaman the idea that a judge should take bribes seems as natural as that a duck should take to the water. And yet the Chinaman will not, unless he knows he is on the right track, brutally push his bribe under the judge's nose. Either he or one of his countrymen will from the judge's arrival have rendered him good service. Does the judge want a gardener or a cook? Ah Sin soon provides an excellent one who never asks for his wages. Have some visitors arrived at the alcaldia? Ah Sin sends in a dozen chickens, a turkey and the best fruits. Is it the judge's name day? The wily Celestial presents a few cases of wine and boxes of fine cigars. Is the roof of the alcaldia leaking? A couple of Chinese carpenters will set it right without sending in a bill for it. Then, having prepared the way, should Ah Sin be summoned before the alcalde, he may confidently hope that his patron will not hurriedly give judgment against him, and that he will probably get a full opportunity to present substantial reasons why the suit should be decided in his favor.—"Inhabitants of the Philippines."

WORKED HIS WAY UP.

Story of Carnegie's Rise from Poverty to Wealth.

Began Life as Bobbin Boy in a Linen Factory at $1.20 Per Week—His Generosity in Donations Amount to Millions.

Andrew Carnegie was born at Dunfermline, Scotland, in 1837, and his father, who was an humble workman, moved to this country with his family when Andrew was only 11 years old. On reaching the United States the Carnegies went directly to relatives living near Pittsburgh, Pa. The early education of Andrew Carnegie was entirely in the hands of his mother. Into his mind she inculcated a deep love for Robert Burns.

So poor was the family on reaching Pittsburgh that young Andrew was obliged to be put to work. His first employment was as bobbin boy in a linen factory at $1.20 per week. The first money he received was given to his mother.

During young Carnegie's employment as bobbin boy he had learned to run a small steam engine in the cellar of the factory. His employer, finding he possessed this knowledge, took him from his post in the mill and relegated him to the dingy cellar, giving him charge of the engine.

The position did not suit Carnegie He wanted light and congenial association. One day when out on his "40 minutes' leave" for lunch he applied for a position as messenger boy in the Ohio Telegraph company. He was engaged at a salary of $2.50 per week.

When the civil war broke out, and Col. Scott became assistant secretary of war, Carnegie was placed in charge of the government telegraph communications. He went to Annapolis and opened communications which the confederates had interrupted. He started out on the first locomotive which ran from Annapolis to Washington. Carnegie was on the field at Bull Run, in charge of communications, and is said to have been the last official to leave Alexandria.

ANDREW CARNEGIE.
(Considered by Many Financiers the Richest Man in America.)

After the war Carnegie purchased with others the famous Storey farm, on Oil creek, Pa. The purchase price was $40,000, and shortly it paid an annual profit of $1,000,000. This gave Carnegie his first start in life as a capitalist.

At 30 he had laid the foundation of his wealth. After starting the Keystone Bridge company, he founded the Edgar Thomson Steel Rail company. He then acquired the Homestead and other plants. In 1888 he had seven steel companies, among which were the Homestead, Edgar Thomson, Duquesne, Lucy Furnaces, Upper and Lower Union rolling mills, etc.

His wealth is now estimated at $250,000,000, and until he sold out his interests to the Morgan syndicate a few weeks ago, retiring from active business life, he was the steel king of the world. Although Mr. Carnegie has declared that he intends to give away the greater part of his fortune, he does not purpose that it shall be wasted, and in every one of his donations he employs a strictly business system. All but one or two of his gifts to libraries have been coupled with the condition that a site shall be given and that the community shall promise an annual maintenance fund, which is generally prescribed to be at least one-tenth of the amount of his gift.

He is constantly called on by various people and institutions to give large sums, but always maintains that indiscriminate giving is waste, and not long ago he refused a contribution to a church on the grounds that he would not help any congregation which could not pay its just debts.

His greatest gifts have been $5,000,000 to a pension fund for the employes of the Carnegie company, $5,200,000 for the establishment of a free library system in New York city, and $3,860,000 to the Carnegie library and its branches in Pittsburgh. He has also declared that he intends to give $25,000,000 for founding and endowing the greatest technical school in the world in Pittsburgh, though the plans for this institution have not yet been completed.

Judges Entitled to a Nap.

A verdict of $5,500 damages was rendered in the superior court of Chicago in favor of John Anderson, a teamster, who was injured in a street car accident. The case was appealed, and the railroad company proved that the judge who presided at the trial had become so bored that he had fallen asleep. The appellate court has decided that the judge's drowsiness was excusable.

OLD RESIDENT PASSED AWAY.

J. SMITH GARRETSON DIED AT HIS HOME SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Spent Nearly All His Life In Plainfield—Taken Ill Five Weeks Ago—Charter Member of Trinity Church.

J. Smith Garretson, one of Plainfield's lifelong residents, paseed away at his home on Lee place, Saturday afternoon. He was taken ill five weeks ago and three days afterward lapsed into a semi-conscious condition from which he never recovered. Although suffering greatly, the end was very peaceful. Death was due to erysipelas.

Mr. Garretson was born in 1837, on what is now the Holly farm, and with the exception of a short period at Millstone, always lived in this vicinity. Early he engaged in the grocery business, opening a store on Front street in the building now occupied by Fred Endress. He remained there for many years, retiring in 1880 on account of ill health. He then entered the employ of his brother-in-law, William Shotwell, who was in business on Duer street, and remained with him until about twelve years ago. Since then he has been connected with an insurance firm.

He was one of the charter members of Trinity Reformed church and was always a regular attendant. He was a man of determined character and was well liked by all.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Fred Stillman, Mrs. Jeremiah VanWinkle and Miss Hattie S. Garretson, of this city, and Mrs. George W. Benbrook, of Somerville. The funeral services will be held frm his late residence Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

SURPRISED THEM ALL.

Miss Caroline Livezey and Horace J. Martin, Jr., Quietly Wedded Saturday.

Considerable surprise was occasioned yesterday over the announcement of the marriage of Miss Caroline Livezey, formerly of Park avenue, but now of Philadelphia, to Horace J. Martin, Jr., of Jackson avenue. The bride came to Plainfield Saturday morning to visit friends. In the evening she and Mr. Martin went to the home of Rev. G. W Gardner, of Park place, and were married by him. They were accompanied by Willard B. Martin, brother of the groom, and Fred VanLiew, of this city.

Immediately after the marriage the bridal party went to the home of the groom's parents and announced the event. The bride and groom were then congratulated. For the present they will reside with P. H. Latourette, of East Fifth street.

The groom is employed as chief repa r man at the bicycle store of W. H. Rogers, of North avenue. He is well-known, as is also his wife. Since the happy event they have been receiving a shower of congratulations.

Funeral of Carl Persson.

The funeral services of Carl Albert Persson, the young man who died Wednesday at the home of his uncle, Jacob Geier, of Madison avenue, were held yesterday from the German Lutheran church. They were conducted by Rev. William Trebert. There were numerous floral offerings among them being pillows from the employes of Hedden's and Blair's liveries. The pall bearers were Frank Anderson, Eric Anderson, Goerner Olsen, Edward Straus, Oscar Olsen and Charles Paulson. Interment was made at Hillside.

Disorderly in an Office.

Fred Barneck was arrested Saturday afternoon by Detective McCarthy on a warrant issued charging him with disorderly conduct in D.C. Ivin's office the day previous. City Judge Runyon fined Barneck $10 for the offense this morning.

Death by Dyphtheria.

Leonard Casey, a twelve year old boy, died at his home at 320 Monroe avenue, Saturday morning, from diphtheria. The funeral services were conducted this morning by Rev. G. K. Newell Interment was made in the Westfield cemetery.

Window of Unique Design.

Richard H. McCullough, who is constructing the front to the store to be occupied by F. G. Woolworth in front of Music Hall, has made a very unique designed bow window, which will be used on either side of the entrance to the store.

King Edward's Perquisites.

A king has many privileges, but the oddest of all King Edward's is surely the right he has by statute to the head of every whale caught on the coasts of his kingdom. The tail is to go to Queen Alexandra, the object of the division being to guarantee that the queen's wardrobe shall be furnished with whalebone. King Edward is not likely to receive many whales, however long he may reign, but there are many perquisites of the crown which are not so rare as whales in England. The king is entitled, for instance, to every sturgeon brought to land in the United Kingdom; one of them, caught in the Thames, was on the table at Queen Victoria's wedding banquet. The king should receive, too, every year from divers persons, a tablecloth worth three shillings, two white doves, two white hares, a catapult, a pound of cuminseed, a horse and halter, a pair of scarlet hose, a currycomb, a pair of tongs, a crossbar, a coat of gray, a nightcap, a falcon, two knives, a lance worth two shillings and a silver needle from his tailor.—St. James Gazette.

Queerest Railroad in the World.

The queerest railroad in the world runs in and out and around a public garden on the outskirts of Paris, called the "Jardin d'Acclimitation." In appearance it resembles a cross between a great Chinese dragon and a sea serpent. The engine forms the head of the enormous beast, and the steam arising from its nostrils is quite in keeping with the fabulous tales of dragons, who are popularly supposed to breathe forth smoke and flame. Each car forms a joint of the creature's sinuous body, and the seats are along the sides—back to back. To go gliding through the woods and open grounds of this park on this curious monster is a fascinating sport.—N. Y. Herald.

A New London Organization.

An organization in England is known as "Scapa," the word being made up of the initial letters of the words "Society for Checking Abuses of Public Advertising." The members of the association are opposed to the placing of glaring business announcements on picturesque rocks, along rustic roadways, on 'buses and on huge billboards. They declare that the newspaper is the proper place for advertisements, since the latter are intended to convey information of a news character. Moreover, they say, better results can be achieved by newspaper advertisements than by objectionable signs and posters.—N. Y. Sun.

Population of German Empire.

Germany, according to the census taken on December 1 of last year, has 56,345,014 inhabitants, of whom 27,731,676 are males and 28,613,947 are females. The population of Prussia is 34,500,000, of Bavaria 6,200,000, of Saxony, 4,200,000 and of Wurtemberg 2,300,000. The population in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants is 9,100,000, or 16.7 per cent. of the whole. In five years the population of the empire has nercased by 4,065,113. Since the first census in 1871 it has increased by 13,100,000, or nearly 33 per cent.—N. Y. Sun.

Memory at Fault.

Miss Passay—Old Col. Guff was remarking that the weather of this Christmas was exactly like that of '71, and he asked me if I didn't remember.

Miss Hammer—You don't say?

"Yes, positively insulting, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know. I don't think he meant any offense. He probably doesn't know what a wretched memory you have."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Lived Under Many Monarchs.

The little Norfolkshire town of Walton may well be described as the home of patriarchs, for there reside eight persons who have lived under five English monarchs — George III., George IV., William IV., Queen Victoria and King Edward. In addition there are eight other residents who are octogenarians, and the 16 form an aggregate of 1,300 years. — Chicago Chronicle.

How Queen Punished Her Daughters.

The queen's daughters were as simply and strictly rearer as she herself had been. They had regular hours of work and play, dressed in neat, simple clothes and ate of the plainest fare. "Quite poor living," an old servant of the queen's called it. If they were naughty they received the time-honored punishment of being sent to bed. This was not always a deterrent to the princess royal, as the following story will show: She had several times been scolded for calling Dr. Brown, of Windsor, "Brown," and was threatened with "bed" if she transgressed again. Next day, when the doctor entered the room, the young princess said, in her most daring manner, "Good morning, Brown," and, catching the queen's threatening eye, she composedly added: "And good night, Brown, for I am going to bed," and she walked resolutely away to her punishment.—St. James Gazette.

A Colored Philosopher.

"Ain't no use a worryin' about nuthin'," said the colored philosopher, dangling his feet over the edge of the barrel on which he sat. "Ain't no use t' get blue ner t' feel down in the mout', 'cause it ain't goin' to do any good 'tall. I say to myself, says I: 'Mose, what's the use of you scratchin'? Wife's been dead 'bout four yeahs. Last of ma child'en shuffled off las' week. I don' care if I eats cawn pones o' lasses bread. Live just as long nohow. Ain' goin' t' trouble ma min' 'bout nothin'. Wife man, he have wife an' child'en an' a good coat an' a 'ouse. Bar'l good nuff fur me. Ain't got nuthin' t' work fur an' ain't goin' to work." He shuffled off the barrel and moseyed easily down Hickory alley.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Definition.

"Where's your daughter Mary living now, Mrs. Herlihy?" inquired one of the neighbors.

"Her hoosband's got a fine job," said Mrs. Herlihy, proudly, "and the two av thim and little Moike is living in a suit up town."

"What's a suit?" inquired the neighbor.

"A suit," said Mrs. Herlihy, slowly, "is one o' them places where the parlor is the bedroom, and the bedroom is the kitchen, and the closets is down in the cellar, and the beds is piannies—or organs, and—well, it's one o' thim places where iverything is something else," concluded Mrs. Herlihy.—Buffalo Commercial.

Mother Always Won.

They are not exactly bad boys, these two in a certain East Memphis family, but they are invariably quarreling and fighting with one another. Probably it was the fact of frequent parental intervention that caused the few pauses in hostilities. At any rate, they are rather famous in their neighborhood.

One day not long since one of the neighbors, who was fond of contests of any kind, asked:

"Edwin, when you and your brother fight so much, who generally whips?"

Edwin gave a little wriggle as if in sympathy with memories of recent occurrences, and said, resignedly: "Mother."—Memphis Scimitar.

Animals for Taxes.

The natives of Uganda lately paid their taxes for the current year, amounting approximately to £60,000. This includes payments in kind, consisting of five elephants, one zebra, 20 chimpanzees, several warthogs, water antelopes, porcupines, snakes and cranes and numerous monkeys. All these creatures have been received at the government headquarters at Port Alice.—Troy Times.

Casks at Sea.

There are now afloat in the Arctic ocean some 50 spindle-shaped casks, whose finding is awaited with interest by pole-seekers as conveying much-desired information in regard to the set of the polar currents. The casks were set adrift north of Behring strait in 1899 by whalers, at the instance of Admiral Melville and Henry G. Bryant, of the Philadelphia Geographical association.—N. Y. Sun.

His Physicians Are Numerous.

No other sovereign in the world has so many physicians as the czar. They number 77, and are all selected from among the medical celebrities of Russia. There is first a physician in chief; then come ten honorary surgeons; two oculists, a chiropodist and honorary chiropodist; two court physicians and three specialists for the czarina.—N. Y. Sun.

FOR ENDEAVORERS.

Friday evening, May 31, has been announced as the date of the spring conference and annual election of officers from the Union County Christian Endeavor Union. Further particulars will be given later, but the date is announced thus early in order that Endeavorers may reserve the evening for the county conference. President William J. Hamilton, Jr., especially urges that there be a large attendance of members from every society in the county.

Tuesday evening, April 9, a helpful conference on Junior Christian Endeavor work was held in the chapel of the Third Presbytarian church, Elizabeth. The meeting had been planned by Miss M. E. Baumgartner, county superintendent of Junior work, and it included an address by Rev. George C. Horter, state superintendent of this branch of Christian Endeavor work, and an open parliament on the subject. Rev. Mr. Horter's subject was "The Secret of Success in Junior Work."

At the meeting of the county executive committee, which preceded the conference, the recently organized society of Westminster church was received into membership in the county union.

The state Christian Endeavor unions of Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, Texas, Tennessee, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania have postponed their conventions until 1902 and will hereafter meet biennially, in accordance with the suggestion of the trustees of the United Society.

Miss Antoine de P. Jones, of Floating Endeavor fame, has recently received $50 for the furnishing of two rooms in the Christian Endeavor Seaman's Home at Nagasaki, Japan.

Michigan has just held its State convention with very gratifying results. The meetings aroused so much interest that the pastors in Port Huron, where the convention was held, have decided to follow them with an evangelistic campaign.

Willistown society has felt the influence of the recent vigesimal celebration which it entertained. Extra chairs have to be brought in to accommodate the increased attendance and many new members have joined the society.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by L. W. Randolph. Price 50c and $1.00.

Twelve years ago J. W. Sullivan, of Hartford, Conn., scratched his leg with a rusty wire. Inflammation and blood poisoning set in. MURDER AND ASSAULT.

Brutal Crime of a Band of Negroes at Connellsville, Pa.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 29.—The Connellsville coke region is all stirred up over the dastardly deeds of a gang of negroes who attacked Hiram McMillan, a white man, and his wife in a lonely house near Oliphant and shot the man twice, probably mortally wounding him, and assaulted brutally the woman, who also is in a serious condition from the abuse.

McMillan's house sets back from the highway near the old historic Oliphant furnace. McMillan is about 40 years old, but his wife is quite a young woman, and the two were alone. Suddenly eight negroes, in the party being two black women also, came from hiding and attacked the house. The men burst in the door, dragged Mrs. McMillan from her husband's arms and carried her out behind an outbuilding, where the six men assaulted her.

Leaving their victim prostrated, the men gave their attention to the frantic husband, who had been engaged in battle with one or more of the men throughout this terrible ordeal. McMillan broke from his assailants, and as he darted back into his house the cowards, evidently thinking that he was going for a gun or a revolver, drew a bead on him, and a bullet pierced his body just below the heart. McMillan fell at his door, but before fleeing the negroes shot at his prostrate body, another bullet lodging in the fallen man near the kidney.

For some time after the negroes had fled the husband lay at his door bleeding and his wife lay unconscious behind the outbuilding, about 50 feet away. The woman came to herself first and found her husband. Mrs. McMillan gave the alarm, and immediately a posse was organized to hunt down the black fiends.

The posse did not lose much time in getting started over the hills and in a couple of hours came across Wesley Lewis, one of the supposed assailants, who thought he would elude the officers by hiding in some bushes. He was handcuffed and brought under guard to the Fayette county jail, where he is now behind the bars. Bessie Wares and Lizzie Jones, the two colored women implicated in the rioting, were also locked up in Uniontown. In the meantime the word had spread throughout all of Fayette county, and a great number of infuriated whites are now scouring the foothills of the Alleghenies in the hope of finding the other five negroes.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Turkey has ordered a new warship, but has taken no steps to pay for previous contracts.

A dispatch from Amsterdam announced that Mr. Kruger would leave for the United States early in June.

A drill of native mounted troops was held at San Juan, Porto Rico. The soldiers made a good showing.

The French government expressed its thanks for the courtesies shown to the officers and men of the training ship Duguay Trouin in the United States.

Prisoner Recaptured.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., April 29.—Ed Sullivan, a noted housebreaker and all round crook, escaped from jail here at 10 o'clock Saturday night. Undersheriff Parks went into Sullivan's cell to close the windows preparatory to retiring for the night, when Sullivan, who had been waiting, pushed him behind the door and rushed out, closing the door and locking it, leaving Parks a prisoner, and then passed out of the back door. Parks' cries for help brought Sheriff Dycker on the scene. A posse of deputies were quickly sworn in and went in pursuit. Sullivan was captured by ex-Sheriff Fulton 14 miles south of Monticello at 2 o'clock. He had started for Port Jervis.

Ohio River Subsiding.

CINCINNATI, April 29.—The Ohio river continues falling here slowly. Siphon pumps were clearing the cellars yesterday where water had receded. Navigation, including many sightseeing excursions, was resumed, and the railways are all using their regular depots today. Farther down the river on both the Kentucky shore and the Indiana side the conditions are reported as very bad. Just above Henderson, Ky., there is danger of the channel being changed owing to the water taking another course in the overflow.

The Shamrock II Leaves Clyde.

GLASGOW, April 29.—In the opinion of those responsible for sailing the Shamrock II in the races for the America's cup the five weeks available for preparation and trials are considered quite little enough time for the work. Every effort, therefore, will be made to hurry things forward. Within an hour after she was formally handed over by the manager of the Dennys she started for the Solent in tow of the Erin, and there is still hope that she will be ready for her first spin under canvas by Thursday.

Valuable Team Killed.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., April 29.—A $3,000 team and coach worth $2,000 belonging to Anton G. Hupfel, a wealthy New York brewer, was struck by an express train on the Newburg, Dutchess and Connecticut railroad at Brinckerhoff. The horses were instantly killed and the coach smashed to splinters. The coachman was thrown some distance, but escaped serious injury.

Widener May Recover.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Joseph E. Widener, the son of P. A. B. Widener, the multimillionaire, who was seriously injured Saturday by the upsetting of a four-in-hand coach in this city, is reported by the physicians at the Hahnemann hospital to be much improved. The chances of his recovery are good. He has regained consciousness.

Newspaper Plant Burned.

DERBY, Conn., April 29.—The plant of The Daily News, on Main street, was badly damaged early yesterday morning by a fire which is thought to have resulted from a defective electric light wire. The editorial and composing rooms were badly wrecked, but the pressroom and linotype machines were saved. The loss was $5,000, partially insured.

CAILLES ON THE RUN

Camp of Insurgent General Surprised and Scattered.

STAFF OFFICERS AND PAPERS TAKEN

Several Columns In Close Pursuit After the Escaped Leader—Commission Reports Pacification of Another Luzon Province.

MANILA, April 29.—Captain Wilson Chase, with a detachment of the Twenty-first infantry, on April 26 surprised the camp of the insurgent general Cailles at Dugot-Dugot, situated nine miles northeast of Cavinti, in the province of Laguna. Cailles was at his camp at the time of the American attack, but managed to escape. Captain Chase's force captured his adjutant general, 5 others of his staff officers, 14 men, 20 rifles, a large amount of ammunition and stores and all the papers and personal effects of the Filipino general. The insurgent major Velo was killed during the engagement, as were Corporal McGill and Private Tipps, both belonging to Company A of the Twenty-first. Several columns of the American troops continue vigorously to pursue General Cailles.

General Cailles recently offered a reward of $10,000 for the head of Captain Edward N. Jones, Jr., of the Eighth infantry.

Another Province Nearly Pacified.

NUEVA CACERES, Province of South Camarines, Luzon, April 29.—This turbulent region is now nearly pacified. The Philippine commission has traveled 20 miles by river to this point, having established provincial government for North Camarines and South Camarines. The commissioners have been greeted with banners inscribed with "Long live the commission!" and "Out with the friars!" The question as to whether a native or an American shall be governor has been settled by the appointment until such time as an election may be held of Lieutenant George Curry of the Eleventh volunteer cavalry, who was formerly of Roosevelt's rough riders. Major Henry B. McCoy of the Forty-fourth volunteer infantry was appointed treasurer and Lieutenant Elmer O. Worrick of the Forty-fifth volunteer infantry supervisor. The population is estimated at 150,000. The people are peaceable, but the morals of the masses are lax.

General Clay Outwitted.

RICHMOND, Ky., April 29.—By a skillfully planned ruse Constable Neale Anderson succeeded in serving a writ on General Cassius M. Clay notifying him that his bank account at the State Bank and Trust company of this city had been attached by his daughter, Mrs. Mary G. Clay, and her son, Attorney Green Clay. The attachment grew out of the trouble a few weeks ago, when General Clay, at the muzzle of a rifle, dispersed a sheriff's posse which went to White Hall to secure some household goods belonging to Mrs. Clay. Despairing of obtaining the goods without serious trouble, Attorney Clay decided to let him keep them, but sued out an attachment for $1,400, the value of the goods, and levied on the general's bank account. Constable Anderson was commissioned to serve the notice, and after several hours of patient watching he stealthily crept up to the general's guarded castle and slipped the important document under his door. The officer did not tarry to note what transpired, but as he fled from the premises he heard the general's alarm bell calling for his armed retainers.

Beet Sugar Industry Growing.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—C. F. Saylor of Iowa, the special agent in charge of the beet sugar investigation of the department of agriculture, is in Washington and has submitted his report to Secretary Wilson. He says this year shows a very active tendency toward the institution of new beet sugar enterprises. Next autumn, he says, Michigan will have three new factories, and Ohio, Indiana, New York, Colorado, Utah, South and North Dakota and Illinois will install new factory enterprises, making 13 throughout the United States now in contemplation. A conservative estimate, he says, is that there will be 42 beet sugar factories in operation throughout the United States by the end of next autumn.

Stone Workers Defer Strike.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., April 29.—There will be no strike of the 1,000 stone workers on Cape Ann May 1. Whether or not there will be one later depends upon a second conference with the employers. For three hours yesterday 400 stone workers listened to arguments having for their object a repetition of the demand on the contractors for a better schedule. Instead of striking May 1 the union voted to request President Frank McCarthy of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor to visit Gloucester and confer with the granite companies.

Better Pay For Carpenters.

PITTSBURG, April 29.—The Commercial Gazette says: "Five thousand organized carpenters in the Pittsburg district will next Wednesday work under a new wage scale, carrying a substantial advance over the present wage and providing for an eight hour day. Under the new scale agreement, to which nearly 1,500 employers have assented, the journeymen carpenters will draw a base wage of $3 for a day of eight hours. The average wage will run about $3.25. The present scale is based at $3 a day for nine hours.

Cheap Gas.

LONDON, April 29.—The Daily Chronicle says it learns that Dr. Ludwig Mond has discovered a method of producing illuminating coal gas at twopence per thousand feet which will effect a revolution by cheapening electric power and also as bearing upon the production of open hearth steel.

Cannibals Kill a Millionaire.

SYDNEY, April 29.—Herr Mercke, a German millionaire, who was cruising in his yacht, and Herr Caro, his private secretary, were recently murdered by natives of the island of New Britain, off the northeast coast of Papua. Herr Caro's body was eaten.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 29.—The foremost Orange county peach growers are placing large orders for baskets in anticipation of the largest crop in years.

CALLAHAN INNOCENT

No Part In Cudahy Kidnaping, Says the Jury.

JUDGE HANDLES TWELVE ROUGHLY

Chief Donohue Claims That the Verdict Is Entirely Contrary to the Evidence In the Case.

OMAHA, April 29.—After considering overnight the guilt or innocence of James Callahan the jury announced yesterday morning that he had no part in the kidnaping of Edward Cudahy, Jr. The verdict was an evident surprise to the court, and Judge Baker expressed his disgust in emphatic terms.

Callahan was arrested on two other counts which the state is not now prepared to say will be made use of, as no new evidence is at hand, and the expense of going over the ground again is considerable.

The jury notified Judge Baker at 9 a. m. that it had settled upon a verdict, and the news spread among attorneys and interested persons, so that an audience of 50 awaited the 12 men as they filed into the courtroom. Callahan occupied his usual seat and betrayed no apprehension as to the outcome. His face was a blank as he watched the verdict unfolded and read. As the words "Not guilty" were pronounced, however, Callahan half rose to his feet, his lips parted in a smile, and he turned his eyes gratefully toward the jury.

Judge Baker studied the wording of the verdict for several minutes in silence, as though he had doubted the evidence of his ears. Then, addressing the jury, he rebuked them in most vigorous terms.

"If Callahan had made his own choice of a jury," the court said, "he could not have selected 12 men who would have served him more faithfully. If the state for its part had made the selection, I know of no men it could have named who could have been less careful of its interests. The jury is discharged without the compliments of the court, and the prisoner is likewise turned loose as to this trial. I presume to continue the criminal practices in which you have failed to check him. I do not know what motive actuated you in reaching this decision, but I hope none of you will ever appear again in this jury box."

Chief of Police Donohue says he will urge Mr. Cudahy to at once withdraw the proffered reward of $5,000 for the apprehension of Pat Crowe.

"Crowe might easily make an appearance and claim the reward himself," said Chief Donohue, "as the evidence against him is no more direct than that against Callahan.

"In my 18 years of experience with criminals I have never heard more absolutely convincing evidence than that presented against Callahan.

"There was not a single flaw in the testimony, and the evidence of guilt was overwhelming. From the information I have secured as to the sentiment of the jury I believe that its decision was based largely on the theory that the victim of the affair was a wealthy man and as such is able to suffer."

Boers Active In Kroonstadt.

LONDON, April 29.—Lord Kitchener continues the process of wearing down the Boers, who, however, are very active in the Kroonstadt district, where they recently derailed two trains and also captured after a severe fight 25 men of the Prince of Wales' light horse, whom they stripped of their horses and accouterments and then liberated. Colonel Plumer's force captured a small laager of 45 men, including the notorious Transvaal state engineer, Munnick, who planned the destruction of the Johannesburg mines in the spring of last year, and his father, who was formerly landrost at Boksburg. Mr. Cummings, who is visiting Durban on behalf of the Canadian government, is favorably impressed with the trading possibilities between Canada and Natal.

Crowds at the Pan-American.

BUFFALO, April 29.—Yesterday's attendance at the Pan-American exposition was a record breaker for a pre-exposition crowd. Fully 30,000 people passed through the gates, about 75 per cent of them paying for admission. Although the exposition is still far from complete, every one seemed satisfied with what there was to see. There is a striking contrast between the finished appearance of the large buildings, brilliant in their varied colors, and the condition of the grading and laying of asphalt and brick roadways. The storm of last week is of course responsible for this. It not only delayed the work, but many things already perfected were undone.

Oil In Indian Territory.

SOUTH McALESTER, I. T., April 29.—A charter has been issued to the Indian Territory Oil company, with a capital stock of $500,000, to develop lands in this vicinity that are believed to be rich in oil. Strong indications of oil have been found from time to time, and recent investigations are said to have resulted in the discovery of the product in such quantities as to warrant the erection of a permanent plant.

Otis In Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Major General E. S. Otis, commander of the department of the lakes, as the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Chicago Bankers' club, freely discussed the financial difficulties encountered by the American administration in the Philippines.

Plague Still Spreading.

CAPE TOWN, April 29.—During the last 48 hours 16 fresh cases of the bubonic plague have been officially reported. Eight of these are Europeans. Since the outbreak of the disease there have been 319 cases, of which 217 have proved fatal.

Albanian Atrocities.

MRS. NATION CRAZY?

Said to Have Broken Down In Wichita Jail.

WICHITA, Kan., April 29.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon wrecker, has broken down and is believed to be insane. The crisis in her condition followed a term of solitary confinement and the receipt of the news of her brother's death. It is thought by physicians who have examined her that she will soon recover, but others believe that her condition is hopeless.

On Thursday Mrs. Nation had a fight with her friend, Mrs. Wilhoit, who was confined in the same cell. She accused Mrs. Wilhoit of being two faced and said she was a spy of the saloon men to get evidence against her and that she cast evil spells upon her cause. Mrs. Nation slapped Mrs. Wilhoit and pulled her nose.

Sheriff Simmons was forced to place Mrs. Nation in solitary confinement in the rotary cell. She was also put on the bread and water diet.

On Saturday morning news came here that her brother was dying at Lewisburg, and she was advised to accept bail at once and go to him. James Ray, her attorney, and Wilburt Jones, her former bondsman and best friend, visited the jail and asked to see her. They explained the reasons she should accept bond.

Mrs. Nation stared at them, then burst into a hysterical tirade against them and said if she wanted to get out she could fly. This alarmed her friends, who summoned her physician.

He stated that she was insane. David Nation, her husband, was notified.

Her condition improved during the day, and the physician expressed the belief that with quiet she would recover. She would not see any one during the day, but spent her time talking to herself about how she was running the world from her place in jail. She did not know the reporters who called, and this was considered a sure sign of failing mind, as before she had always greeted them cordially.

Mrs. Nation was much better late in the night and accepted bail. It was announced that she would be released in the custody of friends.

SEROUS COLLIERY FIRE.

Tipple and Engine House Burned. Several Miners Missing.

LATROBE, Pa., April 29.—The entire tipple, engine house and boiler house of the Dorothy coal and coke plant of the American Steel and Wire company is a smoldering mass of ruins, and it is rumored that either four or six miners have lost their lives, but at this time the rumor cannot be verified. The loss is estimated at $150,000, fully insured. Two persons are known to be injured. They are Superintendent Rodgers, suffocated while endeavoring to rescue entombed miners, and William Gill, suffocated while assisting Superintendent Rodgers in the work of reseue.

Five miners were known to have been in the mine at the time, but they knew nothing of the fire until 12 men descended the air shaft, which is 250 feet deep, and told them of the fact. They were rescued, but there are rumors that six more were in the mine at the time. Thirty-nine mules were at the bottom of the shaft, and these have undoubtedly perished from the flames. The fire will cause over 400 miners being thrown out of work, and General Manager McFadden, who lives here, says the fire is a big loss to the company. Pittsburg capital is mostly interested in the concern, and it is stated that the tipple and burned buildings will be rebuilt at once.

Savings Bank's Doors Closed.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 29.—The Mechanics' Savings bank of this town did not open up for business this morning. Instead E. B. Foster, recently elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his brother, J. B. Foster, issued the following notice: "The trustees of the Mechanics' Savings bank, owing to the doubtful value of some of the bank's assets, have decided that it is for the best interests of the depositors that the bank go into liquidation, and action has already been taken looking to this result. Pending the granting of the authority no money will be received or paid out." This action came as a great surprise to the town, and naturally great excitement prevails among small depositors.

Governor Candler's Denial.

ATLANTA, April 29.—Governor Allen D. Candler has made a statement regarding his reported utterances at Savannah on the negro question which were sent to many northern papers. The governor says there are many exaggerations in the clippings from the papers which have reached him, but that his remarks as published first in the Savannah papers are substantially correct. "However," said the governor, "the statement that I said that 'the people of the south did not need, did not want and would not have the assistance of the —— Yankees in this matter,' as published in some papers, is absolutely false."

The New Comet.

ELKHORN, Wis., April 29.—The new comet which was observed at the Yerkes observatory at Williams bay is said by the astronomers to be the brightest that has appeared for 19 years. Notice was received Thursday by telegraph from Harvard university that a comet had been discovered at Queenstown April 23 and observed at Cape of Good Hope on the morning of April 25. Its position at that time was about 16 degrees southwest of the sun. Its position yesterday morning was some 15 degrees north of the sun, indicating a very rapid northeasterly movement.

Burned to Death.

EASTON, Pa., April 29.—While at work in his shooting gallery here William Whitely was seized with a fit and fell over a row of coal oil lamps. His clothes caught fire, and he was nearly dead before the police broke in the door. He died in the hospital a few hours later. His home was at Passaic, N. J.

Missing Man Found Dead.

SYRACUSE, April 29.—Inhabitants of Jamesville, seven miles from here, who started out to search for David A. Waters, an aged man who had been missing from his home for two weeks, found his body lying beside a log in the woods. It is thought Waters may have lost his way and died of exposure.

Sunday Baseball.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Only one game was played in the National league yesterday. Chicago went down before Cincinnati on the home plate by a score of 4 to 6 in a well played game, which was witnessed by 8,500 people.

THE PRESIDENT OFF.

Seven Weeks' Trip Across the Continent Begun.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—President McKinley and party started on the transcontinental journey for which plans have been making for several weeks this morning at 10:30. The train which will carry the president and his party for the next seven weeks throughout the length and most of the breadth of the United States is one of the finest trains ever run over any American railway system. The start was made with Engineer Frank Larmond's hand on the throttle. W. W. Albright as conductor will be in charge. Both are trusted employees of the Southern railway. Not a detail has been overlooked for the comfort and convenience of the guests. The Southern Railway company will have charge of the train from Washington to New Orleans. At this point the party and the train will be under the supervision of the Southern Pacific railroad.

The train, which is practically new, is made up of seven cars. The president's own car is the Olympia in the rear of the train. Next to the engine is the combination baggage and smoking car Atlantic, followed by the new dining car St. James, with a capacity for 40 people. The next two are compartment cars, with seven staterooms and two drawing rooms each, the Omena and Guiana. The fifth and sixth cars, the Pelion and Charmion, are handsome 12 section drawing room cars.

Secretary Cortelyou has sent to each member of the president's party a handsomely prepared itinerary of the trip. It is in the form of a booklet with a handsomely embossed cover and contains in addition to a map showing the route to be taken by the party the names of the members of the party, the day and hour of arrival and departure at each point, the population and elevation above sea level of the cities at which stops will be made and many other interesting facts. The names of the railroads over which the train will travel, the distance between points, etc., are included.

The longest distance to be traveled without a stop is from San Antonio to El Paso, Tex., a distance of 624 miles.

Grant's Birthday Remembered.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The seventy-ninth anniversary of the birth of General U. S. Grant was celebrated in many places throughout the country. One of the prominent events was a dinner given at the Waldorf-Astoria by the trustees of the Grant Monument association and was attended by many prominent men. The tables were placed in the large ballroom of the hotel, which was decorated handsomely for the occasion with American flags, flowers and evergreens. A large painting of General Grant draped with flags was behind the guests' table. On the front page of the menu card was a picture showing General Grant at the door of his tent when he was in command of the Union forces, and on other leaves was a reproduction of a letter which he wrote to his wife from the field.

Ithaca Looks For a Big Crowd.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 29.—Arrangements for the Memorial day crew race, in which Columbia, the University of Pennsylvania and the Cornell varsity eights will be entered, are nearing completion. The Lehigh Valley railroad will run an observation train consisting of 40 or 50 cars capable of seating more than 3,000 persons. It will be run on the Auburn branch in close proximity to the racing course on the east side of Cayuga lake. All obstructions will this year be removed, and a clear view of the entire distance of two miles may be had. In addition to the crew race Ithaca will have two other athletic events.

English Football Players Welcomed.

LONDON, April 29.—The Tottenham Hotspur football team, which replayed Saturday at Bolton with the Sheffield united team the final game for the association cup and won back the trophy lost 20 years ago, arrived home at 1 o'clock this morning, having broken the journey at Luton. Thousands were still awaiting the arrival of the players with bands, flags and lanterns, and the team was uproariously welcomed. The crowds paraded the suburbs with the heroes of the occasion, and there was a torchlight procession in which the trophy was displayed.

Buffalo's Postmaster Dead.

BUFFALO, April 29.—Dr. Samuel G. Dorr, postmaster of Buffalo, died suddenly yesterday. He had been ill for two hours with angina pectoris. Dr. Dorr was born in Dansville in 1840. During the civil war he served as a recruiting agent in Livingston county. He had practiced medicine in this city since 1875 and at one time had the largest practice on the east side. He was prominent in Republican politics for 20 years, but held no salaried office until his appointment as postmaster in 1899.

Fatal Fire In Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, April 29.—Fire destroyed the four story building at 123 Broadway and resulted in the death of Fred Metzger and Lena Metz, who were found suffocated on the fourth floor. The building is occupied by a picture frame factory, and it is believed the fire was caused by the explosion of chemicals. Metzger and his housekeeper, Lena Metz, occupied the fourth floor. The loss on the building is estimated at $10,000.

Tar Tanks Burned.

SYDNEY, C. B., April 29.—Fire has destroyed two tar tanks of the Dominion Iron and Steel company and containing 320,000 gallons of tar each. The damage is estimated at $15,000, fully covered by insurance. Three men were injured—George White, engineer; T. F. Meyers of East Boston and Samuel Lambalo of St. John's, N. F., all by hot tar.

Destructive Prairie Fires.

HYANNIS, Neb., April 29.—The prairie fires that for four days have been raging over this section of the state are now nearly under control. It is difficult to estimate the amount of damage done. There were only a few buildings burned, but the range for many thousands of cattle is entirely destroyed.

Cripple Creek's Gold Output.

COLORADO SPRINGS, April 29.—Carefully compiled statistics by The Gazette show that the gold production of the Cripple Creek district up to the close of the present month makes a grand total of over $100,000,000. Gold was first discovered in this camp in 1889.

Two Women Killed.

WATKINS, N. Y., April 29.—Sarah Halsey, aged 58 years, and Susan Bowlsby, 53 years, of North Hector, were killed at a grade crossing by a Lehigh Valley freight train while out driving.

FIGHTING IN CHINA.

German Troops Force the Chinese Back.

CELESTIALS SEVERELY PUNISHED.

Rumored Peaceful Retirement Was Erroneous—Waldersee Sends Details of the Four Engagements. Death For Nine Chinamen.

PEKING, April 29.—The report of General Kettler, received here from Huolu, differs from the other reports concerning the German-French expedition previously received. General Kettler's report shows that the Chinese troops did not leave the province till they were forced to do so. The entire brigade commanded by General Kettler met the enemy on April 23 and inflicted immense loss upon them. The report does not give this loss. The Germans had one officer and three soldiers killed and 28 soldiers wounded. The Chinese were forced to leave the province and were fully demoralized. The French authorities stated that the Chinese had crossed the border of the province on April 19, in which case they must have subsequently returned.

Li Hung Chang says it is impossible to believe that General Liu Mwang Ting would have so flagrantly disobeyed his orders and anxiously awaits the Chinese report of the encounter referred to by General Kettler.

Li Hung Chang paid return calls to the different legations and congratulated Special Commissioner Rockhill on the stand taken by the Americans in the matter of indemnity. It is not generally thought among the ministers of the powers that Mr. Rockhill's effort in this direction will prove successful, though most of them admit that they must be guided in the matter by the instructions they receive from their home governments.

Nine Chinamen will be executed today in the American district for highway robbery and violence. The men in question were tried and sentenced according to Chinese law, but they are the first of such sentences to be approved by General Chaffee.

While the first train from Peking to Tien-tsin was traversing the bridge between Lo-fa and Kang-tsun yesterday it was derailed through the collapse of a culvert. Eleven Chinese were killed and 40 Chinese and two Americans injured. One of the Americans cannot recover.

FOUR ENGAGEMENTS.

Germans Under Kettler Clash With Liu's Forces.

BERLIN, April 29.—The German war office has received the following advices from Count von Waldersee:

"Peking, April 27.—Three engagements occurred April 23 and a fourth April 24 at the great wall between four columns under General Kettler and the Chinese troops under General Liu. The Chinese were everywhere defeated and after a stubborn resistance were forced back over the wall, being pursued as far as Ku-kuan. Our casualties were four officers wounded and three men killed and 32 wounded. The French troops were not engaged."

Subsequently the following additional dispatch regarding the four engagements was received from Count von Waldersee:

"Peking, April 28.—The following reports only arrived last night owing to the difficulty of communication:

"General Kettler's brigade, re-enforced, marched in four columns against the great wall. Colonel Ledebur's being the right wing, then those commanded by Colonel Hoffmeister, Colonel Wallmerich and Major Huehlenfels. Ledebur reached the wall April 24 after a slight engagement near Hai-shan-kwan.

"Hoffmeister drove back the enemy April 23. On the same day Huehlenfels encountered a strong party of the enemy occupying a bastion on the heights commanding the pass. The enemy fought stubbornly, in a particularly strong position, which was only taken after 11 hours' fighting.

"Huehlenfels and Lieutenant Richert were slightly wounded, and Lieutenant Drewelle was severely wounded. A standard bearer and another were killed and six men severely and ten slightly wounded.

"Wallmerich attacked and dispersed on April 23 a far superior force of the enemy in a strong position east of the breach of Hae-ho and effected a junction on the battlefield with the battalion under Major Muelmann from Tsing-ching, which, taking up the pursuit, overtook the enemy in a fresh position to the south. This was captured, and the enemy were pursued as far as Ku-kuan. Wallmerich followed them thither.

"The enemy suffered severely. Eleven old and two new quick firers were captured. On our side one man was killed and three were severely wounded and nine slightly. Lieutenant Duesterberg was shot through the right arm.

"The enemy are everywhere in retreat. General von Lessel has arranged with General Bailloud that the French troops shall occupy Ku-kuan for the present and secure his left flank.

"Kettler's brigade is marching by short stages to Pao-ting-fu and Huehlenfels' battalion along the mountains to Peking."

Four Burned to Death.

HOUSTON, April 29.—In a fire which destroyed a stable and three residences at an early hour yesterday morning Job Copping, his wife and three children were burned to death. Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hopper jumped from the burning building, and both were badly injured. The fire started in a livery stable over which several families lived. The building was a mere shell and was a mass of flames when the firemen arrived.

Fire at Saranac Lake.

SYRACUSE, April 29.—A special to The Post-Standard from Saranac Lake says: "About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon fire caught in the drying room of the Branch & Callahan mill, in the center of the village. The mill, four storehouses and 500,000 feet of lumber were destroyed. Several of the dwelling houses and two freight cars were damaged. The total loss will be $150,000, partially covered by insurance.

Fire In Boston Freighthouse.

BOSTON, April 29.—The middle section of freighthouse No. 1 of the Fitchburg division, Boston and Maine railroad, containing a large amount of miscellaneous freight, situated alongside what was formerly the main line of the Fitchburg railroad in Charlestown, was burned Sunday morning, resulting in a loss of about $50,000.

The Extra Session.

Ever since the New Jersey Legislature adjourned, having failed to provide any means of ending the pollution of the Passaic river, there has been a mighty demand from the cities which are located on the banks of the Passaic river for an extra session of the Legislature. The object of this session would be, of course, to provide some practical means to end the pollution of the Passaic without delay. The people naturally object to waiting until next January before getting relief from the present unpleasant conditions.

Considerable pressure has been brought to bear upon Governor Voorhees in order to bring about the calling of the extra session. There has been some doubt in the mind of the Governor, however, as to the advisibility of such action. He had a little gathering of several of the members of the State Senate Saturday in order to learn their views. Senator McKee, from Passaic, showed himself very much in earnest as opposed to the extra session. Senator Cross, from Union, was non-committal on the subject while Senator Charles A. Reed, of Somes et county, who could not be present in person, wrote his opinion which favored neither side entirely.

Governor Voorhees refuses to say but little on the subject himself. Regarding the advice of the Senators, he said that they expressed different ideas and asked how can he be blammed for being in doubt when they fail to agree. A decision in the matter, he is quoted as saying, will not be reached for several days at least.

While there have already been a number of baseball games played here by the local teams, the active baseball season in Plainfield did not really open until Saturday. Three good games were played here, while one of the local nines went out of town for a game. The opening game for the nine of the St. Mary's A. and L. A. proved to be the most popular of Saturday's games, over five hundred people turning out for it. The other two games were well attended. Another week or two will see two more Plainfield nines on the diamond. There is no doubt but that baseball has taken a new hold on the Plainfield public, and the numerous teams of this city all promise to be strong attractions during the coming months.

There is no doubt but that the storm sewers in this city, particularly those which assist in draining the streets under the railroad bridges, have served their purpose well. They have been the means of saving the city considerable money which would otherwise have to go toward repairing the roadway which the torrents of water, when left alone, badly injure. This is one of the chief reasons advanced for the storm sewer which the Borough Council is talking of building in Somerset street.

Among the many instances of a great business which has been developed entirely through newspaper advertising relates the Philadelphia Record is that of Frederick Macey, of Grand Rapids, Michigan. His local business is small, but his mail order trade is enormous. He began by buying $10 worth of newspaper space a month, and now his average advertising expenditure is $5 000 a month.

The editor of the Somerset Democrat admits that he is not conversant with the situation in Plainfield but believes on general principles that the introduction of water meters will increase the water bills. Those Plainfielders who have had experience with meters for their water supply in this city, have found just the opposite to be the case.

The recent rains necessitated the postponement of the opening of the golf course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club until next Saturday. The season opened at the Park Golf Club last Saturday, and the good attendance promised well for the coming summer.

If only the property owners in that vicinity will lend their aid, the banks of Green brook, near the new bridge can be kept in good condition. The city has had the brook cleaned out. Property owners ought to be willing to co-operate.

The Jersey Central Railroad has outlined considerable work for the coming summer. All of the proposed changes are, however, to the advantage of the public as well as of the railroad.

In asking for plans for the contemplated county building at Elizabeth, the Union County Board of Freeholders has not limited the contest to architects of any particular place.

There will be a special meeting of the Common Council this evening when the Council will go as far as it is able in fixing the tax rate for the coming year.

Will the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital act on the project of the proposed new building at the meeting tonight?

FOR CITY MISSIONARIES.

Plan of Local Pastors to Start a United Movement For Them.

The ministers of the city are much interested in a plan whereby the churches of the city shall unite in the employment of city missionaries. A meeting of the pastors and several laymen was held last week when the matter was discussed at some length. A committee, consisting of Dr. Richards, Rev. A. E. Main and W. D Murray, was appointed to lay the matter before the churches and report at a special meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. E R Taylor, who have been doing city missionary work, are the ones thought of to be engaged by the churches and the chances are they will be. There seems to be a growing need for such work and the ministers as well as laymen are impressed with the importance of it.

STRONG WORDS ABOUT LOCAL SCHOOL AFFAIRS

Councilman Dumont Expressed His Opinion of Financial Management of City Schools.

AT THE COUNCIL MEETING.

SUBJECT CAME UP IN REPORT OF BOARD OF SCHOOL ESTIMATE.

Explained Why He Had Agreed to Demands of Board—Said People of City Had Never Known Condition of School Finances.

All the members but Councilmen Craig and Mellick were present at the special meeting of the Common Council held last evening. The session was not a long one, but there was a general shakeup in the short time the members were together. It was occasioned by the reception of the estimate of expenses for school purposes for the current year.

After the tax ordinance was read and adopted on its third reading, President Dumont took the floor and spoke concerning the report of the Board of School Estimate, consisting of Mayor Jenkins, School Commissioners Lovell and Abbott and Councilmen Dumont and vanHerwerden. This report was read upon the suggestion of Mr. Coriell, and it showed that the amount needed, exclusive of county and State moneys, is $62 250, the total estimate being $84,900.

Mr. Dumont said that from a financial standpoint school matters are not in a creditable condition and he thought it was about time the people of Plainfield found it out. He said that the school officials wanted $17,000 more this year than last. They could not put the amount in the taxes for the reason that the Board had borrowed every dollar possible in anticipation of the collection of taxes. There are $4,000 in paid notes in the bank, issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes. Mr. Dumont said that he was appalled at the condition of things. A year ago when the Board was requested to reduce the school tax they said no, because they had borrowed every dollar in anticipation of the collection of taxes.

The President stated that he wanted the Council to know why he and Mr. vanHerwerden had agreed to the estimate made. It was for this reason that there is nearly $7,500 that will come to the city direct from the county and State school tax, and provided the city gets this money, thereby reducing the amount asked from the city by the Board of School Estimate, the two members from the Council agreed to the estimate.

Continuing, Mr. Dumont said that the citizens of Plainfield have never known the condition of the school finances and they ought to know it now. Last year's report did not show that the Board of Education owed money and the citizens could not tell how matters stood.

After Mr. Dumont's remarks, it was decided that no definite action should be taken on the report from the Board of School Estimate until the next regular meeting, and on Mr. Lee's motion the clerk was instructed to furnish each member with a copy of the detailed report of expense as furnished the Council by the Board of Education. Below will be found the izemized report of expense for the current year:

ANNUAL SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT HELD AT Y. M. C. A.

With the able assistance of a number of the fair friends of the association, the members of the physical department of the Y. M. C. A. enjoyed their annual supper and entertainment last evening The affair is gotten up by the boys at their own expense and has always proved one of the features of the social side of the association.

There were about fifty present last evening. In order that all might better enjoy the entertainment which was to follow, a tempting repast was served first. After all had done full justice to the good things prepared, the second part of the progamme was opened with phonograph selections under the management of George M. McIntyre Afterward an excellent talk on the value of health was given by Dr. E. W. Hedges. His remarks were very interesting and impressed his hearers greatly. Arrangements had been made for the appearance of a local entertainer but owing to a slight illness he was unable to appear. More phonograph selections concluded the programme.

The affair was directly under the charge of Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood who, with the help of the young men, made the affair the success it was. The women who lent their assistance were Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry, chairman, Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. John Valiant, Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, Mrs. C. E. A. Heywood and the Misses Mabelle Smith, May Sebring, Elsie Smith, Helen Monroe and Ella Whitall.

DOESN'T LIKE POLICE FORCE.

WILLIAM BETZ WOULD DISMISS HALF THE PRESENT FORCE.

Gave His Opinions Frankly When Haled Before City Judge Runyon This Morning.

Willie Betz, a well-known colored man about town, was arrested last evening by Roundsman Mattox on North avenue for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

His angry passions arose and were not curbed until the Roundsman escorted him to police headquarters. On the way their Betz amused himself by bowing to everyone he passed.

This morning Betz was given a hearing. In the course of his defense, he gave some free expert testimony relative to the quality of the local police force In Willie's opinion the city would be improved by the dismissal of half the force.

City Judge Runyon suspended sentence on condition that the prisoner would control his appetite and temper in the future.

LAMP OVERTURNED.

Caused a Little Blaze at Home of Arthur Wyckoff, of West Third Street.

In some mysterious manner a lamp at the home of Arthur Wyckoff, of 218 West Third street, was overturned early last evening and set fire to a bed in a front room on the second story. The inflammable material on the bed sprang into flames and in a short time a serious conflagration was threatened.

It is thought the lamp was overturned by a young son of Mrs. Wyckoff who was playing in the room. This the boy denies. The loss is trifling.

WORKING TO CLOSE EARLY.

MOVEMENT AMONG THE CLERKS IN THE LOCAL RETAIL STORES.

Another Meeting Tomorrow—Say That Merchants Are in Sympathy With Them.

A meeting of the Retail Clerks' Association, of Plainfield, will be held tomorrow evening in the Trades Councils' rooms on West Front street.

At the meeting last week over seventy names were enrolled as members and it is expected that the number will be largely augmented in the near future.

The association believes that much aid will be obtained from other trades unions in this city in its endeavor to pursuade the merchants to close the shops early.

Mr. Gibson, of Elizabeth, the Union county organizer of the Federations Trades Union in addressing the last meeting, gave a decidedly interesting account of the success which the clerks of other cities have had. He urged the clerks in this vicinity to form a strong organization and assured them that in his opinion their efforts would receive the support of other affiliated organizations.

The members of the newly formed association say that there are over 800 members in the various trades unions in this city who could be depended upon to insure the success of the retail grocers' clerks endeavors. It is claimed by the clerks that should they be allowed the evenings for recreation the enjoyment obtained by them by better and quicker service to their employers during the day.

The clerks appear to be very sanguine in regard to the result of their efforts to have the stores close earlier. They claim that nearly every merchant who has been approached on the subject, so far, expresses his hearty sympathy with the movement.

Carman, who has been the schools' physician for the part two years and is now ineligible because of his having removed from the borough to the city.

Another matter of importance which occupied the Board's attention was the selection of a proper place to hold the annual commencement, now that Music Hall will be closed. The Y. M. C. A. Hall was finally selected, as, although it is much smaller, it will answer all the requirements. June 21 has been decided upon as the date for the commencement.

All the vacancies in the teaching corps, four in number, were filled, but no announcement will be made as to the probable successors of the teachers, who have resigned, until those elected, have signified their acceptance of the positions.

In the Watchung kindergarten, Miss Horton, the teacher, was empowered to employ a helper in her work on account of the increased attendance and the consequent extra demands on her time.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Appreciation of faithful services has induced Manager Edwards to give "Mique" Muldowney, the trusted treasurer of Music Hall, a complimentary benefit today, matinee and night. A bill has been provided which will meet the views of all. The grandest American drama of human interest, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will be given with special scenery and effects, also dogs, horses and ponies will be used to aid the realism, and a host of volunteers have requested to be allowed to appear. As the acceptance of all who have applied would mean "too much of a good thing" and prolong the entertainment beyond the time limit, a skillful selection has been made and heartfelt thanks returned to all who have so generously offered their services.

The crowds which have witnessed the Whitney—Knowles' production of "Quo Vadis," the original stage presentment of Sienkiewicz's novel in all the large cities, and which will be the closing attraction at Music Hall Thursday night, have amply testified to their appreciation of the play containing so many good features. It is impossible to be one of those to see "Quo Vadis" and then imagine for one moment, that the religious theme of the play goes by for nothing. The seriousness felt even in the applause, the solemn hush prevading the house during those intervals when the soul of Vinicius is struggling into the acceptance of the new faith, are not a tribute alone to the brilliant acting of Reese or Lucas. The spiritual significance emanating from it all finds its way to the hearts of the hearers. It is doubtless true that the drama attracts largely through its melodramatic features, but the unusual halo of Christianity, where there is no taint of sacrilege, makes an impression, be it lasting or transient, even upon the most frivolous. The complete original production is soon to be seen here for the first time, and the Stange version of the book which was first utilized by by Mefers. Whitney and Knowles, is declared to be the only one worthy of serious consideration.

He Kept His Leg.

Twelve years ago J. W. Sullivan, of Hartford, Conn., scratched his leg with a rusty wire. Imflammation and blood poisoning set in. Then the best doctors urged amputation, "but," he writes, "I used one bottle of Electric Bitters and 1½ boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg was sound and well as ever." For Eruptions, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum. Sores and all blood disorders Electric Bitters has no rival on earth. Try them. L. W. Randolph will guarantee satisfaction or refund money. Only 50 cents.

MORGAN BUYS STEAMSHIP LINE.

British Hear of Negotiations For a Shipping Combine.

LEEDS, April 30.—The Daily News says the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan has acquired control of the Leyland Steamship company and that Mr. Morgan paid a deposit of £250,000 last Saturday. According to the agreement, the ordinary shareholders will be paid out. The News says it understands that Mr. Morgan contemplates further purchases and combinations of shipping companies.

The success of the Leyland line is known to be due to the efforts of Chairman Ellerman, and the syndicate has stipulated in the agreement that he shall not again engage in the transatlantic trade.

The London representatives of the Leyland line state that they will neither deny nor confirm the story of the purchase at present.

Hill Not a Candidate.

ALBANY, April 30.—Ex-Governor David B. Hill gives out the following statement: "My attention has been called to the story which is going the rounds of the press that I am expecting to make a political trip through the west and south either this year or next. I desire to state that I do not contemplate any such trip. When recently advised that an invitation was being prepared in the state of Washington and elsewhere requesting me to make such a visit, I immediately replied that it would be impossible and requested an abandonment of the proposed invitation. I will state further that I am not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1904."

Vanderlip Meets De Witte.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 30.—Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip, former assistant secretary of the United States treasury, was received by the finance minister, M. de Witte, yesterday. They had a long and interesting conversation. Mr. Vanderlip was greatly impressed with M. de Witte's knowledge of American affairs and appreciation of American methods. M. de Witte took occasion to again emphasize his friendship for the United States. Mr. Vanderlip made many valuable acquaintances at Moscow and here, including the banker Rothstein, the well known Russian financier, who visited the United States last year.

The Eastman Trial.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 30.—The proceedings yesterday at the Eastman trial again favored the defense, and the Harvard instructor left the courtroom in the afternoon with a smile on his face through the favorable evidence of one of the principal government witnesses and a comforting decision by the court in ruling out the defendant's testimony before the grand jury which indicted him. There is pending, however, a most important decision from the court on the question of the admission of evidence showing a bitter quarrel between the two men some seven months before the shooting.

Mr. Nation Robbed.

MARION, Ind., April 30.—While buying tickets for himself, his sister and brother-in-law to the circus, David Nation, the husband of Carrie Nation of hatchet fame, was robbed of $73, all the money he had excepting 35 cents. While paying for the tickets a crook picked his pocket and secured, besides the $73, a pair of cuff buttons that he prized very highly, they being a present from his grandfather who served in the Indian war.

CHICAGO, April 30.—At an early hour this morning the Revere House, Clark and Michigan streets, was discovered to be on fire. The flames were extinguished in 20 minutes, and the loss will not exceed $5,000, but for a time almost a panic prevailed among the occupants.

DISTRESS IN SHANSI.

French Soldiers and Native Christians on the Warpath.

TROOPS WAITING INDEMNITY DECISION

When the Amount Has Been Fixed, Withdrawal Will Begin—Germans Caught In a Trap Near Ku-kwan Pass.

PEKING, April 30.—Li Hung Chang has received a dispatch from the governor of the province of Shansi asserting that 300 French soldiers, accompanied by 2,000 armed native Christians, are within the borders of Shansi and have caused great distress and trouble wherever they have passed.

The British have enlisted a number of Chinese at Tien-tsin for the Wei-hai-wei regiment.

Liu Kun Yi, the Nankin viceroy, has memorialized the throne for permission to inaugurate a subscription fund in order to assist the government in paying the Chinese soldiers.

Numerous reports have been in circulation to the effect that the derailing of the train between Lo-fa and Yang-tsun was not the result of an accident, but the work of the Chinese. These, however, are entirely without foundation, as a thorough investigation proves that the wreck was due to a defective culvert.

The generals of the powers held a conference yesterday morning to consider the question of the withdrawal of the troops and decided to address a note to the ministers informing them that when the ministers are able to announce the lump sum demanded as indemnity and the Chinese have agreed to the principle of payment arrangements will be possible for withdrawal.

The other matters discussed were the handing over of the administration of Peking to native officials and the plan for the command of the legation guards as to whether this command should be centered in one officer or each detachment should be independent.

Regarding the government of Peking it was decided to allow the Chinese gradually to assume more control until the civil government was entirely in their hands, the military only exercising passive supervision.

The Germans were virtually caught in a trap near the Ku-kwan pass. A detachment of 80 had 45 casualties, while the Chinese losses are said to have been nominal.

The German expedition is returning, leaving the country greatly disaffected owing to the hardships inflicted upon the population. Altogether the expedition appears th have produced a very bad effect.

The current Chinese gossip is that the Germans were driven back with heavy losses, and this is implicitly believed by the bulk of the people.

Roosevelt In Boston.

BOSTON, April 30.—Vice President Roosevelt, accompanied by a committee of the Home Market club, arrived here yesterday afternoon. At the South station a great crowd was gathered, and the great space in the midway of the station was kept perfectly clear by a cordon of 100 policemen. A detail of 12 mounted men and the National lancers escorted Mr. Roosevelt and the party to the residence of Collector George H. Lyman, whose guest the vice president is to be while in Boston. Crowds lined the streets as the procession passed, and Mr. Roosevelt was accorded a warm reception.

Aid For China.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—In connection with an organized effort in New York to contribute funds for the famine sufferers in China Mr. Wu is receiving inquiries from persons outside of New York as to where subscriptions can be sent. He is ready to accept any such donation and will give proper receipts for the same. His belief is that much of the suffering exists in the interior, particularly in Shansi province, from famine and drought and from the paralysis of all industries owing to the recent disorders.

Bread Riot at Galicia.

LEMBERG, Galicia, April 30.—A riotous mob of the city's unemployed raided the bread booths at the market place, shouting, "Give us bread or work!" The mob paraded the streets, breaking shop windows. Troops finally arrived and dispersed the rioters. A deputation of the unemployed visited the burgomaster and governor. Replying to their questions, the officials held out some hope that work would soon be obtainable.

Engineers' Strike Off.

BUFFALO, April 30.—The strike of the marine engineers, so far as Buffalo is concerned, is practically off. Two of the leading lines, the Anchor and the Western Transit company, have signed their engineers at the rate demanded by them, and it is expected that other lines will follow. The Engineers' association was not recognized.

ACROSS OLD VIRGINIA

Presidential Train Makes First Day's Journey.

WARM GREETINGS BY THE CROWDS.

Start From Washington Made Under Favorable Auspices on Time. Brief Speeches at Several Points.

BRISTOL, Tenn., April 30.—The first day of the president's long tour to the Pacific coast lay through a historic section in Virginia, across the valleys of the Rapidan and James, in sight of the homes of Madison and Jefferson, up past the peaks of Otter, so dear to the hearts of the Virginian, into the picturesque Blue Ridge mountains. The Tennessee line was reached at 10:55 last night with the arrival of the train at Bristol. The route as far as Lynchburg was over the Southern railway. There the train was shifted to the tracks of the Norfolk and Western for a short cut to Bristol, where it resumed its flight over the Southern road. The presidential party received a flattering ovation from the time the train left Washington. Large crowds assembled at every station; the countryside and cross roads each had its little group of waving watchers straining their eyes to catch a glimpse of the chief magistrate as the train whisked by.

At Charlottesville the students of the University of Virginia turned out, at Lynchburg Senator Daniel, Virginia's crack orator, made a speech greeting the president, and at Roanoke two bands crashed out their welcome. At each of these places the president responded to the loud calls made upon him and spoke briefly from the rear platform of his car.

If yesterday's reception through Virginia is an indication of what is to occur throughout the rest of the trip, the president's tour across the continent will be a triumphal one. Some of the people in their eagerness to grasp the president's hand clambered up the railing surrounding the platform. The president received these demonstrations good naturedly and never failed smilingly to grasp the hand extended to him.

The biggest and noisiest demonstration of the day occurred at Roanoke. Thousands of people were at the station, and two bands greeted the president with "Hail to the Chief." There were more American flags in evidence here than at any other stopping place. The president responded to the calls for a speech with the following remarks:

"I am informed, and I do not wonder at it, that your committee which was to extend me a welcome to Roanoke has been lost in this crowd, but there can be no warmer nor sympathetic welcome than greets me from the hearts of your people. I congratulate you and I congratulate myself upon the glorious country in which we live and that once more and forever we are devoted to the same cause and to the same flag. I congratulate the citizens of this city upon its marvelous growth and progress. Twenty years ago you had less, I am told, than 1,000 people in this community. You have more than 20,000 now, and I think if a census was taken today you would have a much greater number than that. I congratulate you therefore upon your progress as well as your prosperity. We never had so much to do in all our history as we have now. We never had so much business at home nor so much abroad. We never made so much and never sold so much as we sell this year. We are expanding our markets. Our productive capacity has become so great that we are not only able to supply the home markets, but we require a foreign market for our supplies, and so we are seeking the open door in the orient for the products of American soil and American labor. What we want to do now is to be prudent in our prosperity—save while we can and be strong if the storms should come, and they do now and then. Whatever comes, let us be fortified by the practice of economy while we are all so well employed. We are not only expanding our markets, but we are expanding our territory. The policy of the United States has always been to keep what it originally started with and hold all it honorably gets. We refuse to divide our original possessions, and we will be the last to desert our new possessions."

Secretary Hay also spoke.

President McKinley's special will run over the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad from Memphis south, preceded by a lookout train over the entire route from Memphis to New Orleans. The special will be given a schedule of about 33 miles an hour between stations, while a watchman will be at each switch.

End of Cuban Transport Service.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The secretary of war has determined to discontinue the transport service between the United States and Cuba and Porto Rico The date of discontinuance has not been definitely fixed, but it is probable it will be about the end of the fiscal year, June 30. The business will be divided between the Ward and Munson lines, as their bids were alike for the carrying business.

Reform In Albany.

ALBANY, April 30.—The reform movement started in this city some two weeks ago resulted in the arraignment of Jacob Fish before Justice Herrick on the charge of being a common gambler. He was arraigned on an indictment found by the grand jury. He pleaded not guilty and was bailed in the sum of $1,500 There are other indictments by the grand jury.

Naval Movements.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The Essex left San Juan for Havana, and the Iris left Cavite for Shanghai. The Alexander has arrived at Santa Lucia, the Mohican at Mazettan, the torpedo boat McKee at Newport, the Zafiro at Shanghai and the gunboat Bancroft at the Boston navy yard, where she will be put out of commission.

Maryland Village Burned.

LA PLATA, Md., April 30.—A large portion of this village was destroyed by fire yesterday, causing a loss of about $50,000. Owing to the absence of a fire company and the fact that the buildings were almost entirely constructed of wood little could be done to check the flames.

ONE CERTAINTY.

Some Plainfield People Fully Realize It Now.

When the back aches from kidney ills,
There's a certain way to find relief,
A sure way to be cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills will do it.
Plainfield people endorse this claim.

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Brothers, grocers, of 257 West Front street, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for eight or nine years—pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated it. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the morning my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures, but it was throwing money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper, and being in bad shape at the time, I got a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved and continuing their use, all the pain left me."

VICTORY AT KLIPDAM.

Kitchener's Forces Capture a Boer Laager.

LONDON, April 30.—Lord Kitchener reports to the war office from Pretoria as follows:

"Kitchener's fighting scouts under Grenfell have surprised and captured Van Rensburg's laager at Klipdam, north of Pietersburg. Seven Boers were killed and 37 taken prisoners. Eight thousand rounds of ammunition and all the wagons, carts, oxen, horses and mules were captured. Our only casualty was one wounded.

"The other columns report 3 killed, 58 taken prisoners, 57 surrendered and 1 quick firer captured."

Another dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, says:

"General Blood has discovered at Rossenkal, South African Republic, government documents and a large number of bank notes.

"Byng has had a fight with Boers on the Basutoland border, south of Wepener, and killed five.

"Grenfell, in addition to the captures reported, got 38,500 rounds of small arms ammunition. At Leydenburg 20 Boers have surrendered."

A party of Boers blew up the railroad between Graspan and Belmont, Cape Colony, in three places April 27, apparently with the intention of intercepting a train carrying Mr. Cecil Rhodes. The damage done was slight and was quickly repaired.

FATAL MINE EXPLOSION.

Five Lives Lost at McAlester, I. T. Many Injured.

SOUTH M'ALESTER, I. T., April 30.—An explosion of gas has occurred in the mine of the McAlester Coal company at Alderson by which five men lost their lives, seven were injured, and another is reported missing. Two others were temporarily overcome by fire damp, but recovered soon after being brought out.

The explosion occurred at about 6:45 o'clock yesterday morning. About 125 men were at work in the mine at the time. It is not definitely known how the gas ignited, but it is probable that some of the men fired a shot that the shot firers had not fired. The shot firers enter the mine in the evening after the miners leave and fire all the shots or blasts that the miners have prepared. Sometimes shots are not well prepared, and the shot firers refuse to fire them. Occasionally in these cases the men afterward fire the shots themselves, although this is against the rules of the mine. It is thought this was done yesterday morning by some of the men who were afterward killed or injured by the explosion. The dead were all asphyxiated. The explosion was not severe, as others working in other parts of the mine did not hear it, and the engineer at the shaft mouth heard no noise, but saw smoke arise. No damage was done to the mine.

West African Disturbances.

LONDON, April 30.—Information received here from Uromi, West Africa, and dated March 25, is to the effect that the punitive expedition under Major Heneker, composed of 250 men, and which had penetrated to the northeast of Benin City and there seized an important town, was being attacked in force. The natives were collecting from all parts of the country. Up to the date of the report Major Heneker's command had had 32 casualties. Lieutenant Carstairs of the Canadian militia has been slightly wounded. He was the only white officer injured.

Forest Fire on Long Island.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Another disastrous forest fire was reported from Long Island. Some Hampton Park boys built a bonfire Sunday afternoon, which set fire to surrounding grass and spread to the woods north of Southampton. About a thousand acres are burned, and an immense quantity of property was destroyed. The people of Southampton and surrounding villages turned out in force in the evening and by hard work managed to keep the flames from many residences which were threatened. It was finally checked when it reached a broad road.

Launching of the Constitution.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 30.—At the time set for putting the Constitution in the water, on May 6, it will be quite dark from the fact that the hour fixed—8:30 p. m.—is long past daylight. There will be about a quarter of an hour's difference between the hour of launching the Columbia and the Constitution. Columbia went into the water at about 8:15 p. m. on June 10, 1899. Many men, including the crew of the Constitution, will labor with energy the remainder of the week to get the craft ready for the launching.

May Prices For Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company has issued its circular of tide prices for anthracite coal for May. The prices are identical with those of the April circular, with the exception that the rebate for May is only 40 cents a ton instead of 50 cents, making the net prices at tide 10 cents a ton higher than the April prices. In line and city prices a similar rebate is made, with a corresponding increase of 10 cents on domestic sizes.

The Buried Baby Dead.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The baby that was buried alive near Hastings-on-the-Hudson on April 22 by its mother, Francesca Spinello, and the woman's uncle is dead in the county poorhouse at East View. The exact cause of its death is not yet known, but if it should be found that it resulted from the inhuman act of the mother and her uncle the grand jury will be asked to indict the couple for murder in the first degree.

The Kaiser Reads the Papers.

BERLIN, April 30.—Emperor William recently gave orders for a long list of newspapers to be laid before him daily instead of clippings, as heretofore. Besides perusing upward of two score of German papers, he glances every day at two French journals, two English, one American and three Austrian. This change in his habits he is said to have had in contemplation for some time.

Explorer Baldwin In Copenhagen.

COPENHAGEN, April 30.—Mr. Evelyn B. Baldwin of the Baldwin-Ziegler arctic expedition spent Sunday here in company with the Danish officer Mikkelsen, commander of the America and who was formerly with Captain Otto Sverdrup in Greenland. Yesterday Mr. Baldwin left for Christiania and Gothenburg.

THE MANILA FRAUDS

Trial of Former Commissary Reed Begun.

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING BRIBES.

Defense Objects to the Court's Jurisdiction and Rank—Some Damaging Testimony Brought Out on the Opening Day.

MANILA, April 30.—The trial of Captain James C. Reed, former depot commissary at Manila and who was arrested about a fortnight ago for alleged participation in the commissary frauds, was begun here yesterday and bids fair to develop into a celebrated case. Captain Reed is charged with soliciting and receiving bribes and with other official misconduct.

At the beginning of the trial counsel for the defendant objected to the jurisdiction of the court, alleging that under an act promulgated in 1901 officers of the regular establishment are ineligible as members of a court martial to try an officer of volunteers. The defense further denied that a state of war existed in Manila today and alleged that the provost marshal, General George W. Davis, is unauthorized to convene a general court martial and intimated that, inasmuch as General MacArthur virtually preferred the charges against Captain Reed, consequently the orders directing his trial by court martial should come from Washington. The defense further objected to the fact that several members of the court were of inferior rank to Captain Reed. All these objections were overruled, and the hearing of testimony was begun.

Mr. Schindler, manager of the Alhambra cigar factory, testified that in November Captain Reed had told him that Major George B. Davis, who was the depot commissary before Captain Reed, but who was sent to the United States on sick leave and whose name appears upon the books of Evans & Co., government contractors at Manila, as the recipient of $1,000, was $2,000 short in his accounts. Continuing, Mr. Schindler testified that those having profitable contracts with the government were asked to assist in making good Major Davis' deficiency. Schindler gave Captain Reed $1,050, which was 2½ per cent commission on the cigars sold to the commissary department during the time that Major Davis was depot commissary at Manila. An officer named Franklin, who was assistant commissary, testified to the effect that on March 18, following the direction of a superior officer, he obtained $1,000 from Major Davis and paid this money over to Schindler.

Inspector General Garlington testified that during the preliminary investigation of the commissary scandals Captain Reed admitted to him recovering money from Schindler and others and gave as an excuse that the money so recovered was intended to cover Major Davis' beef shortage.

Lieutenant Richard H. Townley of the navy, at present superintendent of the Manila Nautical school, testified that as the result of a conference with Captain Reed he went to see Castle Bros., contractors, who supply the commissary department with vegetables, etc., and wanted them to give Captain Reed $2,000 and 10 per cent commission on all sales. Castle Bros. demurred to this proposition. Lieutenant Townley again went to Castle Bros. and this time only asked them for $2,000. Castle Bros. were reluctant to hand over this sum, and Lieutenant Townley explained that Captain Reed was in a position to advance the interests of the firm and that it would be advantageous to Castle Bros.

Colonel Charles A. Woodruff, chief of the subsistence department in Manila, explained the circumstances of Captain Reed's appointment and described the duties of the depot commissary, not knowing whether the accounts of Major Davis were correct or not. Colonel Woodruff explained that on Dec. 30 Castle Bros. aroused his suspicions by intimating that money was being collected by an officer of the commissary department.

Alejandrino Surrenders.

MANILA, April 30.—General Alejandrino, who was looked upon by the rebels as the most probable successor of Aguinaldo, has surrendered unconditionally at Arayat, in the province of Pampanga, island of Luzon.

Pennsylvania Steel Incorporated.

TRENTON, April 30.—The Pennsylvania Steel company, with an authorized capital of $50,000,000, has been incorporated here to mine, manufacture and deal in iron, steel, manganese and other metals, also coke, gas, lumber and other materials. The incorporators are Effingham B. Morris, Edgar C. Felton and Luther S. Best. The postoffice addresses of the incorporators are given as Camden, which is the registered New Jersey office of the company.

Oil Struck In Ohio.

ASHTABULA, O., April 30.—A splendid oil strike has been made near Jefferson at a depth of 2,100 feet. The find has created great excitement, and oil men from a distance are at the scene. Two miles and a half from the site of the first discovery drillers struck another rich deposit but a few hours later. For nearly a year drillers have been persistently at work in this territory.

Referee Bill Dead.

ALBANY, April 30.—Governor Odell has announced that he would veto the bill introduced by Senator Ellsworth of Lockport, Niagara county, providing for the appointment of 40 official referees by the appellate division of the supreme court of the first department for the courts of New York city. The governor's announcement was made at the conclusion of a hearing given to opponents of the measure.

French Mining Strike Unlikely.

PARIS, April 30.—The final result of the referendum shows 28,850 miners in favor and 17,603 against the declaration of a general strike. None of the mining companies expect that a strike will be declared in view of the fact that 100,000 of the miners abstained from voting.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The following fourth class postmasters have been appointed: New Jersey—Mountain View, J. G. Jeffries. New York—Cold Brook, C. W. Cooper. Pennsylvania—Lashley, W. P. Lashley; Princeton, Sylvester Shaffer.

Madison's Water Works.

It has already been remarked that the circumstances existing at Madison, N. J., are such that a comparison of the water supply plant, owned by that borough, is of little real value as far as Plainfield is concerned. Of course, it is municipal ownership and the success or failure of that problem is a question in which all Plainfield people are interested.

There certainly has been some question raised in Plainfield as to whether or not the Madison plant is a success. In the famous debate on the subject of municipal ownership, between James E. Martine and S. S. Swackhamer, the latter declared that the plant was not a success. Shortly after that statement was made, the editor of the Madison Eagle came out in defense of the plant, claiming its complete success.

This week, the Madison Eagle publishes further details regarding Madison's plant which will be of interest to Plainfielders. The article is as follows:

"It seems that the opinion has taken root in Plainfield that the Madison Water and Light Plant is not a financial success. In order that the exact conditions existing may be known we quote the following figures taken srom the books of the Borough, April 1st, 1901.

"Since the installation of the enterprise in 1890 there has been expended by the borough upon the light plant $79,860.93; for meters, $5,806.84; for transformers, $6,339; total, $92,006 77. Upon the water plant there has been expended $81,519.52 and for extension of water mains $19,209.77, a total of $100,729.29. This makes a total expenditure on both plants of $192,736.06, every cent of which is a resource. Of this amount $115,000 is represented by bonds and $20,000 by certificates of indebtedness, or a total liability against the plant of $135,000. The actual expenditures (less the liability) for permanent improvements have been $57,736.06, which amount was taken from the earnings of the plants. During the present year it is also intended to cancel $10,000 of the floating debt. This also will be taken from the earnings.

"The foregoing statistics are official and can be verified at any time by calling upon the borough clerk, which course we would recommend to those who take it upon themselves to make public statements so vital to both established and contemplated enterprises."

Entitled to Fair Treatment.

As to the talked of candidacy of James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," for the gubernatorial nomination of the Democrats, The Daily Press would say that while we express no preference for the nomination, being an independent newspaper and not a partisan one, yet we feel that Mr. Martine is entitled to fair treatment at the hands of his fellow citizens in New Jersey. He is known in Plainfield and Union county as an honorable and enterprising citizen, who has pronounced views on most public questions and, at the same time, has the courage to express them. It will not do to put him down as some Republican and Democractic papers have done, as "a blatherskite," "a wild follower of the Colorado freak," and "one who any yellow dog could beat."

While Mr. Martine has views which do not always agree with those of most of his fellow citizens, he is undoubtedly honest in his thoughts and is able to sustain his side by many arguments in its favor. He is attacked on his idea of the currency question but, considering that several million people seemed to take the same view, he is certainly entitled to consideration even if those ideas do not harmonize with the thoughts of most of the New Jersey editors.

The currency question does not really figure in the gubernatorial race. The people of New Jersey have expressed themselves in the recent elections on that question. What is now desired by Democrats and Republicans as well is a candidate, honest and intelligent, who will, if elected, administer the affairs of the commonwealth in such a way as to reflect credit to the party that nominated him and honor to the people of the State, the chief executive officer of which he will be.

It is evident that the great impression made by the recent evangelistic services still lives. The meeting Sunday evening, which was led by F H. Jacobs, was a remarkably impressive one and showed very plainly that there are many in town who have not forgotten that wonderful series of meetings. It is to be hoped that similar meetings of that nature will be held at intervals in the future.

While the sentiment on the subject is not unanimous, the press of New Jersey seems to agree that Franklin Murphy is now the only candidate of importance for the gubernatorial nomination of the Republicans. Senator Sewell's brief utterance on that subject seemed to settle the matter.

Baseball stands higher in popular favor this season than it has for several years. The small boys are finding much pleasure in their matches on the diamond. The Daily Press is always glad to publish the results of these games when they are brought to the office in time.

Again it appears as if the State Industrial School for Girls was coming in for some unpleasant notoriety. The State Charities Association is not pleased with the results of the attempt to improve that institution and promises some interesting developments in the near future.

Now that the people of Plainfield can get about the city once more they find that it never has been in such fine condition as today. The streets are in perfect condition, the lawns are well kept and scores of pretty new homes are going up on every side.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Hon. James E. Martine, of Plainfield and Union county, is prominently mentioned as a Democratic gubernatorial possibility. In selecting a leader for the fight which is to be made next November, the Democrats of New Jersey might go farther and fare very much worse. He is an able, vigorous campaigner, has a magnetic personality, and is endowed with those qualities that must characterize the man invested with the responsibilities of high office. Of all the names that have been mentioned so far in connection with the Democratic nomination for governor, that of James E. Martine is the one best calculated to move Middlesex Democrats to enthusiasm. Union, his home county, is next door neighbor to Middlesex, and Mr. Martine is the sort of man for whom, if he is nominated, Middlesex Democats will take off their coats and hustle from the date of the State convention until the last ballot is cast on election day.—New Brunswick Times.

CHAPTER VII.

In the morning, before the hour for leaving for the ship, Goddard saw his wife walking about in the cheerless garden. The day was moderately warm and still, and the sun shone clearly. He went out and joined her. His face was careworn and sallow. She looked up as he approached.

"A beautiful day to sail on," she said, with a bewitching smile.

"Yes, indeed," he said, looking her over from head to foot. He discovered fresh charms in her in the new gray traveling dress and hat. These things made the parting pangs in his breast all the more keen.

"I see you like my gown," she said reading his admiration in his glance. "It is pretty, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is very pretty, but that is not wonderful. You never wore anything that wasn't just what it should be."

She glanced at the veranda, on the edge of which stood her trunks, hand bags and rolls of steamer rugs, pillows and a deck chair.

"You see James has got everything ready."

"But Mrs—"

"Oh, Lucy has agreed to meet me at the ship, of course! She won't fail, you may be sure."

Mrs. Goddard took a sealed envelope from her pocket and gave it to him.

"Don't, under any circumstances, lose or misplace these," she cautioned him.

"But what are they?" he asked, feeling a small object through the paper.

"It contains a card and key, dear. The card is the address of a private letter box on Sixth avenue, and the key is to open, whenever you like, box No. 568."

Goddard fumbled them distastefully without comment for a moment, but with a furtive glance toward the house, his wife took them from him, and with a playful air put them into the pocket of his coat.

"You know," she explained, with a little frown, "it may be that I shall want to write to you in some other way than by directing my letters to Lyndhurst."

"Oh, Jeanne, these awful—awful details—"

"And here is a London address," Mrs. Goddard interrupted, her tone sharp and businesslike, as she gave him another card. "It has only Mrs. Nolan's address and name on it. All your letters must be sent to her."

He stood so helplessly before her that she had to place that card also into his pocket.

"I am almost afraid you will be too weak and silly to do all I tell you," she said, sharply. "If you fail, I shall never see you again, and—" She did not finish her threat, but the suggestion of it had the desired effect on him.

"I will try to do all you want, Jeanne, and I hope it will result in our ultimate happiness."

After breakfast, as they all stood in the dining-room, the carriage drove up to the door, followed by a wagon to move the luggage. Then Mrs. Goddard shook hands with Blanche and wiped her eyes on her handkerchief.

"Good-by," she said; "do kiss me again."

Blanche complied; her own eyes were dry and full of sweet, childlike wonder. The almost sleepless night she had passed had only deepened the mystery which, in her eyes, enveloped the wife of her guardian. Mrs. Goddard moved gracefully out into the hall, still wiping her eyes. Talley followed, his manner solicitous and regretful. Goddard left the two together while he went out to give an order to the coachman.

"While I am away, Mr. Talley," said Mrs. Goddard, coldly, "I hope you will clip the wings of your foolish aspirations."

"Why, I don't understand you, Mrs. Goddard," he cried, in abject astonishment. He stood as if stunned by a blow.

"You think you will win Blanche and get her money," she replied, with guarded rancor, "but you might as well renounce your intentions; she'll never look in your direction. She can see what has influenced you."

"My God! Mrs. Goddard," exclaimed the young man, with a look of deep pain, "don't misjudge me. If I have dared to feel the most intense admiration for her, I have not entertained even the slightest hope of ever gaining her favor. No man could live near her, and see her constant misery and witness her beautiful character and nature and keep from admiring her, but as to daring to—"

But the major was coming, and giving Talley her hand Mrs. Goddard said, lightly:

"Good-by, Mr. Talley; don't forget what I have said."

He stood like a stone and watched the carriage drive away. Mrs. Goddard was waving her handkerchief, but he seemed too deeply stunned to respond. When the carriage had disappeared down the road he turned and saw Blanche standing by his side. Instead of watching the departing vehicle she was regarding him with a fixed, inquiring gaze.

"What is the matter with you?" she questioned, considerately.

"Nothing—only—" he stammered. "I—I—she—"

"Wonders will never cease," said Blanche. "Are you, too, in love with her? I never dreamt of that; why—"

"Oh, no, not that, I assure you," he declared, recovering a little of his color and animation. "On the contrary, I— Oh, Miss Briscoe, please do not think that of me!"

She looked into his face thoughtfully for several minutes, then she said:

"You certainly had the queerest look on your face I ever saw on it. She must—did she say anything that hurt your feelings?"

"She intimated that I was showing myself capable of very presumptious intentions," he answered, desperately.

"She is so strange," sighed our heroine, "so very, very strange!"

A carriage was entering one of the gates at the foot of the sinuous drive.

"It is Lottie Dean," said Blanche. "I am glad she is prompt. She is going to pay me a long visit. I hope you will be nice to her, Mr. Talley. She likes you."

"I shall be pleased to do all in my power to help you entertain her," returned the young man, and they crossed the venanda together, and stood on the steps waiting for the advent of the carriage.

CHAPTER VIII.

As the major and his wife were being driven up to the pier where the Cleopatra lay, his agitation increased.

"It will soon be over," he sighed. "You will cable me as soon as you land, won't you, Jeanne?"

There was just a hint of hesitation in the look she gave him, then:

"Yes, dear Rowland," she said, "the moment I land; but my letters, remember, must go to the box."

"I shall simply haunt the place," he declared.

They alighted from the cab and walked along the pier through the hurrying throng of cabmen, draymen, passengers and people who had come to see their friends off. Reaching the gang plank, lowered for the accommodation of the saloon passengers, they saw Mrs. Nolan on the upper deck leaning against the railing and trying to attract their attention. Mrs. Goddard laughed merrily and waved the bit of cambric she held in her hand.

"Let's go right up," she said to her husband. "I want you to see our big rooms. You will agree with me that it is better to go in a boat that is not quite so fast than to miss such quarters as I have engaged."

He complied. The attention her beauty and stylish appearance had attracted from the bystanders had not escaped his eye. His heart was beating madly as he followed her up the gangplank to the first deck. In a moment they were shaking hands with Mrs. Nolan. Goddard's handshake was a mere cold formality. He now heartily disliked his wife's homely confederate. He despised her for being weak enough to obey Jeanne's criminal orders; she had not, he argued, his own excuse of being blindly in love. As they stood there he felt as if they were three murderers passing before the world as reputable, well-to-do citizens.

"Well, let me see your staterooms," he said, resignedly.

"They are on this deck, the last towards the stern," said Mrs. Goddard, leading the way. "In fact, there are no other apartments up here except the captain's, and his quarters are further forward. We shall be absolutely private."

They had now reached a door to which Mrs. Nolan had the key, and they unlocked it and went in. It was indeed a spacious apartment. In addition to the wide double bed, the room contained a soft lounge, a tea table and china service, and a little sideboard braced against the wall. Adjoining it were a bath and a single-berth room.

"Here," said Mrs. Goddard, opening the door of a closet about a yard in depth, "is the gem of modern improvements. I can hang up my things and they will keep dry and smooth. Besides, the purser said there were but two keys to it, and he has promised to let me have both of them, for security's sake."

"Here they are," said Mrs. Nolan, timidly, and she cringed under Goddard's sudden gaze. "He gave them to me just now."

Mrs. Goddard laughed mysteriously.

"I told him I had some valuable things which I did not care to keep in the safe in the office, and he assured me they would be absolutely safe in my closet."

The brows of the major ran together in perplexity.

"What is at the bottom of this?" he said. "What sort of valuables do you refer to?"

The woman addressed shrugged her shapely shoulders.

"Your photograph, dear Rowland," she said. "I must not let it be stolen. I can't deposit such a thing in the ship's safe, you know, and yet I want it with me, of course. But—now remember, if there ever is anything which you cannot comprehend fully, think of this closet and its two keys and the puzzle will be solved."

"You are so strange," he said, trying to fall into her mood. Just then one of the deck hands came in with Mrs. Nolan's steamer trunk and smaller luggage. A large willow basket to which was attached a card bearing the advertisement of a well-known delicatessen establishment riveted the roving glance of the major. Noting his curious stare at it, Mrs. Nolan moved nearly to the door and stood looking out at the clattering machines which were hoisting vast loads of trunks and boxes from the pier below.

"It is only a basket of fruit I ordered Lucy to get for me," said Mrs. Goddard, her face suddenly changing. "I always find that it is difficult to get just the right kind of fruit one wants on board, no matter how good the supply is."

"But," said the major, bending down and removing the cover, "they must have made some mistake. This basket does not contain fruit. There certainly are cans of meats, sardines, pate de foies gras and rolls of boned turkey. They have sent you the wrong basket."

Mrs. Goddard laughed uneasily.

"Well, I may as well acknowledge that it is something to eat. I did not want you to know that I could have such a ravenous appetite after parting with you; but the truth is, the sea air keeps me hungry all the time. I want to eat at night when it doesn't look respectable to make demands on the ship's larder. Now, come out on deck. It is stuffy in here. The air will not be stirring till we get out of the harbor."

Not fully satisfied with her flurried explanation, he followed her out on the deck, and he dismissed the subject as unworthy of comment at such an important moment. They strolled along the deck, now holding 50 or 60 passengers, most of whom, with serious eyes, were regarding the crowd assembled below. At last the gong—which was the signal for those who were not to sail to go ashore—was sounded, and Goddard grew actually white as he clutched his wife's hand.

"Are you seasick?" she jested.

"You know how this parting is killing me," he answered.

"Our meeting soon or—never depends on you," was her quiet, firm reply.

"I fondly hope you will find some other way," he said, in despair.

"You need not count on that, dear," she said. "Now kiss me and go."

As he went down the gang plank he had to hold to the railing to be sure of his foothold. Reaching the pier, he stood in the ranks along the water's edge, his eyes glued to a single face on the deck of the ship, which was beginning to move. An old woman near him, who was waving a farewell to her daughter, was sobbing aloud; he felt like crying, too, and but for the smiling countenance he adored he might have done so. He was the last to leave the pier. When the Cleopatra had vanished from sight he started homeward. The difference between his condition and that of his wife was that she felt as if she were just entering a state of freedom, while he had sold himself into bondage, of body and soul.

It was five o'clock in the afternoon when he reached Lyndhurst. He heard Blanche singing as she sat at the piano in the drawing-room, and when he went in he saw Miss Dean and Talley standing near her. They all came towards him.

"We have been waiting tea for you, Maj. Goddard," said Miss Dean, giving him her hand; "and we have planned not to allow you to get blue, haven't we, Blanche?"

His ward nodded, her eyes on his face, but she did not speak.

"I thank you," he said, smiling; "but not—not yet. Later I shall join you, but I am going to my room just now. It is good of you to come to us, Miss Dean."

"But, really, won't you have one cup?" pleaded Blanche, all tenderness and sympathy.

"Not this afternoon, dear," and he turned from the room.

"Oh, isn't he splendid?" exclaimed Miss Dean, when he had left the room. "He is one man that rouses the best emotions that are in me. I could love a—an unmarried man like that."

She was speaking to Blanche, but our heroine had gone to the table and was pouring a cup of tea.

"You take two lumps, Lottie, I believe," she said, in a voice in which there was a hint of unsteadiness.

Mrs. Goddard stood by her accomplice and waved her handkerchief until she was tired. Then she said:

A lady of Germantown, Pa., has a friend from St. Louis, who asserts that Ripans Tabules are an invaluable remedy for children teething. "And she ought to know," said her friend, "for she is the mother of a child that was awarded a prize for beauty at a baby show." It was during a recent visit at Germantown that this lady related her experience during the teething period of her boy. "At our home in St. Louis," said she, "we keep a constant supply of Ripans Tabules, and my husband, who is a druggist, says the doctors nearly all use them now. My little two-year-old suffered more from his first teeth than most children, and while a lotion rubbed on the gums seemed to relieve him, it was sure to upset his little stomach and make it incapable of retaining any food, and his vomiting would sometimes be something terrible. I had seen Ripans Tabules that I determined to make a trial of them in his case, so I gave him the broken half of one and the little one grew better almost immediately. I believe no family can have on hand anything in the medicinal line of such wide application as Ripans Tabules."

SERVING THE PEOPLE.

Mrs. Potter Palmer Thinks It Is a Duty Which Every Citizen Owes to His City and Country.

"I believe that a man who is 27 years old, has had a university training and the advantages of travel, and who has leisure to give to the public service, should help to remedy some of the evils of politics. My son has always been taught that it is his duty as a citizen to serve his city, as much as it is his duty to defend his country."

These words were spoken by that public spirited citizen, Mrs. Potter Palmer, in reference to the candidacy of her son, Honore Palmer, for an alderman's seat in the city council of

(Just Elected Alderman from Chicago's Twenty-First Ward.)

Chicago. That his candidacy should excite such widespread interest and demand an explanation, is, in itself, a singular comment on our indifference to public concerns. It ought to be taken for granted that young men of education, wealth, social position and leisure should give their time and influence to public service. Had the government of this country in its early years been left to self-seeking demagogues the states would never have been united into one compact, constitutional whole. For many years there has been a growing disposition among Americans of all classes to leave politics to professional politicians. In this way has come about corruption. Municipal reform associations have tried to arouse citizens to a sense of their public duty. The best of them, however, rarely go beyond depositing a ballot, and it would surprise most of them very much to be told that they should help select the candidates, and should even accept office if called upon.

This is the view taken by young Mr. Palmer. It is to be hoped, says the Little Chronicle, that he will have many imitators among young men, both rich and poor.

INDIAN IN THE NAVY.

Chapman Schenandoah, a Full-Blooded Oneida, a Member of the Crew of the Atlantic.

To the United States cruiser Atlanta belongs the distinction of having in its crew Chapman Schenandoah, the only American Indian in the navy. He is an Oneida, and was born on the reservation 29 years ago. He is the grandson of Schenandoah, "The Deer," who, in his day, was one of the most notable men of his tribe. At the age of 18 Schenandoah could neither read nor write, but had a natural talent for mechanics, and after he had seen a steam engine for the first time he went to his home and built one out of such material as he could find. He became a student at Hampton institute and after seven years of work was graduated, but remained at Hampton as an assistant in the machine shop.

When the war with Spain broke out he enlisted in the navy and served at first as a fireman on the San Francisco and later on the New York under Capt. Chadwick. He was mustered out of the volunteer service when the war was over, but reenlisted at once and was assigned to the Atlanta, on which vessel he is at present.

The Indian sailor is described by his friends as a fine, stalwart fellow of whom his tribesmen have good cause to feel proud.

The Daily Mail of Big Men.

The pope (who at one time was a reigning monarch over the papal states) is credited with receiving no fewer than 20,000 letters and newspapers every day. The German emperor receives more than 700 letters a day. The prince of Wales, before his accession to the throne as Edward VII., was not very far behind that number, and as king he will in all probability exceed it. Among presidents, the United States president stands at the head with 1,200 letters a day, the president of the French republic coming next with 700 a day.

BELTS.

Girdles Both Wide and Narrow Are Much Worn.

Belts are now an important part of the toilet. The fashion of high corselets worn with short boleros has returned in full force—a graceful style for a graceful figure, but one to be avoided by the overplump, as it shortens the apparent length of the waist. Wide and narrow belts of elastic tissue are also revived, being fastened with very elaborate buckles. Woven metallic belts are seen in many and rich varieties, often embroidered with jewels in the Russian style. Newest of all are belts of plain black velvet with beautifully wrought buckles of plain but genuine gold.

Today's cut illustrates a gown of parma violet cloth. The skirt is plain.

CLOTH TOILET.

The tight bodice has vertical straps of black velvet passing over the shoulders, each end terminating in a steel point. In front is a wide double jabot of lace falling upon a sort of blouse of white mousseline de soie. The plain sleeves have puffings of white mousseline de soie let in at the back from elbow to wrist, crossed by bands of black velvet with steel tips. A frill of white mousseline encircles the wrist. The belt of black velvet fastens with a steel buckle, a similar buckle closing the collar. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPRING FASHIONS.

Pretty Hats to Accompany Dainty Gowns.

There are many hats seen of mousseline de soie, taffeta and tulle. These are usually very elaborately gathered, ruched and shirred. Straw hats in which two tones appear are new, and there are pretty hats of bise straw largely draped with lace or tulle. The sailor form is the favorite for round hats, and the newest is distinguished by a sort of beret crown. Flowers, especially roses, are used in profusion, and certain tulle toques are covered with leafless flowers or, on the contrary, foliage alone.

A picture is given of a gown of hussar blue cashmere cloth. The skirt is open at each side of the tablier over a narrow panel of white satin laced across with black chenille cord. The stretched bodice is ornamented to match the skirt and opens over a full front of white mousseline de soie. There is a wide collar of Irish guipure, and straps of black velvet are fastened across the shoulders by steel buttons. The elbow sleeves have large cuffs, and below them are full puffs of guipure, gathered in at the wrist under a black velvet band. The belt is also of black velvet. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Tour of the World by England's Heir Apparent

The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York on a Visit to the British Colonies

FOR the purpose of showing royal appreciation of the assistance given the mother country in her time of need by the colonies of England, King Edward not only consented to, but urged, the world circling journey upon which the duke and duchess of Cornwall and York are now engaged. They will carry to the loyal supporters of the home government in India, in Australia, in South Africa and Canada the thanks of the rulers of England for the timely assistance rendered by these colonies in England's time of greatest need, and for the loyal troops they sent to fight England's battles in South Africa.

Such a journey had first been planned by Queen Victoria early last fall, and for the same purpose, but for a time it was feared the death of the queen would prevent the carrying out of the royal programme, for it is one thing for the heir presumptive to the English throne to leave England for the greater part of a year, and quite another for the heir apparent to do so. But King Edward would hear of no change in the plans.

They left England on March 16, and at this writing are well on their way to Australia, where the duke will open the first parliament of federated Australia in May. His will be the first visit of English royalty to this far-away colony, and the Australian people will give him a royal welcome.

A glance at the diagram and map accompanying this article will show the reader the route the royal party will travel. Several of the points at which stops are noted have already been passed, and at each of them an enthusiastic welcome was given the royal visitors from the motherland. At the great fortress of Gibraltar, where the first stop was made, everything was done that could possibly be done to show the enthusiasm and patriotism of the garrison. The street of the little town at the foot of the great rock were gay with flags and greenery, and during the two days' stay at that place the duke and duchess were shown every consideration.

The same enthusiasm and patriotism have been shown at such other places as have been visited so far, but the greatest welcome of all will undoubtedly be at Melbourne, where the duke will open the first federated Australian parliament on May 9 in the presence of many distinguished foreign guests representing many of the greatest powers in the world. This country has sent one of our best warships from the Asiatic squadron to Melbourne to participate in the reception of the royal party, the officers of which will represent this nation at the ceremonies attending the opening of the first Australian parliament.

In addition to Melbourne several points in Australia and New Zealand will be visited before the party leave South Pacific waters and turn toward Africa. Because of the troubles in South Africa it is not expected that any other than the coast towns will be visited in England's colonies in that part of the world. Should the party propose to travel inland for any distance it would be expected that the Boer leaders would spare no risk to effect their capture if possible, and King Edward is not anxious to expose his son and heir to England's throne to any such possible danger. But Durban, in Natal, and Cape Town and Port Elizabeth in Cape Colony, will be visited, and from these points it is expected a few titles will be distributed to the patriots of South Africa at the hand of the heir apparent.

British territory in North America will be reached in September, and the duke and duchess will first set foot on American soil at Halifax. They will visit a number of Canadian cities, journeying as far westward as Vancouver and Victoria, and, according to the present programme, will spend a little more than a month on this continent. During their stay in North America it is expected that time may be found for a visit to some of the American cities, and they may possibly spend a day or two at Buffalo as guests of the Pan-American exposition. When King Edward, then the prince of Wales, visited this continent some years ago he made quite an extended tour of the states, and it is said that he would like his son to take advantage of his visit to Canada and cross the border in the hopes that such a visit might tend to bind the two great Anglo-Saxon nations closer together. Buffalo will make a strong effort to secure the presence of the royal party for a day or more, and should they succeed it will prove a great drawing card for the exposition. It is also hoped that they may visit Washington and meet President McKinley, or, if that is impossible, and they can get to Buffalo, an effort will be made to have the president there to welcome them to the United States.

Before leaving England King Edward conferred the power of granting knighthood upon the duke, and many titles are expected to be left in the wake of the party as they journey through England's colonies, the conferring of which will do much to bind the mother country and her colonies together in closer ties, and to popularize the ruling house of England throughout Greater Britain in which so little of royalty is seen.

Great preparations were made for this journey of the heir apparent of England and his wife. The steamship Ophir, in which their trip is being made, was prepared for the occasion with great care, and for some months has undergone an elaborate overhauling to make it a worthy home for its royal passengers during the time of their journey. When she left England she was superior in many ways to either of the royal yachts in which English royalty have previously traveled. The Ophir was first built to run as a mail and passenger steamer between England and Australia in the Orient line. In that capacity she won a reputation for safety and for comfort which gains for her the distinction of carrying the duke and duchess of Cornwall and York over half the world. Her designs were prepared in accordance with the findings of the latest board of trade committee upon the subdivision of ships, so that her watertight compartments enable her to float in safety with any two compartments broken open to sea. Further security is afforded by a cellular double bottom, subdivided into water-tight compartments, and extending almost the whole length of the ship. The boiler-rooms, both of them water-tight, are placed 62 feet apart; the steam-pipes are in water-tight casing; and a longitudinal water-tight bulkhead divides the engine-rooms. "A floating palace" is the term that has been applied to the yacht, and may pass. There are royal apartments on different decks—drawing-rooms paneled in rosewood and satinwood, with inlay, the carpet a deep-pile Saxony of a delicate fawn color; smoking-rooms, writing-rooms, upholstered in blue leather, grand staircases, and a dining-saloon (with a table to seat 56 persons at need) that contrives to pay a double debt as a concert-room between meals. The kitchens, the bath-rooms, the wine-cellars, the barber's shop and the laundry may be left undescribed. The Ophir returned from its last Australian trip only three days before Christmas; and a wonderfully busy time Capt. Pitt, R. N., of the admiralty transport department, the ship's carpenters and decorators have had. During the trip the Ophir carries 27 naval officers, 125 bluejackets, 100 marines, 37 bandsmen, and 20 boys, 50 stewards, 9 cooks, 3 bakers, 7 engineer officers, with a large staff of stokers, etc., bringing up to about 525 the number on board, all told.

THE DUKE OF CORNWALL AND YORK.

The duke and his party will return to England two months or more before the ceremonies attending the coronation of King Edward, at which time he will succeed to the title of prince of Wales.

NO DISORDER IN CUBA.

Recent Reports Investigated by Captain Slocum.

HAVANA, April 30.—Captain Slocum, who was ordered to investigate the cases of reported shooting and robbery in the tobacco district of the province of Pinar del Rio complained of by Mr. Gustave Bock, asserts, as the result of his investigation, that no acts of violence are being committed there, but that the planters fear that without armed forces in the province disorder and brigandage will prevail. It appears that the planters in the district referred to have received numerous letters threatening to burn their storehouses unless funds are forthcoming, but Captain Slocum was unable to find that these threats had been carried out in a single instance. So far as the reported attempt to murder one of the employees of Mr. Bock's company is concerned, this turns out to have been more in the nature of a personal quarrel, and there was certainly no attempt to take life.

The rural guard, under the direction of Captain Slocum, is making a tour of Pinar del Rio, and telegraphic reports from all points in the province say that the best order prevails.

The mass meeting held at Matanzas by the Democrats, the opening rally of the campaign, was largely attended. Senor Montero, who received a great ovation, said the Cuban problem was an international one and that the Platt amendment was a wise measure. He lamented that the radicals should look at the question solely from the point of view of constitutional limitation, for, in his opinion, the constitution was deficient, would not continue and could not fulfill the eminent political and social necessities of the country. He declared that valuable time had been lost in a very important matter—namely, the securing of some concessions in respect of the duties on Cuban products—and he urged that this question should be settled with Washington as soon as possible.

Senor Giberg said the Platt amendment was opposed in the convention by radicals who did not represent the Cubans in any way, politically, economically or socially.

The Kentucky Derby.

LOUISVILLE, April 30.—The Kentucky Derby has passed into history, and not one of the 25,000 people that saw it can say aught except that it was a race from the flag until the good son of Falsetto passed under the wire a winner in the good time of 2:07¾. His Eminence was fit to battle against any colt in the west. He won, and he deserved to win, for with long, even strides he negotiated the distance of a mile and a quarter like clockwork, and never once did Winkfield have occasion to resort to either whip or spur. The track record was not broken, but it is safe to say that had it been necessary to have won the twenty-seventh Kentucky Derby His Eminence would have been equal to the occasion and could no doubt have taken a fraction from the record of 2:06¼, made by Lieutenant Gibson over the course last year.

The New Machinery Combine.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 30.—Announcement has been made here that the Dickson Manufacturing company of this city has completed negotiations for entering into a combination of machinery manufacturing concerns. The others in the combination are the E. P. Allis company of Milwaukee, Frazer & Chambers of Chicago and London and the Gates Iron works of Chicago. The Dickson company has three plants, two in this city and one in Wilkesbarre. One of the two in this city is a locomotive manufactory. This is left out of the new combine and will continue to be operated separately for the present at least. Eventually, it is expected, it will be a part of a combine of locomotive works now said to be in process of formation by J. P. Morgan.

Paris Salon Open.

PARIS, April 30.—The Old Salon was opened with the official visit of President Loubet. The general opinion seems to be that the pictures, despite their immense number, are above the usual level. Among those that attract particular attention are M. Benjamin Constant's portraits of the pope and Queen Alexandra and M. Leon Nonnat's portrait of M. Loubet. The Transvaal war inspired a number of the pictures, including several depicting incidents of Mr. Kruger's visit to France. More than a hundred paintings by Americans are on view. All are excellent, though comparatively few are striking. The Temps picks out Mr. H. Bisbing, the American artist, as "an animal painter of the first order."

Ruined by Galveston Flood.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 30.—Henry Bergmann, who lost his wife, his children and his property in the Galveston flood, has arrived here, having made most of the journey on foot. He is bound for Newark, N. J., to end his days. He was a member of the famous Sixth Massachusetts regiment, which was mobbed while passing through Baltimore in 1861.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Plainfield High School nine will play the Newark Academy team on the latter's grounds at Newark tomorrow afternoon.

The North Plainfield High School team and the Leal's School team will cross bats on the diamond of Pittis' Field tomorrow afternoon.

The Watchung and Y. M. C. A. baseball nines played a one sided game of baseball yesterday afternoon on the Plainfield avenue grounds. The Watchung boys were victorious by a score of 16 to 5. Willis and Minford for the Watchung's and Sherwin and Vreeland for the Y. M. C. A. were the batteries.

W. A. Fisher, of Bound Brook, who is the regular short stop on the Rutgers College baseball nine, met with an accident one day last week which will prevent his playing ball temporarily. While doing laboratory work, Fisher cut his arm with a glass bottle. As he is a first class all around player the loss to the Rutgers team will be serious.

The baseball team from the Whittier School was defeated for the first time this season yesterday by the North Plainfield Juniors. The score was 9 to 3. A large number of spectators witnessed the game which took place on the Jackson avenue grounds. The battery for the Whittiers was Brokaw and Hellyer and for the Juniors, Conover and Emmons. Tomorrow afternoon, the Whittiers will cross bats with the Netherwood A. C. on Martine Common.

Now that baseball weather has arrived scores of games are being played constantly. One of the strongest teams in this vicinity will be the one from the Pond Tool Works. This team, which has been greatly strengthened, will open the season Saturday, May 11, with the team from the Garwood Athletic Association. The game will be played on the home team's ground, South Second street, which have been put in fine condition. The many followers of the Pond team will be pleased to know that the team will be the best and an excellent schedule is being arranged.

GOLF.

It is expected that the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be formally opened Saturday afternoon. The present fine weather is having a good effect on the course and should restore it to the best of condition.

The second annual championship meeting of the New Jersey State Golf Association will be held on the links of the Englewood Golf Club, on June 27, 28 and 29. The members include most every important club in the State, but only resident members may start. Entries must be sent in on or before Monday, June 24.
